BUSINESS OF THE WEEK.

A SCANTY RECORD.

The amount of negotiation in progress in the real estate market has been large and spirited during the past week, in spite of the very depressing weather which has made it almost impossible to show property to inquirers. The results, however, have not been apparent in as large a number of important sales as we had to record last week. In a number of cases where cash offers have been made both parties, if there is any difference, are very tenacious of their figures. In such cases the property is generally offered at something like a sacrifice, and the seller is not willing to go lower, while the buyer expects frequently a better bargain than he is fairly entitled to. A case of this kind is within our knowledge where a difference of $3,000 prevents a sale of a piece of real estate that sold for $108,000 before the fire of 1871. The holder wants only $65,000; he is offered but $62,000; and there the matter stands. The fact is, the present prices of real estate in Chicago are felt by owners to be at the "hardpan" point, and they are not ready to make further concessions. This gives the market a great deal of steadiness. The movement in suburban property has not yet fairly opened. The alluring charms of this species of realty can best be made apparent in balmy days, which have not yet been experienced. The 1st of May having passed, a large demand for residence property that was felt prior to that date has been satisfied or diverted into leased property, and a natural pause in business has followed.

RECENT SALES.

Property on North Dearborn street is in request for those who wish to erect fine residences for themselves in a locality where all the improvements are of a congenial kind. THE NORTH SHORE DRIVE.

There is at last a prospect that the long-talked-of and much-deferred drive along the Lake shore on the North Side, between the Water-Works and Lincoln Park, will be completed. The Lincoln Park Commissioners at their last meeting appropriated the money necessary for the work, including a separate road for fast driving, and the contracts will probably be let during the present week. The Commissioners are understood to have on hand nearly all the funds they will need for this enterprise. Property-owners on the line of this boulevard have been so often disappointed in their expectations of seeing it actually built that some of them have grown incredulous about it; but this action of the Park Commissioners seems to give assurance that the work will soon be under way.

NEW YORK REAL ESTATE.

The New York Times says:

The total value of city real estate sold at auction at the Exchange for the week ending with Saturday, May 1, amounts to $1,074,690, as against $507,945, the figures for the previous week. The apparent large increase in the business of a single week arises from the sales made by Samuel A. Steele on Monday, of the valuable property on Broadway, northwest corner of Eighteenth street, belonging to the Hoyt estate. The sale was one in foreclosure, and the plot having a frontage on Broadway of 110.6 feet, and on Eighteenth street of 138.3, covered with five-story marble-front buildings, sold for $778,000. When it is stated that the terms of sale were virtually cash, the result speaks well for the market in these dull times. No other sales of importance were made during the week.

THE LOAN MARKET.

CAPITALISTS PARTICULAR ABOUT SECURITY.

There has been a fair amount of activity the past week; in fact almost all the agencies, from the least to the greatest, have had something to do. Loans for improvement of property are in the majority, but they are not so marked a feature as in the previous weeks. There is plenty of money for investment. Capitalists have not lost faith in Chicago real estate, but their requirements as to securities are rather exacting. Inside business property finds no difficulty in securing loans at 8 or 9 per cent, but outside, fancy, and speculative enterprises are looked upon with much suspicion, and no one seems willing to venture their money on this kind of security.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE.

LECTURE BY THE HON. JAMES P. ROOT.

Yesterday the Hon. James P. Root lectured before the Union College of Law on "Abstracts of Title." His remarks were substantially as follows:

One of the most, if not the most, important branches of the law is that which relates to the ground upon which we live. Originally, naked possession was the only evidence a man had of an interest in or ownership of land. His tenure depended upon his physical ability to hold the possession. In progress of time, however, the right of ownership in particular parcels of land began to be acquiesced in, because a covetous man, having power to drive some weak neighbor off, might find, upon his return from some marauding expedition, that some stronger than he had occupied; so that it was rather fear than any particular sense of right or of honesty that induced the crystallization process whereby the rights to land were defined and acquired the force of law.

The next step was to recognize the right of property, although not coupled with possession, for in the earlier times men were much called away from their homes by war, and therefore some additional evidence of ownership became necessary to secure the rights which otherwise the first squatter might violate.

A SYSTEM OF CONVEYANCING

grew up whereby written instruments were used as evidence of title. They were called muniments of title, and passed with the land to the purchaser. What we call an "abstract of title" is a synopsis of the several instruments and proceedings composing a chain of title prepared by some person familiar with the records.

Before the Recording act in England, all deeds passed with the possession, and it was the business of the conveyancer employed to arrange the business to examine all the conveyances, and to make an abstract showing the title. It was a specialty, and some of the old and well-established conveyancers retained the custody of these muniments, so that every time the property changed hands they seemed to have a corner on the business. But in those days the tendency was to keep estates together.

In this country, however, where the statutes of nearly every State, if not of all, provide for recording of conveyances, and the use of certified copies thereof in evidence, people have become exceedingly careless, and original deeds and tax-receipts have not uniformly been preserved. The advent of a great fire, which destroyed the entire records of a county with a population of half a million, and where for thirty years the handling of real estate has been carried on as a distinct business, and where almost every citizen has made from one to fifty deeds, has demonstrated that which relates to a title, or which throws any light upon it, should be sacredly preserved. Even if the record were not destroyed, it may be incorrect. I have in my mind a case where the abstract and the record failed to show that a notary in a foreign State had affixed his notarial seal as the statute required. The maker of the deed had been dead many years. After a diligent search of some weeks the original deed was found, and it appeared the seal had been affixed, but the Recorder had failed to note it. Such questions arise daily in the business of the conveyancer. No one thing should be more thoroughly impressed on the mind of the lawyer as well as the business man than the importance of preserving evidence of title. A good and complete abstract ordinarily will be sufficient, but as a safeguard in case of the destruction of the public record, or for the purpose of correcting its defects, or for the purpose of detecting forgeries and frauds, the original papers are invaluable, and indeed without them often the title will fail.

A THOROUGH ABSTRACT

embraces everything shown by the public records relating to the particular land embraced therein. These records are:

First—The books in the Recorder's office of the county wherein the land is situated.

Second—The records of the several courts, embracing, as in this county, the United States Court, the Circuit and Superior Courts, and the County Court; also the Criminal Court in cases of forfeited recognizances.

It is frequently necessary to refer to the record of the Department at Washington, the Land-Office at Springfield, and the records of the Canal Trustees. It not unfrequently happens that reference must be had to statutes either of the United States or of the State.

We may say that the

was in the United States Government, and from that source it has come to the present owners. In 1827 a large portion of the public domain was set off by act of Congress to the State of Illinois, for the purpose of public improvement, and the State caused this land to be conveyed to Trustees, with power to sell it and apply the proceeds in the construction of the Illinois & Michigan Canal. I have thus briefly referred to the source of title for the purpose of obtaining a starting point in the examination of the abstract. Congress set apart every sixteenth section for educational purposes, and this came to the State also for that purpose, and has been disposed of pursuant to statute, the title being vested by act of the General Assembly in School Trustees, with authority to sell the same. So that we find three original, or substantially original, sources of title:

First—A patent from the President for that portion sold by the Government.

Second—A deed from the Canal-Trustees for that portion ceded to Illinois for public improvements.

Third—A deed from the School-Trustees for that portion ceded for educational purposes.

We are usually satisfied with these sources; but, if we demand

A COMPLETE CHAIN,

we should have,

First—The proclamation of discovery.

Second—The grant by the King and his Council to the original Virginia patentees.

Third—The Treaty of Peace whereby the Colonies were confirmed in their rights.

Fourth—The ordinance of 1789, whereby Virginia ceded to the United States Government the Northwestern Territory.

Fifth—The treaty of the United States with the Indians whereby they vacated.

Sixth—The Government survey.

Seventh—The act of Congress which placed the land in market.

Eighth—The patent from the President.

Or, if school lands:

First—The act of Congress ceding the sixteenth section.

Second—The act of the Illinois Legislature providing for School Trustees.

Third—The deed of the School Trustees.

Or, if canal lands:

First—Act of Congress ceding to the State for public improvements.

Second—Act of General Assembly providing for Canal Trustees.

Third—Deed of the Trustees.

There is also another class of lands in Illinois which come through the ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY.

Pursuant to the act of Congress ceding land for public improvements, the Legislature created the Illinois Central Railroad Company, and granted to certain Trustees many thousands of acres to be sold from time to time, the proceeds to be applied to the construction of that road and its branches. There are also some Indian reservations, consisting of large tracts of land reserved by the treaty to certain Indians and their heirs. The Illinois Central lands are conveyed by the Trustees, the Indian lands by the Indians, with the consent of the President, pursuant to the terms of the treaty, which were also incorporated in the deed of the President confirmatory of the treaty, and without which the Indian cannot make a perfect title.

One other class of lands in this State must not escape our attention, viz.:

THE FRENCH CLAIMS.

The French settled on the Kaskaskia and established trading-posts opposite St. Louis, and also at Vincennes, on the Ohio, and some, I think, at Peoria. In the act of Virginia, Dec. 20, 1783, which authorized the Virginia Delegates in Congress to cede the Northwestern Territory, the following language occurs:

> That the French and Canadian inhabitants and other settlers of the Kaskaskias, St. Vincent, and the neighboring villages who have professed themselves citizens of Virginia, shall have their possessions confirmed to them, and be protected in the enjoyment of their rights and liberties.

The substance of this is incorporated in the ordinance of 1787.

I will now proceed to examine the different conveyances and proceedings, an abstract of which is furnished, assuming that the starting point is good by deed from some one of the sources already mentioned. I will speak first of and, second, of proceedings of courts of record. There must be a grantor capable of granting—that is, he must not be crazy, although there is no law against his being a fool—21 years old if a male and 18 if a female. The deed must contain granting words, and a consideration expressed. The description of the land must be written and sufficiently accurate so that a surveyor can find it by applying the ordinary rules of his science, with a habendum and words of warranty. It must be signed, sealed, and delivered. Although the abstract discloses sufficient to determine whether the instrument is in form, yet it will not show whether the grantor was laboring under any disability. This must be ascertained from other sources.

CONVEYANCES PROPER,

Proof of the execution must be established. When the acknowledgment is in due form the abstract is silent on the subject,—only the defects are noted. The form of the acknowledgment is governed by the law in force at the time of the date, notwithstanding that law may be subsequently repealed.

The execution of a deed may be proven either by the acknowledgment, if in due form, or by proving the signature when not acknowledged. It cannot be admitted for record when not acknowledged, but is just as good as evidence when proved by the common law rule. A deed not recorded is not notice to persons dealing with the land, unless actual notice is given.

The record of a deed is constructive notice of its existence, and all persons attempting to deal with the land are bound with notice. A certified copy of the record of a deed cannot be used in evidence, except upon first showing the loss of the original.

A deed not acknowledged and not recorded is binding on all parties dealing with the land if the grantee is in possession of the land; in fact, everybody is bound by whatever title a person has in actual possession, whether he discloses his title or not.

Another important question is,

HAS THE GRANTOR A WIFE?

If the abstract is silent on the subject, it is the duty of the conveyancer to ascertain the fact. A statement in the deed that the grantor is a widower or bachelor does not prove the fact, for the grantor cannot thus make evidence to cut off the dower if there is one. It is, however, a strong circumstance. The deed may be so old that in all probability the wife is dead. The fact must, however, be established. Affidavits of parties familiar with the grantor are ordinarily sufficient when they state the death.

It is well to insert after the name of the grantor his residence and occupation. A deed from John Smith would be a dubious affair, for John Smith, lawyer, of Waukegan, might be the real party. Yet there are forty John Smiths, some one of whom might be rascal enough to attempt to sell the land of John Smith, lawyer, of Waukegan.

QUIT-CLAIM DEEDS.

A quit-claim deed is just as good to pass a title as a warranty if the grantor has a perfect title. There are two kinds of quit-claim deeds.

First—A quit-claim which conveys the land.

Second—A quit-claim of any interest the grantor has in it.

The latter is good to convey the title if he has it, but if he has no interest and subsequently acquires the title it will not inure to the benefit of his grantee.

MORTGAGES AND TRUST-DEEDS.

Titles frequently pass through mortgage foreclosures. There two kinds of mortgages—first, plain mortgages, and, second, with power of sale. The first kind must be foreclosed in chancery. Where such is the case the conveyancer must be satisfied that the mortgagor had the title, that he had capacity to execute the instrument, and that it was properly acknowledged and delivered. If it appears on the record, it is presumed to have been delivered, as is true of all conveyances. In short, the mortgage must be as certain and specific as a deed. The decree of the Court is for a specific sum, and usually, if the sum is not paid by a certain time, the land will be sold by the Master. The equity of redemption, however, continues, and the mortgagor may redeem at any time within twelve months, unless he shall have waived and released this equity in the mortgage, in which case the court may decree that the equity of redemption be sold with the land. The Master, pursuant to the decree, executes the deed. The Master's deed should recite all the facts necessary to show that the Court has jurisdiction, and that the proceedings were regular. If the equity of redemption was not waived, and therefore not sold, the deed cannot be executed until the expiration of fifteen months, for the mortgagor has twelve months and his creditors three months thereafter in which to redeem. So that the conveyancer should

First—See that the mortgage was properly executed.

Second—That the Court had jurisdiction of the case.

And, in order to determine this latter question, the record must show service of summons, either on the person or by publication if against a non-resident, in the manner provided by the Chancery act. If the mortgagor has died his heirs must be made parties, and service must be had on them, and if any of them are infants a guardian ad litem must be appointed.

The next kind of mortgage is one which authorizes the mortgagee in case of default to sell the land. The power must be strictly complied with; the notice must be given as provided, and the sale must take place at the time and place designated. The abstract if complete should show all the proceedings, and in all cases where it is not complete resort must be had to the original records; and I may say once for all, that no lawyer should pass a title which comes through court proceedings without going to the record, and examining carefully all the papers and records, for the abstract may be incorrect. It may fail to show many facts which a lawyer would deem essential. The debtor is helpless,—he has no part or lot in the proceeding,—and all persons exercising arbitrary and extraordinary powers must be held to a strict accountability. Purchasers even at a mortgage sale, under a power, are required to see that the creditor gets his money, unless the mortgage expressly provides that he shall not be so required. What I have said applies equally well to trust-deeds. A trust-deed is an instrument which conveys the land to a third person in trust to sell, etc., under the directions contained in it. These directions must be pursued strictly.

WITH A POWER OF SALE,

Prior to the Chicago fire, deeds of this kind usually required that sales should be made at the NORTH DOOR OF THE COURT-HOUSE.

When the fire came the north door was destroyed, and the question arose as to the place of sale. The Circuit Court decided the sale could not take place where the north door was, but the Supreme Court decided otherwise; so that now we frequently see a Trustee and one purchaser (and he the creditor) sprawling around on the ruins, trying to get as near as possible to that particular place in the universe which formerly was known as the north door of the Court-House.

We find in the course of the examination of the title that is involved. Some person, at one time an owner of the property, devised it to certain persons from whom the title is derived. Of course the standing-point in a case of this kind is: "What was the intention of the testator?" To settle this question involves a knowledge of wills, and here again I may say a whole lecture may be brought in. The will must be proven, in due form, but the conveyancer should not rest here. The testator may have left debts behind to be paid regardless of the terms of his testament. Has the estate been settled and the debts all paid off? If the abstract fails to show this, recourse must be had to the records themselves.

Perhaps the real estate in question has been sold to pay debts. In such case the proceedings must be examined, and here arises the question of jurisdiction. The petition may be all right, the proofs complete, the order of the Court sufficient, the sale in due form, and the executor's deed correct; but suppose the abstract fails to show that the deed was confirmed? Then refer to the records, and, if it transpires that the deed was never confirmed, the title has failed to pass by the proceedings.

PARTITION PROCEEDINGS

will often appear in the abstract, involving not only a knowledge of chancery practice, but also of the statute relating to partition. All the parties in interest must be brought in, otherwise their rights are not affected. In remedies given by statutes the statute must be strictly followed. In ordinary chancery proceedings where the relief sought is within the discretion of the Court the decree will bind all parties to the suit, but in statutory proceedings, as partition-proceedings to sell land for debts, to support minor heirs, &c., great particularity must be observed. The law attempts to protect those who are unable to protect themselves, as in case of infants and lunatics.

It is impossible to enumerate the concerning land, but the conveyancer charged with the examination of title should see to it that the proceedings have passed the title beyond a peradventure. Ordinarily a decree binds all the parties to the suit, but either party may take a writ of error at any time within five years, and, if the decree is reversed, it is bad for a purchaser thereunder. If, however, the five years have elapsed, it is pretty safe to take the title. If, however, a bill of review is filed setting up fraud in obtaining the decree, and that the defendants had actual notice of the fraud, the decree will be set aside if the fraud and notice are proven.

CASES WHICH MAY ARISE IN EQUITY

There may be many defects in the title, but if the record fails to disclose them, a purchaser will be protected, unless the defects are proven to have been known to him when he purchased. So a bill pending concerning land is notice to all parties who deal with the land, and if they purchase they do so at their peril, taking the chance of the result of the suit.

CONDITIONS IN DEEDS.

It often occurs that a conveyance contains some conditions upon which the title depends. See to it that the condition has been performed. In 1833 a treaty was made with an Indian tribe whereby certain lands were ceded, in consideration of their vacating the vicinity of Lake Michigan. Sixteen hundred acres were ceded to one Billy Caldwell, an Indian in Cook County, but upon the condition that neither he nor his heirs should sell the same without the approval of the President. He did so, however, and the present owner, who is a son of the grantee of the Indian, desiring to borrow money, had his abstract brought down. It showed the treaty, but did not show that the President had ever given his consent, nor did the records at Washington show the fact. An examination of the authorities developed the construction the Courts gave to such a case, which is, first, that the approval of the President was a condition precedent to the sale by the Indian; and, second, that an approval now would not relate back, but must take effect as of its date.

DOWER.

Some of the most troublesome questions arising in an abstract are those relating to dower. Under the statute of Illinois a married woman has dower in an equitable estate. If, therefore, a quit-claim deed should be required to cut off an equity, care should be taken that the wife should join. But the estate must be complete, not merely an interest in the husband, which might ripen into an estate.

A woman cannot be divested of dower except as provided by law. Reference to the statute must be had to see if she has properly joined her husband in the release. She cannot release her dower to one while her husband conveys the fee to another. It is an appurtenant to the fee so long as the woman lives. After her husband's death she may release her dower—to the owner of the fee only, however—even before it is assigned; and after assignment she has a life estate which she may sell to any one.

I will call your attention now to TRUST ESTATES.

These may arise in several ways: by will, by marriage settlement, by declaration of trust, or deed for particular purposes. The owner of the fee may burden an estate with a trust, and may create or carve out life estates, some or all of them depending on contingencies. A simple declaration, duly executed by A, in whom the fee is, that he holds it in trust for B and his heirs forever, will, by operation of the statute, place the title in B. In order to prevent the operation of the statute, it is requisite that some power be granted by the conveyance which he cannot exercise unless the fee remains in him. Such an instrument should be drawn with great care, and every contingency should be provided for—that is, an event might happen which, if not provided for, would render all the rest uncertain, or possibly defeat the main features of the trust.

EVIDENCES OF TITLE.

The common law of England and statutes in aid thereof has been adopted in this State, by an express act of the General Assembly. Hence all the rules of the common law applicable to real estate are recognized here, except so far as they have been modified by statute. These statutes cannot be fully understood without a pretty thorough knowledge of the common law. Hence Coke, Saunders, and Shepperd are good authorities. Our statutes, so far as they relate to real estate, are but amendments of the common law, and of course, then, an understanding of those amendatory statutes must embrace a knowledge of the law amended. Starting off, then, with a knowledge of the common law, the student should become familiar with certain statutes, and, if he proposes to become a practitioner in Illinois, he should mingle his reading of the common law with those statutes which affect it.

There is one statute, however, which relates to titles especially in this county, which is of great importance, and which materially change the rules of evidence. As has been intimated, the evidence of title is a matter of law, and when deeds or instruments relating to land are once executed pursuant to the common law or a particular statute, yet a repeal or modification of the law does not ordinarily change the effect of those instruments, generally they run through on the line on which they started, so that it often becomes necessary to recur to a law which has been repealed.

These statutes, or, in fact, the law, may be subdivided into three general, those that relate to and declare:

First—The title.

Second—The remedy.

Third—The evidence.

Laws relating to

THE TITLE OR INTEREST

form a part of the contract. And so at common law a married woman labored under disability in regard to her separate property; but if a law were passed enabling her to deal with her property the same as if she were sole, and while such a statute were in force she should execute a warranty deed, it would be good, because by that statute she was authorized to execute such a contract. Now, if that statute were repealed it would not affect that deed, because the Constitution will not permit a law to be passed which impairs the obligation of a contract.

Now, as to the evidence, it is competent for the Legislature to declare the rules that shall govern in a contract between parties. The common law is, that an original deed must be produced, and its execution proven by witness. The statute is, that it may be proven by the certificate of acknowledgment. By statute, a certified copy of the record may be introduced in evidence if the original is lost. So that you will observe the importance of these statutes when the validity of a title is in question.

I have given you a very hasty glance of the questions that may arise in the examination of an abstract of title. I have not attempted to demonstrate the simplicity of an examination, but quite the contrary. And if I have accomplished any good at all it is in exhibiting the difficulties which embarrass the conveyancer. I would have but little confidence in the opinion of a lawyer who imagined himself competent to solve readily all the problems that might arise. My advice is, be thorough, go slow, and charge well for your services.

THE CITY TRANSIT QUESTION.

WHERE IS THE REMEDY?

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

CHICAGO, May 8.—The question of city and suburban transit is every day rising into greater importance. It is time that measures of relief should be seriously considered.

The horse railways, as at present managed, are becoming, from necessity, perhaps, an intolerable nuisance. This opinion is by no means an individual one; it is the opinion of ninety-nine citizens in a hundred, while the single exception is that of some one connected with or in the employ of the Companies. The forbearance of the public thus far has been a matter of wonder. It is a manifestation of generosity that the Companies certainly have not deserved. A limit, however, has been reached. It is in the name of an injured public that this remonstrance is written. I trust that it may serve as a note of wholesome warning. It is a general remark that "corporations have no souls." In this maxim there is much truth. In all public bodies it is difficult to fix personal responsibility. Their only aim is self-interest, that of drawing the greatest profit at the least cost. This tendency to encroachment is sure to go on until it is arrested by the reaction which injustice always produces. So long as the public will be satisfied to be herded like cattle, so long will there be a scarcity of cars, and so long will they be as uncleanly as they are. Why should seats be furnished, if passengers are content to stand? Is it not clearly a waste of capital? As it is now, so will it always be, unless this outrageous selfishness is rebuked, as it ought to be, by a powerful and united public sentiment. There is no excuse whatever of the prevailing system, of getting much and giving little. These Companies have been treated with astonishing liberality, to say the least. Why was the Wabash avenue charter granted on such easy terms? Those only who are in the secret can give an answer, and it is not likely that they will do so.

To the profits of monopoly there is always a limit. A reaction is then certain to set in, and an adequate remedy devised. The only radical cure for monopoly is competition. Competition should therefore be encouraged, instead of being strangled as it has been by the Common Council of this city. Competition would soon bring about a very different order of things. Instead of being jammed like animals into filthy cars, every one would have a seat, and the cars would be orderly and clean. Thus much would be assured. Ladies and children would ride in comfort and security instead of being crowded and insulted as is now the rule. The "one-horse" abomination would be promptly done away with, and no miserly plea of "loss" would be accepted from corporations that are making 50 per cent profit by swindling the community. Every man who rides in a horse car is entitled to a seat, and, if this is not furnished, he should not be compelled to pay. Let this be the law, and there will be cars enough and seats enough, otherwise, cars will be scarce and seats will be at a premium, until "the day of judgment." This is a matter that should be regulated by law, in the absence of competition. The present vexation should be stopped in some efficient manner. Public opinion is now our only reliance.

There is no other city where such gross imposition would be tolerated. The proverbial good nature of the Chicago people has been tested in the severest manner. It is time for a change. It is time that these corporations should be taught that the public have rights which must be respected.

How is a change to be brought about? Simply, by holding the Companies strictly to the letter and the spirit of their charters, and by the enactment of such salutary laws as will secure a reasonable degree of regard to the convenience and comfort of the public. On the South Side the City Railway Company have been granted for a limited period an absolute monopoly, which, in justice to the people, should never have been permitted.

The demand for better means of transit to the suburbs and within the city limits is becoming every day more imperative. The horse-car system, however much improved, will never fully supply the public necessity. The main trunk railroads will only furnish accommodation to those dwelling along their lines. The tens of thousands who live in the suburbs demand some other more effectual and rapid mode of transit. This can readily be afforded by the construction of elevated railways radiating from the heart of the city, like the spokes of a wheel, to different points of the circumference. Such roads can be built with absolute security and at moderate cost. That they would pay immensely is beyond a doubt.

I entertain no question that the construction of a single elevated line to the suburbs would successfully solve the transit problem. Other lines would immediately follow, and all the through travel would patronize these roads. The great economy in time, and the immensely greater comfort, would soon be appreciated by a long-suffering public. The effect upon suburban property would be prodigious. There is now such a road in operation in New York City, which is rapidly growing into favor. The workings of it and its results should be carefully looked into. I believe they would prove both encouraging and satisfactory. Relieved of the through travel, the horse-car system would accommodate the local travel much more efficiently than it now does. In fact, it does not accommodate any one at present. Instead of a nuisance, as it now is, it would become a convenience. The public complaint would cease, no one would be injured, while the community would be largely benefited. The horse-cars now are completely filled with through passengers, who occupy the seats at starting, and retain them throughout. All others have to stand, breathing a contaminated air, and inconvencing those who are so fortunate as to have seats.

Something must be done, and that speedily. Forbearance can go no farther. The necessity of the case is my apology for intruding on your columns. Some one must speak, and in this instance I am confident I am but the mouthpiece of the public thought. It is the duty of the press to give to such utterance its powerful support. I trust it will do so. A revolution must then occur. The loss of time, the trial of temper, and the injury to health, which are affecting the public under the present "cattle-car" system, demand reform, and in some shape relief must come.

J. ESAIAS WARREN.

FRAUDULENT SUBDIVISIONS.

AN EASY CURE.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

CHICAGO, May 7.—The real-estate article of last Sunday's TRIBUNE contained an interesting statement about the fraudulent suburban subdivisions, and the expensive labor they devolve on the Assessors.

Now, I wish to call attention to some facts which appear on the record in regard to the "Boulevard Additions" of G. W. Scott, in the Town of Worth, referred to in that article, and in view of these facts I cannot see how Gen. Lieb, or any other officials, need have been to any such expense of books and clerk-hire in extending taxes on these lots. There are in all 160 acres of Sec. 19, Town of Worth, subdivided by Scott, and known as his boulevard additions. One 40-acre tract of this 160 acres is, I believe, subdivided into comparatively fair-sized lots 18 feet by 80, though I have not examined the record as to this. The rest of the said acres appears on the records in some twelve subdivisions of ten acres each. A plat of lots appears for each of these ten acres, the lots in each plat numbering 672, or 8,064 lots in the 120 acres.

Now, does calling a thing a lot make it a lot? To have lots in these subdivisions the lots should be surveyed, the streets measured, and the dimensions of lots and width of streets certified to by the surveyor, and entered on the record, should they not? Now, perhaps you will not believe it without examination of the record, but neither those lots nor streets have ever been surveyed. The certificate of the Surveyor, Mr. Schultze, appended to the record only purports to give the outside dimensions of each 10-acre piece, and that he gives only in chains and links.

He will tell you also, as he has told me, that he never did survey or pretend to survey any lots or streets in these additions, but that these were marked out on the plat after he had signed the certificate appended, but no dimensions given.

Mr. Scott has merely made a sort of checker-board of each rectangular 10-acre piece, placed numbers in what look like blocks and lots, and handed them in for record. As the Recorder used to get so much a lot for recording a subdivision, the job of 8,000 lots was too good a one to be criticised too closely, and the fraud became a record. There is, however, no pretense on the record of any size to lots or width to streets. But how this could escape the notice of county officials who are put to so much trouble in extending taxes on these myths of lots is more than I can understand. There are no lots there. There are only acres owned probably yet by G. W. Scott. Scott has not parted with any title by all the deeds he has given of lots in those additions, and it seems to me he may be liable to each buyer for obtaining money under false pretenses. Of this, however, I express no opinion.

This, however, seems plain to me: that, if the county officers have spent much time and money in handling these subdivisions on their tax-books, they have done what a few minutes' examination of the records would have shown them to be unnecessary.

WOMAN.

The Saratoga chap who married a girl last summer, having fallen in love with her beautiful complexion, says now that it was a "skin game."

Strawberries have appeared at the refreshment saloons, and for a while young men with light purses will be cautious how they invite the girls out.

Mrs. Keen, of Springfield, declined to allow her daughters to take part in a spelling-match because she heard somebody say that knotty words would be given out.

These are the nights for star-gazing with your sweetheart, even if you are kept busy brushing the dew from her lips with your moustache, to keep it from getting into her throat and giving her the diphtheria.

Lewis remarks that most any woman can sit down gracefully in a street car, but not one in a hundred can descend from the back end of a buggy when the horse is running away without feeling that she's going to overdo the thing.

"You wring my bosom," said a despairing Baltimore lover to a coquettish girl whom he had long sought in marriage. His burst of grief decided her, and, putting out her hand, she softly murmured, "Well! ring my finger, if you will be the happier for it; I will vex you no longer."

A girl out West ate seven pounds of heavy wedding-cake, in order that she might dream of her future husband. She dreamed that a man with teeth a foot long, dog's feet, and a hair-lip, sat on her all night; and, rather than marry him, she contemplates suicide and an early tomb, where the bobolinks sing.

In Boston the other day a vain young fellow, dressed in a new spring suit, called at the house of a lady acquaintance and asked her how she thought he looked. "You remind me of early green peas," was the answer. He was obliged to depart without a solution of this conundrum, but understood it afterwards when he heard a marketman say that early peas looked nice, but were very insipid.

A gentleman was endeavoring to enjoy an evening in the company of a young lady upon whom he called, but found a serious obstacle in the person of a stern father, who at length very plainly intimated that the hour for retiring had arrived. "I think you are correct, my dear sir," returned the unabashed young man. "We have been waiting to have you go to bed for over an hour."

Susan Jane must have been scantily dressed when she was looking out for her lover and sang:

He'll come to-night; the wind's at rest,
The moon is full and fair;
I'll wear the dress that pleased him best—
A ribbon in my hair.

"O gracious, no!" exclaimed Mrs. Marrowfat to Mrs. Quoggs, raising her hands and speaking in a very excited tone. "She was so ill when her new bonnet came home that she couldn't get up; but, dear sakes! Jane, that didn't matter nothing, for she just put her hat on, and lay with her head out of the window the whole afternoon."

A Western editor exclaimed: "Boston needn't attempt to sell any of her 'shirt-bosoms, warranted not to rumple,' in this locality. Not much! The sigh, the exclamation, the sweet, tremulous accent, the delicious fragrance of her hair and breath—all these may pass away in a moment, but the rumpled shirt-bosom remains ever with you as a present reminder of past joys."

As they entered a dry-goods store yesterday you would have said that love dwelt in both hearts, and that a dove of peace roosted on every shingle on the roof of their abiding-place. She saw a lovely dress, and she begged him to buy, but he replied: "I can't, darling, not before next week." "Can't you, dear?" she smiled. "Well, I will wait." They had hardly passed out the door before he said: "I'd like to see myself getting that dress!" And she answered: "You couldn't buy one side of it, and if you could you are too stingy and mean to do it!"

NAMELESS.

There is a name so sweet, so dear,
That I could never write it here,
Where careless eyes, perchance, might see,—
The name a loved one gave to me:
A little name, one simple word,
Soft as the twitter of a bird
Brooding above her tiny nest;
But, oh! it is the dearest, best;
And softly I'll that name repeat
Until my heart shall cease to beat!

There is a little, plaintive song,
My heart repeats the whole day long;
I heard it once at day's decline,
Low breath'd by lips close-pressed to mine.
I would not that a careless ear
Should catch the song I love to hear;
So my heart's throbbings come and go
As to myself I breathe it low:
Soul-music holy, glad and deep,
Within my heart of hearts I keep.

There is a heart so warm and true,
And eyes of pure and tender hue;
I know full well I need not fear
What Fate may bring, if they are near.
Oh! fond, true faith on which I rest,
And own myself so richly blest!
Oh! faithful friend, for whom I yearn,
And count the hours till they return:
The name, the song, the heart I own,
I keep for thee, and thee alone!

A Remarkable Picture.

Alma-Tadema has just finished a remarkable picture in three compartments, called the "Tragedy of an Honest Wife." Chilperic, King of the Franks, having many wives, made an offer to the father of Brunhild for his youngest daughter, Galsuinthe, in marriage, pledging himself to dismiss all her predecessors. This he did, but Ferdegunda, one of the discarded wives, set herself to win back her lover, and one morning Galsuinthe was found strangled in bed. But when she was buried a great miracle happened, for the lamp over her tomb fell on the pavement, but, instead of being broken, the pavement gave way to receive it, and it burned on in the marble. In the three separate portions of his picture Mr. Alma-Tadema shows Fredegunda looking from her window on the marriage of Chilperic and her rival; the dawning of day in Galsuinthe's apartment after the murder; and the crypt with the lamp burning in the pavement above the grave, near which a monk is praying."

THE DRAMA.

A NOTEWORTHY WEEK.

The past week has been principally notable for the fact that it is the first within the memory of Chicagoans of the present generation which has been utterly without a dramatic entertainment. The occupation of the star theatres by opera bouffe companies under the same management, and of the stock theatre by Emerson's Minstrels, left the legitimate nothing. The week has been uneventful in consequence. Reference to it is not necessary. For the present week, however, the public will find material enough for patronage in the simultaneous arrival in this city of the greatest modern actresses, Mme. Ristori and Mrs. Lander.

M'VICKER'S THEATRE.

It is, perhaps, unnecessary to add to the announcement of Mme. Ristori's coming any eulogistic reference to her triumphs. It would be impertinent to the reader to speak of the exalted artist's reputation, for everybody who is in the habit of attending the theatre is supposed to know of her, since it is but six years since she was in this country. That engagement was memorable alike to herself and the American public, and the present is equally so. After holding a position on the stage which none could approach, she, like our tragedian, Charlotte Cushman, is about to retire from it into private life. Her present tour under the management of Messrs. Grau & Chizzola partakes of the nature of a farewell. This phraseology has been somewhat misinterpreted of late, and perhaps the less one alludes to it the more pleasant the recollection. Mme. Ristori, however, is making a tour of the world. Before playing in New York this season, she had played in the great cities of Europe,—London, Berlin, Paris, Madrid, and St. Petersburg, and more lately in Mexico, Havana, Rio Janeiro, and Lima. Before she retires she will have visited Melbourne, Sydney, and the other cities of Australia, Pekin, Hong Kong, Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras, thus accomplishing a circuit of the entire civilized world, with whose limits, it is not too much to say, her fame is conterminous. San Francisco is, of course, the last American city in which she will play, for she takes her passage thence to Australia. There is this drawback about a performance by Mme. Ristori. She plays exclusively in Italian. There is, however, this accompanying compensation: she brings a remarkably good company with her. Those who saw Sig. Salvini will call to mind the automatic perfection with which his pieces were rendered by his company, and the astonishing power he displayed of conveying the meaning of his words without the aid of a libretto. Equal, if not greater, enjoyment may be expected of Mme. Ristori's performances. There will be but six, all told, for Saturday night there will be none. The matinee will be her last performance in Chicago. Monday night she appears as Elizabeth in Giacometti's celebrated drama of that name. Tuesday evening she will act Marie Antoinette. The play is also by Giacometti. Wednesday evening Victor Hugo's tragedy, "Lucretia Borgia," will be given, with Mme. Ristori in the title role; Thursday evening "Marie Stuart," and Friday evening "Medea," to be followed by the sleep-walking scene from "Macbeth," which will be rendered in English. Saturday afternoon "Marie Antoinette" will be repeated.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

At the Academy of Music Mrs. F. W. Lander will play for one week only, and that, too, in almost the same pieces. She comes here supported by a stock company in which appear the familiar names of Frank Lawlor, Mrs. Myers, and Miss M. Gallagher. Mr. J. H. Taylor, too, is a member of the company. He is famous for his personation of the Earl of Essex, which is nearly as well known as Mrs. Lander's Queen Elizabeth. The bill for the week is as follows: Monday and Tuesday evenings, "Elizabeth"; Wednesday and Thursday evenings, "Marie Antoinette"; Friday night, for the benefit of Mrs. Lander, and Saturday, for the first time in Chicago in some years, "Antony and Cleopatra." There will be Wednesday and Saturday Matinees.

THE BRYANT BENEFIT.

The death of the famous minstrel, Dan Bryant, left his family in straitened circumstances, as everybody knows. The benefit performances given for them at the different theatres in New York and other parts of the country, together with the spontaneous contribution to a general fund by members of the profession and admirers of the deceased, were among the most interesting events of the season. They netted a handsome sum. Chicago has not yet contributed to the fund, but under the management of Mr. Dan O'Hara, City Treasurer, a benefit performance will be given with this object in view this evening at the Academy of Music. Mr. O'Hara was an intimate friend of the family, and feels called upon to head a movement which only needed a leader. The artists of this city have volunteered with customary readiness, and the bill contains several pieces. Considering the number of our actors at present away from home, the showing is large. The first piece on the bill is the comedy "Little Toddlekins," in which Mr. Fred Maeder, Mme. Rena, Frank Pierie, Frank Maeder, Mrs. C. F. Maeder, and Miss Marie Wilton, will play. Following this, Miss Emily Soldene and Miss Clara Vesey, the prettiest member of the company, will sing "The Minstrel Boy," from Moore. The fourth act of "Camille" follows, Miss Louie Lord taking the part of Camille. Miss Lord is not a stranger in Chicago, having long been a resident in this city. The has not played here, however, in many years. She will be supported by Mr. Sam Piercy and others. Mr. W. H. Rice, the soprano of the Emerson company, will give an act; Billy Rice, Little Mac, and George Richards will play "The Mysterious Stranger," a roaring farce; the entertainment closing with a musical melange in which Messrs. Kayne, Surridge, Kimberly, Dew, Goodwillie, and Fitzpatrick participate. Others have volunteered, but their offers have been thankfully declined on account of the length of the bill. It is not unlikely that the object of the entertainment will outweigh the scruples against Sunday entertainments held by many charitable persons.

HOOLEY'S THEATRE.

The minstrel company in possession of Hooley's Theatre just at present, under the management of Tom Maguire, have been playing during the week to the best business of the season. They have nightly turned away numbers of visitors who have come too late to obtain seats, and on more than one occasion have been unable to supply even standing-room to those who wished it. This looks well for the party, and, as success is deserved, everybody will be glad to learn that it has been met with. The company, as before observed, is the best there is in the country at the present time, certainly the best that ever came West. Emerson is one of the funniest and neatest minstrels ever seen on the boards, and, with the other favorites, Cotton, Arlington, Kemble, Billy Rice, and Little Mac, should carry all before him. The opening bill was arranged in a hurry. The company arrived here Saturday, and had little time to prepare for the campaign. It was good in almost every respect, but will be improved this week. A change for the better might be made, and is suggested to the management. It is in relation to the performance of Mr. W. H. Rice, which is coarse and displeasing to Chicago audiences. The entertainment is so refreshingly free from anything else which could give offense that this becomes particularly noticeable. An entire change of programme is announced. In the first part are the usual comic songs and sentimental ballads, jokes, and characteristic nonsense. Arlington, in the second part, leads off with his banjo solos; Billy Rice and Con Murphy play the sketch "The Invaded Studio;" Emerson and Cotton play "That Rascal Billy;" Little Mac has his inimitable act; Norcross, W. H. Rice, and Arlington play another sketch, "Big-Bone-Ann-Sir," and Emerson comes on as "Muldoon, the Solid Man." The performance concludes with the laughable farce "Troubles in the Family."

Mr. Maguire is not a resident of Chicago, and is, consequently, not aware of the existence of an ordinance forbidding the use of camp-chairs in theatres. The aisles are nightly filled with these extempore seats in violation of the city's commands. It is needless to say that the ordinance is extremely necessary and should be enforced.

THE ADELPHI.

The "Patchwork" company, headed by Mr. Nate Salsbury, have been playing to good houses at the Adelphi during the week, and start out for the country Monday night. Mr. Salsbury is an actor of great versatility, and possesses the faculty of imitation to an unusual degree. His imitations of celebrated actors are remarkably lifelike and amusing. He has, during his engagement at the Adelphi, shown a talent for burlesque which is equally good. He sings well, handles the banjo with the skill of an artist, and is ready with impromptu speeches and action. Mr. Ed Marble is a favorite low comedian in Chicago, and is full of broad fun, which his delicate figure and graceful carriage would not lead one to suspect. Mr. Webster and Miss Nellie McHenry were members of Hooley's company, and, in their respective lines, were favorites. Miss Katie Wilson has not played much in Chicago this season, but was one of the features at the Academy of Music. She is a bright, vivacious, and pretty little soubrette, and a valuable addition to a burlesque company which aims to please without offending in even the most insignificant point.

GOSSIP.

The gossip of the week points to two changes which are likely to occur. One is that a lady, not long ago a favorite actress in this city, who left the stage to marry a wealthy and highly-esteemed gentleman of Chicago, is about to become a manageress. She has applied, so says rumor, for the lease of the theatre at which she formerly played as leading lady, and will manage it herself. The understanding is that her husband is opposed to her appearing again before the foot-lights, and that her theatrical experiences will consequently be confined to management.

The other rumor is to the effect that after their season at Hooley's the "local favorites" of Emerson's Minstrel Company will remain in Chicago and take up their quarters at the Grand Opera-House, under the business management of Mr. J. H. McVicker.

THE CINCINNATI FESTIVAL.

As very many of our musical citizens intend to go to Cincinnati for at least a day or two during the Festival, we make the following announcement of the dates of the principal numbers, so that they may select the performances they prefer to attend:

Tuesday—"Lohengrin," Brahms' "Triumph Lied."
Wednesday—"Elijah."
Thursday—Bach's "Magnificat" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.
Friday—Schubert's Ninth Symphony and Liszt's "Prometheus."

LOCAL GOSSIP.

Chicago will be well represented musically in Europe this season, as several of our prominent musicians are contemplating a visit there for purposes of study. Among those who will leave us in the early summer is Miss Jessica Haskell, the well-known soprano, who purposes going to Paris to put herself under the tuition of Garcia. Miss Haskell has long been a prominent figure in our local musical world, both as a church and concert singer, and her name has been pleasantly familiar upon almost every programme of importance during the past six or eight years. She is a young and promising singer, full of ambition and industry, and, under the tuition she would receive abroad, especially under such a teacher as Viardot-Garcia, we have little doubt that she will return to us with greatly increased powers, and with a finish that will give her a very prominent place among musicians, and one that will be much more than local in character. In view of her early departure, we understand that her friends are organizing a testimonial concert to be given her in a few weeks, which will undoubtedly not only be a very flattering personal compliment, but will very materially aid her in the prosecution of her plans to success. She will take with her the best wishes of a host of friends.

Mr. Pratt, the pianist, also contemplates going to Europe, and will give a farewell concert, June 10, at Farwell Hall, the first rehearsal of which will be held at Reed's Temple of Music Thursday. All the members of Mr. Pratt's old chorus are invited to be present. Miss Glenn leaves in June, and we understand that Mrs Schoonhoven will also go this summer.

Mr. Louis Falk, the organist, having returned from his trip and settled down, will now devote himself very largely to teaching this summer.

A complimentary concert will be given to Mrs. William Carroll, the accomplished harpist and pianist, Tuesday evening, at Martine's Hall, cor. of Indiana avenue and Twenty-second street. Miss Jessie Haskell, Mr. Ledochowski, Mr. Heman Allen, the Temple Quartet, and others will assist.

The recent Linda Gilbert concert in New York does not seem to have been a very decided success.

There will be a praise service at Plymouth Church this evening, under the direction of Mr. L. V. Flagler, the organist, with the following programme:

"Festival Te Deum" in A .... Flagler.
Gloria Patri .... Flagler.
"O, for the Wings of a Dove" .... Mendelssohn.
"Savior, Source of Every Blessing" .... Schumann.
"Hear My Prayer" (arranged) .... Gounod.
Organ Postlude .... Bach.

THE OPERA.

Brignoli reappeared in London recently, after an absence of eight years. The critics say his voice is not what it was once, but he uses it with such skill as well nigh to hide the ravages of time. The London Times says of his performance in "Martha": "The Lionello was Signor Brignoli, who, though he has deserted us so long for foreign parts, and especially for the United States of America, was not the less cordially received. This artist's voice may not be what it used to be,—and what voice can forever retain its prime? But, on the other hand, his method of delivery and his style of phrasing are, as they have always been, legitimate, which enables him to give expression without undue force,—a gift not so common now as it was wont to be. This was especially shown in the amorous soliloquy, 'M'appari tutt' amor,' which, as might have been expected, he had to sing twice."

The Athenæum does not join with the daily journals of London in awarding unqualified praise to pretty Miss Thalberg. It says: "We may ask, despite the cheers when Mlle. Thalberg made her début, what would have been her fate had she not appeared before the public with such a very popular name? Neither in acting nor in singing did she give indications of any amount of ability beyond that of a very conventional comprimaria, trained for a special part."

Madame Nilsson's representations have been extended to six, at the Theatre de la Monnaie, in Brussels, such was her success. Madame Patti has been singing at Pesth with the same eclat as in Vienna.

C. D. Hess is now the chief representative of English opera in this country. After organizing the Parepa company he formed the Kellogg troupe, and likely he will join hands with Carl Rosa next season.

A Milwaukee musician, C. H. M. Tobey, has composed an operetta called "The Innkeeper's Daughter," having six characters in the cast. It is to be brought out this month.

Neuendorff boasts of having secured Mme. Peschka-Leutner and Wachtel, with a superb German opera company, for the coming season.

On dit, that Mapleson's Italian opera company from Drury Lane, London (Her Majesty's opera), will give a season at the New York Academy of Music next fall.

Signor Campanini has effected his rentree at Drury Lane Theatre, in London, in "Lucrezia Borgia."

Mlle. Albani has reappeared at Covent Garden in "La Sonnambula." She is announced to sing Elsa on May 8.

"Well, I've lived here for thirty," continued the old man, "and I guess I know how to spell as well as you do."—Detroit Free Press.

MEETING OF THIRD GENERAL COUNCIL.

The Third General Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church of the United States assembles in this city Wednesday morning at Christ Church. The Council is the law-making power of the Church, bearing the same relation to that denomination that the Presbytery does to the Presbyterian Church and the General Conference to the Methodist. The denomination is new, and compared with the older Churches is numerically weak. It is estimated, however, that the denomination has now about forty active ministers and as many healthy parishes, and in the aggregate in the neighborhood of 5,000 communicants, which is a creditable showing in view of the fact that two years ago such a Church was without existence. From the organization of the Church, its growth has been steady and reliable in most of the large cities of the country.

IN THIS CITY,

for instance, the denomination has grown from one church a little over a year ago to six, all of which are regarded as being on a permanent footing. Christ Church, the seat of the coming Council, was the first organized in Chicago, the growth of which in the past year has necessitated the calling of an associate Rector. One of the features of the success of the Church has been its economy in church edifices, founded upon the purpose of avoiding debt. This has been a strength to the denomination almost beyond computation, from the fact that at this day the masses are, in a measure, kept aloof from the various denominations by the enormity of old debts they must shoulder along with the aged creeds and faiths of the fathers.

A GREAT DEAL OF WORK TO BE DONE

by those that follow. In church literature they have done just enough work to leave the Church without any other form of faith than that adopted 200 years ago by the Protestant Episcopal Church. The principal labor of the coming Council will be, then, to adopt articles of religion which will be done either by a revision of the original Thirty-nine Articles or by the substituting of new ones. The latter proposition seems to meet with great favor, both by the clergy and laity, coming from the demand for simplicity and something better adapted to the present age of the world and the progressive strides of the public mind.

Another matter of no secondary importance which will come before the Council is the consideration of the application of

THE FREE CHURCH OF ENGLAND

for connection with the Reformed Church. The Free Church is very much in the same condition in Europe as the Reformed Church is in this country. It is using the liturgy of the Church of England, "Protestantly" revised, which is not entirely dissimilar from that of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States. In this situation it is anxious for an organic connection with the Reformed Church, which appears to be held in equal favor on either side of the waters. If the Council should accede to the demand, the result would be the planting of the Reformed Church in Europe, an achievement little dreamed of at the formation of the Church, especially in so short a space of time. Other matters of minor importance will come before the Council, among others most likely the revision of some of the work of former Councils.

THE COUNCIL

will be composed of a Rector from each parish of the country, with several distinguished visitors from British America. In addition to the clerical delegates each parish will be entitled to a lay delegate for every fifty communicants. It is estimated that about 125 persons will be present, the more distinguished among whom will be the Rt. Rev. Bishop Cummins, D. D., of Baltimore, who will preside; the Rev. W. T. Sabine and Dr. Leacock, of New York; the Rev. Dr. W. R. Nicholson, Philadelphia; the Rev. Dr. Dunne, Louisville; and the Rev. Dr. Howard Smith, New Jersey.

The Council will convene at 10:30 Wednesday morning. Communion services will be the first order of exercises, to be followed with a sermon by Bishop Cummins. Two business sessions will be held each day, and service and sermon each evening.

WHAT IS HOPED FOR.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

CHICAGO, May 8.—The announcement of the gathering of the Third General Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church in this city on Wednesday next is calculated to interest the unprejudiced portion of our community who are not connected with that organization. They, at least, will read the record of the proceedings of the Council with dispassionate eyes.

It is understood that legislation will be had in connection with the Thirty-nine Articles. However unwilling the clerical and lay members of the Council may feel to be judged solely by the spirit and influence of the work contemplated, such nevertheless will inevitably prove to be the sole criteria.

We, of Chicago, have recently had experience of two Episcopal Conventions that have left a distinct impression upon the public mind. Whatever may be the estimate of the effect of these two assemblages in the minds of the interested ecclesiastics who constituted their personnel, that produced upon the general public is distinct enough for recognition, even across the interval that already separates them from us. The two Conventions displayed so little of the spirit which even the world looks for in a Christian gentleman,—much more in a Christian clergyman,—and exhibited to such an extent the prevailing disposition of men engaged in political intrigue that, to some, the sacred rites by which the proceedings were inaugurated were painfully profane. Somehow the fact cannot be covered up that the first councils of the Church were not the mere mouth-pieces of so-called "Chancellors," and their subservient factors. No less can men forget that the bitter war of sections which has been fostered during the past few years would never have disturbed the peace of the Church if it had observed the counsels of its old martyr, the wise tentmaker of Cilicia. What "catholicity" is worth a moment's thought that is not included in his syllabus: "Neither Jew nor Gentile, neither bond nor free"?

Now, in the First Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church there was no element of discord. The glow of enthusiasm had not yet left the cheeks of the men who gathered in New York to separate themselves from an old communion and to form a new one. The community of their circumstances insured unity. It is different to-day. In one sense, the Reformed Episcopal Church is now neither new nor young. In the last quarter of the nineteenth century, and in this country especially, youth and novelty disappear at a rate different from that observable elsewhere in earlier times. The disc of the new planet has been well projected upon the ecclesiastical meridian. The movement has acquired enough momentum to develop the competitions and complications of older organizations; and these will assuredly operate in this coming week when it is to be on trial before our eyes. It has to-day two Bishops more than had the Church from which it separated during the first century after its establishment on these shores. Its representatives outnumber those that attended the first Council of the primitive Church. It is is said that there are five churches in this city alone connected with the organization.

It must therefore perforce take position with its sister Churches before the tribunal of public opinion during its coming session. If it shall be made to appear clearly that its members stand upon no such narrow foundation as that which failed to sustain the other Conventions referred to; if it is evident that they are not actuated by petty notions, if they shall legislate in a broad, catholic, and comprehensive spirit; if they shall so reconstruct the Thirty-nine Articles that every sincere Christian man and woman, testing them by the Scriptures alone, can heartily assent to them, if they shall safely steer between the Scylla and Charybdis of Arminianism and Calvinism without sacrificing one iota of essential evangelical truth; and if, above all, there is displayed throughout such a spirit of Christian charity as will make a bright contrast with that which moved the other Conventions, then they will not alone have reason to congratulate themselves upon the issue. The world will congratulate itself upon the change.

One word more,—they have already invited to the communion table "all who love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity." Let them beware lest, in the extreme narrowness of schoolmen, they forbid him to approach who cannot fit to himself the outworn garments of a dead sectarianism. Generations of men and women who have forever exchanged these rags for the robes of the redeemed will sing with rejoicing over such reformation in any Church.

INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE.

THE OLD TESTAMENT VS. THE NEW.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

With all the books which have been written about the Bible, there seems to be no definite idea in the mind of most believers as to what is meant by its inspiration. There are mountains of commentaries treating of occult meanings, of separate passages, but a great lack of amplified and general views of the whole collection, of the books contained in it; and, by calling the attention of Biblical scholars to some of the difficulties which have presented themselves to one earnest seeker after truth, I shall hope to bring out, for the benefit of the unlearned, the best thought of some of those divines who do not hesitate to avail themselves of the secular press to spread a knowledge of the truth.

Take, first, the question of wealth, or worldly prosperity, and note the teachings of the Bible on this head. Is not the central idea of the whole Jewish system "corn and wine"? Through all the books of the Pentateuch, the leading dogma is, that wealth and power are the rewards of righteousness. The man who obeys God is to be rich, and great, and powerful, as a reward of his obedience; while the sinner is to be punished for his sin by poverty and the loss of liberty and children. The entire Law of Moses, from beginning to end, is founded on this central idea of reward and punishment in this life, and in this life alone. There is no hint of a hereafter. Heaven and Hell were alike unknown to the Mosaic theology; and, for some twenty centuries, this central doctrine of what we have been taught to believe was then the only Church on earth was, that a man's acceptance with God could be accurately measured by the extent of his lands, number of his children, wives, servants, cattle, and silver coins, and the height of his honors. True, there were doubters, of whom David seems to have been the first. He was a philosopher, and, looking on some of the prosperous men of his day, pronounced them "wicked," even though they "flourished like a green bay tree." The discovery seems to have unsettled his faith; for he says, "My feet had well nigh slipped." He doubted his standing ground, and not until he "went into the house of God," and got a new revelation, was he able to "vindicate the ways of God to man." He saw that the wicked, no matter how prosperous, "stood on slippery places;" but, even then, he seems to have felt that their punishment was to come in this life.

Of all the Old-Testament writers, the author or amanuensis of Job alone seems to have had a definite idea of what we now regard as truth, of what Christ taught as such, viz.: That calamities are no evidence of God's displeasure. The eighteen upon whom the tower of Siloam fell were not sinners above others who dwelt in Jerusalem; and Christ, in teaching this, was evidently striking at the still living belief in the old dogma, which bore to the Mosaic system the same relation that salvation by faith alone now bears to the teachings of Paul.

Now, the God that made this universe is one God. Even regarded as a Trinity, He is a perfect Unity. There is, and can be, no discord between Father, Son, and Spirit, any more than between Infinite Power, Love, and Justice; and how does it come that He whose indisputable works are so full of harmony should have revealed a system of religion at one time so contradictory to that which was to follow it?

How can it be that the same God should, for centuries and centuries, teach as truth that which He occupies all the succeeding centuries in contradicting?

How is it possible that the same God taught that wealth was the sign of His favor, and that "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of Heaven"?

Let any one compare the theology of Moses with that of Christ on this one point, the significance of wealth, and attempt to reconcile them as the work of the same author, the offspring of the same spirit. To me the task has long been hopeless on any other hypothesis than annihilation of the great mass of the people who lived in all the ages preceding the coming of Christ. I cannot believe that the Creator who endowed the smallest animalcule with all the faculties necessary to its welfare, and who accomplishes the most sublime results by the simplest means, did ever make the parade we read of in the Old Testament, in order to teach immortal beings that He would give them plenty to eat if they kept all His commandments, but would visit them with famine if they disobeyed.

Of what consequence was their corn and wine, their milk and honey, and independent nationality, if, through all eternity, they were to suffer for sin, or enjoy the rewards of righteousness?

If we assume that the people to whom the revelation through Moses was addressed were so entirely of this earth, earthy, that they had no existence after death, except the few individuals with whom the Deity had special communication, and who are specially signalized as immortal, the Old-Testament Scriptures become intelligible as Divine revelation, if we reconcile the "days" of creation with geological periods of formation. This would harmonize with the theory of evolution also, and the Jews of long ago become the connecting link between the highest type of animals and that class of beings who are to outlive the sun. Nay, not only the Jews, but all other nations, and tongues, and peoples, to whom the future life has never been revealed. As a revelation to people who had no existence after death, the Old Testament is as important a link in God's moral and mental process of evolution as the men to whom it was addressed in the physical development of created intelligences; but, as addressed to people who would only begin to live when its rewards and punishments were ended, it is incomprehensible as a work of Infinite Wisdom. I write in all reverence for that which, from infancy, I have been taught to hold sacred as "the Word of God," and state what seems to me insurmountable difficulties in the way of any theory of the inspiration of Scripture with which I am acquainted, and in anxious hope that some one of clearer vision will enlighten, not only me, but the tens of thousands who are struggling with this problem of inspiration.

OTHER QUESTIONS FOR MR. REED.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

CHICAGO, May 8.—The article of Charles H. Reed, in Sunday's TRIBUNE, giving a history of the New Testament, I read with a good deal of interest; and, as I notice that he is well versed in Biblical literature, I respectfully request him to answer, in next Sunday's TRIBUNE, the three following questions:

First—Inasmuch as Matthew deduces the genealogy of Joseph from Solomon, while Luke traces it from Nathan, the brother of Solomon, which of these accounts, if either, is inspired?

Second—Of what consequence is the genealogy of Joseph, since he was not the father of Christ, and how does his descent from David show that Christ was "of the seed of David"?

Third—If the genealogy of Christ, on the human side, was of any consequence, why was it not traced through Mary, who was really his mother? W.

RITUALISTIC BROTHERHOODS.

THEIR NAME AND CREED.

The New York Sun of a late date has an article evidently contributed by some one well up in the technicalities of their religious phraseology, giving an account of the various brotherhoods among the English Ritualists. The following is made up from the information therein contained:

About ten years ago the Rev. Charles C. Grafton, now of Boston, made a visit to the Rev. Richard Meux Benson, Vicar of Cowley, England. Mr. Grafton had long cherished the idea of forming a fraternity, the primary object of which should be the cultivation of the spiritual life of its members, "following the counsels of perfection given by our Blessed Lord to those who are able to receive them, in a life of entire dedication to His service in voluntary poverty, chastity, and obedience. Mr. Grafton, in the course of his visit, opened the subject to Mr. Benson, and found in him an earnest sympathizer. The result was a compact leading to the foundation of the Brotherhood of a society whose purpose is to form an organization of clergymen who are willing to lead simple lives and devote all their energies to the work of proclaiming the Gospel. The elevation of the tone of clerical life is one object of the Society, and earnest missionary work the other.

ST. JOHN THE EVANGELIST,

Since the foundation of their house at Cowley they have increased until they now have twenty-five mission priests. They have houses also in India, at Bombay and Calcutta, and one in Boston, at 22 Staniford street. There is also a similar society in England, called "The Society of the Holy Ghost." Their headquarters is at Stoke-upon-Terne, Shropshire, in the Diocese of Lichfield. They have all things in common, and take only what is necessary for their support in the most economical way. The rules of the house at Cowley require all to rise at 5:30 a. m. For every hour there is an allotted duty. Frequent devotional exercises break up the day. The morning is given to study. The hours of recreation in the latter part of the day are spent in cultivating the garden. During the meals, which are eaten in silence, some brother reads from the Scriptures. At a fixed hour all retire.

THE HOLY PARACLETE,

or the Religious Order of Repentance, is one of those whose object is "to restore the religious life for men in the English Church; to promote the profession and practice of the doctrine, discipline, and worship of the Church of the first seven centuries, and to glorify God by the training of mission preachers, and the formation of schools and orphanages." "Because St. Columba, speaking mystically, has said, 'A threefold cord is not easily broken,' there are three degrees in this order."

THE PRIORY OF SAINTS PETER AND PAUL

is a Brotherhood which was started in 1866, and is based on the old Augustinian Rule, according to which the Brethren are bound to obey the Præpositus or Prior, multo magis, the presbyter or priest (1—3), the Rev. George Nugee, the then vicar of the parish, who founded the House. The first order is strictly clerical, and corresponds to the Canons Regular of the Augustinian Order. It is intended to develop this into a Preaching Order for mission work in London (in which the original community is now being re-established) and in other large towns in England. The second order is that of Lay Brothers, corresponding to the Augustinian Friars. Those who are qualified train for Holy Orders. There are also Serving Brothers, in the work of the house, garden, farm, buildings, &c. The chapel, refectory, cloister, library, and dormitories have been built on the monastic model. A third order consists of clergy, and laymen living in the world and following their several callings.

THE CONFRATERNITY OF THE BLESSED SACRAMENT of the Body and Blood of Christ is the largest and most significant organization as showing the development of religious sentiment in the English Church within the last thirteen years. This Confraternity, founded in 1862, and amalgamated with the Society of the Blessed Sacrament in 1867, was instituted to consist of Bishops, priests, and deacons; the members of brotherhoods and sisterhoods, and communicants of both sexes being in communion with the Church of England. Its aim and purpose, as set forth in its manual, are:

First, The honor due to the person of our Lord Jesus Christ in the Blessed Sacrament of His Body and Blood. Second, Mutual and special intercession at the time of and in union with the Eucharistic sacrifice. Third, To promote the observance of the catholic and primitive practice of communicating fasting.

Rules—First, to communicate, or at least to be present on Sundays and the greater festivals and other holy days when the Holy Eucharist is celebrated, unless prevented by sickness or other urgent cause. To promote by all legitimate means frequent and reverent celebrations of the Holy Eucharist as the chief act of Divine service.

Recommendations—First, to give careful attention to preparation before and thanksgiving after every Communion. To communicate at an early celebration.

The Superior-General, the superiors of wards or branch associations, and certain priests-associate annually elected from the Council. The annual Council, open to all associates of the Confraternity, is preceded by the celebration of the Holy Eucharist and a sermon. There are 614 priests-associate and several thousand lay-associates belonging to this Confraternity.

The cultivation of personal piety in connection with associated prayer is the primary object held in view. Associates of the Confraternity may send to a priest-associate a request for the prayers of the Confraternity for any object. If approved by the Superior-General, it becomes a subject of intercession throughout the Confraternity for the time appointed by him, at all the celebrations of the Holy Eucharist, and at such other times as the members may themselves choose.

To any one familiar with the usages of Roman Catholic Confraternities, the resemblance, in many respects, between them and this organization in the Church of England will be at once perceived.

RELIGIOUS MISCELLANY.

THE CHURCH IN GENERAL.

There were fifteen additions to the membership of the Union Park Congregational Church last Sunday.

At the Highland Park Presbyterian Church, in charge of the Rev. Dr. Hurd, there were five additions Sunday.

A new Reformed Episcopal Church is about to be erected in Baltimore. Another, the fourth, has just been inaugurated in Philadelphia.

Revivals in the Methodist Episcopal churches at the following points are reported: Tunnel City, Mich., 153 conversions; Byron Circuit, Minnesota, 80 conversions; Rock River Valley (Central Illinois Conference), 61 accessions; Dodgeville, Wis., 79 conversions; Plainfield, Ill., 100 accessions; Sterling, Ill., 80 accessions; Iroquois, Ill., 108 accessions.

The Plymouth Congregational Church, in charge of the Rev. William Alvin Bartlett, received seven additional members Sunday last.

The North Presbyterian Church of Washington City have called as their pastor the Rev. Dr. H. S. Carpenter, of San Francisco.

Ten members united with the Eighth Presbyterian Church (Samuel W. Duffield's) Sunday last,—seven by letter and three by profession of faith.

The First Congregational Church, Dr. Goodwin's, received fifteen additional members last Sunday, which increases the membership of that Society to about 1,000.

The Reformed Presbyterian Church at Bloom has applied for admission into the Presbytery of Chicago, which will no doubt be presented at the next meeting of that body.

The Third General Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church will meet at Christ Church, Chicago, Wednesday, May 12. The persons constituting a Council of the Church are all the Bishops and Presbyters, lay delegates from its parishes, and all those who were present and voted at the first General Council. The branch of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada is to form part of the Council.

The semi-annual meeting of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held at Chicago, commencing May 27. The plan for holding the fall conferences will be announced at the close. On the Sunday previous, May 23, several of the Bishops are to take part in missionary services in Cincinnati, and on the Sunday following, May 30, they will attend similar meetings in Chicago.

An American evangelist from Philadelphia, Mr. Pearsall Smith, is now laboring in Germany with great success. Immense crowds attended the Berlin meetings, and numbers of the nobility occupy seats on the platform. The Empress Augusta has given a private audience to Mr. Smith. In these days the spirit of prophecy seems to have fallen upon the laymen to a wonderful degree.

A very concise statement of the organization of Universalism in the United States is furnished in the Parish Helper. There are 935 parishes in fellowship with the General Convention, presided over by 674 ministers. The communicants are thus distributed: Eastern States, 165 churches, 9,233 members; Middle States, 123 churches, 7,087 members; Western States, 297 churches, 12,773 members; Southern States, 32 churches, 1,129 members; Canada, 7 churches and 83 members; making a total of 624 churches and 31,005 members.

The next General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church will meet on Thursday, May 20, at 11 a. m., in the First Presbyterian of the City of Cleveland, O., and be opened with a sermon by the Rev. Samuel J. Wilson, D. D., LL. D., the Moderator of the last Assembly. In order that arrangements for their entertainment may be made, Commissioners and officers of the Assembly and delegates from corresponding bodies are requested to notify Daniel P. Eells, Chairman of Entertainment Committee, on or before May 10 of their purpose to attend.

The members of the Baptist denomination in the South have proposed to place their General Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky. A public meeting was recently held at Louisville to express concurrence in the selection. Ministers of other denominations took part in the proceedings. The Baptists of Kentucky intend to raise $300,000 of the desired $500,000 for the endowment of the seminary. The citizens of Louisville are to give $50,000 of the amount. Their contributions are to be used for the formation of a library, which will be open to members of other denominations in the city.

On April 26 a committee of the Presbytery of Bloomington, viz., Ministers A. L. Brooks, M. M. Travis, A. J. Levenberger, and Elder Richard Rayburn, organized a church in that city, to be known as the North Presbyterian Church, of Bloomington. Thirty members were enrolled, with fifteen others to be received when letters of dismission from other churches are obtained. In the evening, after sermon by the Rev. Brooks, and the charge to the four Elders chosen by the Rev. Travis, two of them were ordained, and the whole number duly installed. The organization thus formed has already purchased an eligible lot, and contracted for the erection of a house of worship.

At a late meeting of the Presbytery of Niagara, held in Lockport, N. Y., the Rev. E. P. Marvin presented an overture to the General Assembly, which was unanimously adopted by the Presbytery, that the Assembly should appoint a new Committee on Fraternal Relations and Reunion, to meet any similar Committee from the Southern General Assembly, and that Committee should be instructed to say that the obnoxious things complained of by the Southern Committee were said and done in times of high excitement; that they are to be regretted; and that now, in a calm review, the imputations cast upon the Southern Church are disapproved.

The proposed union of the English Presbyterian Church and the English branch of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland has again failed. The Committees appointed to confer upon the subject recently met in London. The United Presbyterian Committee expressed the opinion that a favorable decision could be obtained from their Synod. The English Presbyterian Committee feared that the alterations proposed in the plan of union decided upon by the Supreme Court of both Churches last May would not meet with the general approval of their body. They offered to consider any other amendments than those suggested, but this the United Presbyterians declined to do, with the request that their English brethren obtain fresh instructions from the English Synod.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?

From the following notice, taken from a Michigan paper, it would appear that another preacher is in trouble:

WHEREAS, Charles W. Covey, formerly a member of this church, left us while charges of immorality were pending against him, and, as he is supposed to have carried with him a license to preach, granted him by the church of Alpine and Walker, this is to give notice that the said license is revoked and he is excluded from the fellowship of the Church. We believe his moral character to be such as to render him utterly unworthy of Christian churches or families. He is about 31 years of age, medium height, and stammers in speaking or reading. By order and in behalf of the First Baptist Church of Georgetown and Blendon, Mich., April 16, 1875. H. H. CHAMBERLAIN, Church Clerk.

THE Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Richmond have issued a circular of information in regard to the International Convention at that city on the 26th inst. The circular says:

As the last Convention which was held in a Southern State was on the eve of a great fratricidal war between the North and the South, so this Convention in the Capital of the Old Dominion, on the eve of the centennial celebration of our country's independence, may, we trust, be the harbinger of a peaceful reunion of every section in the enduring bonds of Christian fellowship and love. Let us "reunite in the cordial bonds of harmonious brotherhood." Nothing can do more to revive our former devotion to the Union of our fathers, and to strengthen the bonds of affection between the North and the South, the East and the West, than the co-operation of every Christian in the objects of this Convention. We meet in the name of the Prince of Peace, to take sweet counsel together in regard to the welfare of His Church. All who are interested in these objects are cordially invited to meet with us in person, or, if absent, to unite with us in spirit, invoking Heaven's blessing upon this Convention.

The circular states that arrangements have been made for the entertainment of guests at the homes of citizens. Hotel charges to delegates and their friends will be as follows: Exchange and Ballard Houses, $2.50 a day when two or more persons occupy one room; otherwise, $3. St. James Hotel, $2; Ford's Hotel, $1.50 to $2; American, $1.50 to $1.75. Delegates are requested to wear a blue ribbon fastened to their coats from the time of their departure until their return home.

The Rev. James A. Carnahan resigns the pastoral charge of the Presbyterian Church in Dayton, Ind., which he has occupied for forty-four or forty-five years, to take effect June 1. He will remain with the people he has so long and faithfully served.

Bishop Bedell, of Ohio, writes from Paris to the Standing Committee of his Diocese that his health is in such a condition as to prevent his returning to work the coming summer. He places his salary at the Committee's control, to be used in providing a substitute. He expects to spend the summer in Switzerland, and embark for America in October.

The Rev. Prof. J. M. Stiffler, of Shurtleff College, and of the church at Upper Alton, has finally made true what some papers have so long been reporting before the fact, and accepted the call of the Baptist Church at Hamilton, N. Y., and will, during the coming summer, enter upon duty as pastor there.

BREVITIES.

Abram was the first sick man. He had Hagar in the wilderness.

Be temperate in your diet. Our first parents ate themselves out of house and home.

"Are angels playing croquet, mamma?" asked a little four-year-old, the other evening, when she saw the meteors shoot.

"Sinful sectarianism" is what a Unitarian theological student called it because a Methodist girl refused to let him hug her in a camp-meeting tent.

"There is no sunset in Heaven," says a noted divine. We'll go farther than that. There's no getting up of nights to draw the baby's legs back under the cover.

Mr. Greeley did not invent the phrase "Go West," as is generally supposed. The original of the remark was when Ruth said (many years B. C.): "Where thou go West I will go."

"Is this the Adams House?" asked a stranger of a Bostonian. "Yes," was the reply, "it's Adam's House until you get to the roof, then it's eaves." The Worcester Gazette heard this.

In the hymn-book of the United Presbyterian Church in Great Britain, in Montgomery's "Hail to the Lord's Anointed," the phrase, "the mountain dew" was changed to the heavenly dew, "mountain dew," in Scotland, signifying a glass of whisky."

Examiner (Divine of the Old School)—Name an instance of benevolence and design united in the native productions of a specified soil. Candidate—The growth of Spain and Portugal of the cork-tree, coincident with that of the vines yielding port and sherry. Examiner—Very good indeed, sir. I trust you will live to be a Bishop. [Candidate passes with flying colors.]

An old college Prex. used to say that he would always assign a reason for any official act of his. One day Jones, who was a stupid fellow, went to him and complained that in the distribution of commencement honors no oration had been assigned for him to deliver, and asked Prex. what reason there was why he was not to speak. "Scriptural reasons, sir," was the reply; "there is no piece for the weak head."

A resident of an interior town came to Detroit the other day to secure a stock of groceries, having decided to enter into business. As he had no money at all he was confronted with the inquiry: "What are your assets?" He deliberated a moment, scratched his head, and slowly replied: "Wall, I tend church purty reg'lar!" He hasn't started in the grocery business yet.—Detroit Free Press.

A clergyman in England by the name of Thorn has recently written a book against the Baptists. Spurgeon one day met Dr. Campbell, a Congregationalist, in a book-store. The latter pointed out the book to Spurgeon, and said: "That is a 'thorn in the flesh' to the Baptists." "My dear sir," responded Spurgeon, "you ought to have quoted the rest of the passage, so that we might know what this 'thorn in the flesh' is. It reads: 'A thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan, to buffet me.'"

A good old minister of one of our New England Baptist churches was agreeably surprised by the intelligence from one of his flock that five individuals had expressed a desire on the next Sunday to have the baptismal rite performed upon themselves. After its performance, however, he was somewhat chagrined that only one of the five joined the society of which he was pastor. A few Sundays after the same worthy elder waited on him with the intelligence that ten more desired immersion. "And how many of them will join the society?" queried the minister. "Two, I regret to say, are all we can depend on," was the elder's reply. "Very well," said the good old man, "you may as well inform the other eight that this church doesn't take in washing."—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Last Sunday was a raw, blustering day, but several converts to Christianity were sufficiently warmed with faith to enable them to enter the portals of the colored Baptist Church through the turgid waters of Grand River. But the scene was too uninviting for one little fellow who was to have been immersed on that day. He dodged behind the crowd that stood on the river bank, and hid until the ceremony was over. He afterwards explained his strange conduct by saying: "I'se got suah 'nuff 'ligion—I'se done found Jesus—but dat water did look too cold. S'posen I catch my deff 'o cold an' die?" It was suggested to him that, in such an event, he would have gone straight to heaven. "Dunno," he replied, slowly shaking his head, "I feels putty sartin in my own mind dat I'se 'ligion, but a fool nigger's liable to be mistaken. Don't want to take too many chances on it jist yet."

POEM BY A PRISONER.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

CHICAGO, May 7.—The verses inclosed were given me by a member of your State Legislative Committee appointed to visit the Penitentiary at Joliet. They were written by a prisoner confined at that institution. The deep feeling and more than ordinary poetic talent which they evince make them worthy of greater publicity, and I send them to you for publication in THE TRIBUNE. It would seem that the man who wrote them had something in him which rendered him worthy of a better fate, and it is to be hoped that he may have another chance afforded him, and that his future may redeem his past. Yours, L.

IN PRISON.

Dedicated to Maj. W. M. Taylor, by Col. J. W. Young.

God pity the wretched prisoner,
In his lonely cell to-day;
Whatever the sins that tripped him,
God pity him, still I pray.
Only a strip of sunshine,
Cleft by rusty bars;
Only a patch of azure;
Only a cluster of stars;

Only a barren future,
To starve his hopes upon;
Only stinging memories
Of a past that's better gone;
Only scorn from women;
Only hate from men;
Only remorse to whisper
Of a life that might have been.

Once we were little children,
And then our unstained feet
Were led by a gentle mother
Toward the Golden Street;
Therefore if, in life's forest,
We since have lost our way,
For the sake of her who loved us,
God pity us, still I pray.

O mother! gone to Heaven,
With earnest heart I ask
That your eyes may not look earthward
On the failure of your task;
For even in those mansions
The choking tears would rise,
Though the fairest hand in Heaven
Should wipe them from your eyes.

And you who judge so harshly,
Are you sure the stumbling stone,
That tripped the feet of others,
Might not have bruised your own?
Are you sure the sad-faced Angel
Who writes our errors down
Will ascribe to you more honor
Than him on whom you frown?

Or if a steadier purpose
Unto your life is given,
A stronger will to conquer,
A smoother path to Heaven;
If, when temptations meet you,
You crush them with a smile;
If you can chain pale passion,
And keep your lips from guile,—

Then bless the hand that crowned you,
Remembering, as you go,
That it was not your own endeavor
That shaped your nature so;
And sneer not at the weakness
Which made a brother fall,
For the hand that lifts the fallen,
God loves the best of all.

Oh that I could your pity awake
Throughout our land to-day;
Think of the heart that is ready to break,
And wipe its guilt away.

A THURSDAY MATINEE.

Visit to the Connecticut Pie Bakery of Case & Martin.

Description of the New Process of Baking Pie by Machinery.

A Very Extensive Business Grown Up from a Small Beginning.

The weekly matinee of Messrs. Case & Martin, pie manufacturers, takes place every Thursday forenoon, at which time their model bakery is visited by numbers of ladies to see the wonders of baking pies by machinery. Last Thursday the writer attended, and, by courtesy of Messrs. Case & Martin, gained much information in regard to this, to most people, novel business.

In 1869 the firm started in business in a small way, baking, the first day, twenty-eight pies, which were carried out for sale in a hand-basket. Their business rapidly increased until they were actually compelled to build their present extensive bakery, which was put up with especial reference to their use, and under their own personal supervision, thus securing the most complete pie-bakery in the United States, as well as the largest. The building occupies 75 feet on Walnut street by 125 on Wood, and represents a cash investment of $15,000.

The office is handsomely fitted up, and is hung around with ingeniously arranged tables, showing at a glance the number of pies by days, weeks, months, and years, baked since their first start in business:

THE FOLLOWING TABLES

will give some idea of their rapid advance, and the extent of their business:

	Total pies per year.	Average per day.
1869	74,087	239
1870	246,784	792
1871	411,940	1,330
1872	657,635	2,107
1873	632,968	2,041
1874	703,683	2,262

They will probably bake this year 1,000,000 pies.

THE BOOK

in which their accounts are kept with the drivers is unique, and was invented for the purpose. In it is kept an account of all pies and plates taken out, and the money and plates returned, thus showing the amount of business done by each driver. They are held responsible for all plates taken out. The firm have six two-horse teams and wagons engaged in the sale and delivery of pies, the average cost of each wagon being $800. Their first wagon cost $1,100, and the horses $600, and the establishment was the finest ever turned out in the United States. Right here it may be mentioned that in no city in the Union are the pie and milk wagons, and in fact all street conveyances, in so good shape as in our own.

The office is heated by steam as well as the rest of the building, the only fire used being that under the oven. This gives them cheap insurance.

THEIR SALESROOM, RETAIL DEPARTMENT, is a model of neatness, and everything sold there is of the best. There is a marble-top counter and every thing shines. This department is under the charge of Mrs. Hunt, saleswoman, who has sold their goods for a year without making an enemy. They have a splendid trade and give no credit.

Two small rooms near by are fitted up as separate dressing-rooms for boys and girls employed in the bakery.

The next department is where fruit is prepared, and is furnished with patent apple-parers, with which a lively girl can pare a barrel of apples in twenty minutes. The apples are sliced by hand, which experience has proven is the best way. In the summer time a dozen girls are employed in this department.

THE MAIN ROOM,

however, is the most interesting to the visitor, where are employed a number of men and girls, each one having a certain work to do, and that is done with the precision and celerity of clock-work, from the unshaped lump of dough to the finished pie ready for the oven. A Hoffman patent pie-machine is used, which does the work of two girls. The finished pies are placed on a horizontal belt, which carries them to the door of the oven, a constant stream, where they are seized by the baker and placed in the patent oven, one of Vail's rotary, which is highly recommended by Messrs. Case & Martin. The pies are baked in one revolution, and are immediately taken to the store-room, where they are stacked up, and in a short time the driver takes them out on sale.

The next room is the one for washing plates, which is done with an attention to cleanliness which characterizes all the work of this model bakery.

The platform where the wagons are loaded is under cover, as is everything about the establishment.

The next department is

which also contains patent machines for grinding lemons and mince-meat. The latter machine is one of Ames', and is made under Perry's patent of 1864. In this room, as in the others, the kettles for cooking fruit are of copper, which is quite expensive, but they soon pay for themselves.

The stables are first-class, and contain fifteen as fine horses as any one would want to use. The stable-door leading into the wagon-shed is fire-proof.

In the receiving-room they have an elevator to carry heavy goods down into the basement, and a Forsyth scale.

The basement is used for a store-room, and contains over $10,000 worth of goods. They buy a great deal of fruit put up by the Empire Company, of New York, and the American, of St. Louis. They keep on hand vast quantities of dried and canned fruits, berries, etc., and also apples put up by a new process, which are just as fresh as when they came from the tree. There is a small room used for storage of spices and small wares. The firm have a place for everything, and intend to have everything in its place.

Messrs Case & Martin have a smaller bakery in the basement, under the charge of Mr. J. C. Wooding, where the baking is done for their own retail trade. It is unnecessary to say that every ingredient in this department is of the best. The retail trade is increasing every day in consequence.

Since the remarkable success of Messrs. Case & Martin, they have, as usual, with other enterprising firms, found a host of imitators who make free with their trade marks, and try to palm off on the public their worthless wares as the genuine, but the firm keep on the even tenor of their way, and, brushing their competitors to the right and left, pass on upward and onward.

OF AGE.

They tell me I'm a man to-day;
They say I'm twenty-one;
That twenty years ago last May,
My mother had a son;
They tell me that my boyhood's days
Have mingled with the past;
They speak of "hauteur," "manly ways,"
Of "dignity" and "caste;"
They paint in rarest hues serene
An "honored age," and such,—
And lend Old Prodigacy in,
Assisted by a crutch.

Then farewell, Youth, thou dear old friend,
I'm told to leave thee here;
But let us in the wine-glass blend
The joy, the hope, the fear,
The visions we alone have known,
Our chateaux-en-Espagne,
With Wisdom's dignity and frown,— Remember I'm a man;
Remember I must bid adieu
To shallow joys and dreams;
But must I dread to part with you,
A man!—how strange it seems.

But still, methinks, there's some mistake:
I met a friend just then,
Who greeted me with hearty shake,
And said, "Old Boy!" And when I asked him if he saw no change,
He smiled and asked, "Of what?"
I told him I had come of age;
He asked me if it hurt.
I dropped his hand and turned away,
And to myself I mused:
"Shall I assume a role to-day
To which I am unused?"

No! Come along! Old Time has lied,
And cheated me and you;
We'll battle with life's changing tide,
And cull her pleasures too.
We'll laugh Old Dignity to scorn,
And slap his rigid face.
In one to pluck life's pleasures both,
There's little stately grace.
And so, vain Pomp and Pride, away,
[illegible]
They tell me I'm a man to-day,
[illegible]

The Chicago Tribune.

Sunday Morning, May 9, 1875.

The London Spectator of the 24th ult. contains a noteworthy article, of especial interest to Americans. It is a review of the section on American literature in the Encyclopædia Britannica. That section is marked by some gross errors of judgment and some few mistakes. The writer in the Spectator corrects both. He is not an advocate, but a judge, and his estimation of what this country has done in literature is just. He mentions few names,—indeed, they are unfortunately few which deserve it,—but he characterizes those whom he does name with a few words that must make pleasant reading in Boston and New York. Has HAWTHORNE ever been summed up better than in this little phrase which speaks of his "wistful reserve"? It is a pleasure to find such an article in the best known contemporary of the review which so touched our pride to the quick by its question: "Who reads an American book?"

New York City has a comfortably-sized debt. According to the Controller's report of the city finances, the outstanding debt on April 30, 1875, amounted to $150,330,157. This debt was made up as follows:

Funded debt	$120,236,557
Temporary debt	21,401,000
Bonds, anticipating taxes '74	1,452,000
Bonds, anticipating taxes '75	7,240,600
Total	$150,330,157
In sinking fund	$27,469,412
Cash in Treasury	4,193,690
Cash in sundry funds	340,200
Total	$32,003,302
Debt, less sinking fund and cash	$118,326,855

The debt is increasing annually under laws which provide for the issue of bonds in paying for certain permanent works. That city also anticipates its annual taxes, general and special, by issuing bonds therefor; these revenue bonds are taken up with the proceeds of the taxes as collected. How much tax remains uncollected is not stated, though we suppose it is equal to the bonds outstanding.

The New York World seems to have an absolute mania for intermeddling with other people's concerns, and is setting itself up as a general critic of everything and everybody. For some time past, it has been devoting itself to Chicago with reference to its exposure to fire, and has now turned its attention to Oshkosh, and expresses its regret that the mill-owners of that city will persist in running their mills when the wind blows. Its meddlesomeness is not confined to fire matters, however. It has recently been greatly exercised at the architectural construction of the new building of the New York Tribune, the owners of which probably constructed their building with reference to their own convenience, and not that of the New York World. The latest fear of the World is that Mr. DAVID SINTON, who has kindly offered to construct a tower in Cincinnati as a donation to the city, may not make his tower architecturally beautiful. Now, wouldn't it have been just as well for the World to have waited a little? The project has not even yet taken definite form, and, when Cincinnati and Mr. SINTON want the World's advice, they will probably ask it. Until that time its proffer of advice is both officious and impudent.

After a long respite from ocean disasters to passenger steamers, the terrible news comes of the loss of the Schiller, belonging to the Eagle line, and one of the largest and fastest boats in the transcontinental lines. It is as yet too early to comment upon the causes which led to this fearful disaster and involved the loss of at least 200 lives. It is only known now that the ill-fated vessel sailed from New York on the 28th of April for Hamburg, by way of Plymouth and Cherbourg, with 149 cabin and 106 steerage passengers, and a large and valuable cargo. All went well until Friday evening at 10 o'clock, at which time a heavy fog prevailed, during which she struck upon the rocks of the Scilly Islands, lying on the southwest coast of England, about 30 miles from Land's End. The sea was very heavy at the time, and, owing to the dense fog, the Scilly lights could not be seen. The fearful loss of life is the saddest feature of the disaster. The passengers seem to have been almost entirely Germans, among them at least twelve from Chicago, on their way to the Fatherland to revisit friends from whom they had been long severed. This news, therefore, is doubly sad, in that it will bring sorrow into hundreds of homes, both in the New and Old World, not only among the friends left behind but among the friends anxiously awaiting them. The painful scenes reported by the telegraph to have occurred in New York will be repeated in Germany. This fact adds still more intense poignancy to the grief which must be occasioned. So far as the details are known, however, no one seems to have been to blame. It appears to have been one of those catastrophes against which no provision could be made, and which no foresight could have averted. We hope this will prove to be the case, and that the additional regret will not be felt that this sacrifice of life might have been prevented.

THE MAN WHO NEVER VOTES.

There has been a committee appointed by the Bar Association of Chicago to report for discussion by that body a scheme for remedying the evils of our suffrage system. Any scheme for that purpose must necessarily be incomplete unless it make some provision for the case of the man who won't vote. The non-voting population of large cities is increasing annually. The recent elections in Cincinnati and St. Louis show a very marked falling off in the number of votes polled. In 1873, there were 46,000 votes polled at the charter election in Chicago, which was the highest vote since 1868. As in other cities, the vote polled does not keep pace with the increase of the population. Under a careful registry, if all the persons legally entitled to vote were registered, the list would show a total of not less than 70,000 legal voters in Chicago. As a general thing, not over one-half of these go near the polls on election day. In 1868, there was a strong vote polled at the Presidential election, but there has been no election since then which has had sufficient interest to call out anything like a full vote. So general is this, that a comparison of the list of voters will show that the voting is done pretty much by the same persons, there being rarely any new names added to the list.

Now, the class of persons who do not vote are not those who are uninterested in the elections or unaffected by its results. On the contrary, these persons have large interests at stake, and are perhaps of all others most deeply interested in good government, and in the honest and efficient execution of the laws. On election day these persons are at their stores, warehouses, factories, banks, counting-rooms, and offices, and on the day after election they are the loudest and most vehement in their denunciations of the result of the election in which they had omitted to take a part.

A preventive of non-voting and of absenteeism in legislative bodies has been wisely provided for in the Constitution of Illinois, and in other States, and ought to be provided in the Constitution of the United States. Our State Constitution provides that no act of legislation can pass either House without the formal call of the yeas and nays thereon, and the affirmative vote of a majority of the whole number of members of each House. A quorum is essential to transact business, and no law can be enacted, amended, or repealed, or appropriation made or tax levied, without the recorded assent of the majority of the people's representatives. Here is a remedy for non-voting, absenteeism, negligence, and evasion on the part of members, and the remedy consists in the fact that votes not cast are counted in the negative. The people continue to be represented, because, if their member fail to vote, he is counted in the negative, and the negative side in the great multitude of legislative questions is the side of safety and wisdom.

This rule, however, cannot be made applicable to ordinary elections of officers, where the matter to be determined is the election of one or another individual; but perhaps the Bar Association may be ingenious enough to devise some scheme by which the non-voting legal voters may be represented in determining the result. If this be impracticable, there may be found some way in which persons legally entitled to vote, who do not vote, may be subjected to some penalty therefor, or be put under an obligation to render some other service to the State in compensation for their failure to vote.

The greatest and most difficult problem in American government is how to obtain good, honest, and competent city governments. The evil of the day is the failure of city government. That evil owes its origin, and its continuance, and its alarming growth, more to the non-voting of large bodies of the public than it does to the successful voting of the office-seeking class; and there can be no radical or permanent improvement of municipal governments until this public crime of non-voting by half the legal voters is rooted out and abandoned.

A CHALLENGE TO SCIENCE.

Of late years science has been flinging down the gauntlet to religion on all sorts of pretexts. Now prayer was to be tested, and now inspiration, and now something else. But as the tests were always of a scientific nature, and the proposal of them generally of a belligerent and irreverent nature, the church militant has not stooped to pick up the gauntlet. Now, however, these tactics have been abandoned. In fact, precisely the opposite policy has been adopted. Religion has challenged science. It is anent LOUISE LATEAU, a Belgian peasant-girl, who has recently displayed two miracles. Every Friday her body is marked with the bleeding wounds of the stigmata, and every day she lives without food. Scientific men have scoffed at the idea, but now several Belgian ecclesiastics have defied science to disprove it. They offer to place LOUISE LATEAU under the exclusive care of Prof. VIRCHOW for six months, and let this eminent scientist detect deception, if he can. He, strange to say, has declined the offer. The Church is now in the position which science has so often occupied of late, and the aggressive clergy claim that VIRCHOW's refusal of their offer is equivalent to an acknowledgment of the two miracles.

Without speculating on the reasons of the refusal, let us see whether the supernatural may not, in this case, be reduced—or elevated—to the natural. There is, in the first place, the sweeping possibility of imposition. A Catholic priest in San Francisco put a speedy end to a stigmata miracle, a few months since, by setting a watch and catching the devotee digging her nails into hands, feet, and side, in order to produce the bloody marks. There are a dozen ways, too, of surreptitiously taking food. The challenge to VIRCHOW only shows that the priests interested believe in the genuineness of the marvel. Mademoiselle LATEAU may have good reasons of her own for thinking otherwise.

But if the hypothesis of imposition is set aside, there remains this settled fact, that strong emotion, especially in the case of nervous, sensitive natures, can produce almost any effect upon the particular parts of the body to which the agitated thoughts turn. The well-authenticated instance of the mother who saw, with inexpressible agony, a window-sash fall upon and crush the fingers of her little boy, and had her own fingers at once affected in the same way, is a case in point. LOUISE LATEAU is a person who has been diseased for years, has been half-crazed by neuralgia in her head, and is subject to fits. Here are all the conditions necessary for the production of physical effects by religious ecstasy.

The problem of life without food is a more difficult one. Still, LOUISE does not actually exist in this way. She takes the communion often, and drinks water. The consecrated bread and the water, which may contain solid substances, might balance the waste, which must be very small in her case, as she lies perfectly still and does nothing which demands any exertion of strength. And as long as waste is repaired life continues. Even if the scanty food taken is in itself insufficient, it may be reinforced by the absorption of the fatty portions of the body. This is the way in which a bear lives during hibernation. At any rate, death would make slow advances. There can be no doubt that the girl will die ere long.

The brace of miracles thus seem to be susceptible of explanation on natural grounds. But it would have been more satisfactory if VIRCHOW had accepted the challenge. There are few scientists who get the chance to measure, and weigh, and analyze a miracle.

MRS. TILTON.

There have been but few persons who have ever been reduced to so pitiable a condition as Mrs. TILTON. It is immaterial what the verdict of the jury may be in the BEECHER case, there can be nothing added to or taken from the terrible load under which she staggers, and which she must bear alone to the last.

Those who read the correspondence between TILTON and his wife during the period covered by the years 1866, '7, '8, and '9, as published in THE TRIBUNE last September, can understand the great change which has overtaken these two people; which has broken up and forever a household where there was so much peace and happiness, and has severed two persons who, from that correspondence, were linked in the strongest bonds of confidence and love.

In 1870 came the revelation which, while shattering the faith that had preceded it, developed the strength of the love of these people even in its ruin. For six months the secret was kept, and the household to all the world was unchanged. Then, maddened by what he understood was the malicious effort to injure him in his business relations, TILTON sent, by BOWEN, the letter ordering BEECHER to leave Plymouth Church. Then in hot succession followed the events which have been the subject of so much controversy,—the correspondence, confessions, recantations, statements, and counter-statements, from December 31, 1870, to July, 1874. During all this time TILTON, except in his dealings with BEECHER through MOULTON, protected his wife's fair fame before the world, going to the extent of explicit denials of the more serious accusations. He continued to live with her, and to proclaim his confidence in her moral purity. At last, the wife for whom he had played such a false part so many years abandoned his home and went over to the adversary, and denounced her husband.

Then, abandoned by the woman for whose protection he had been so long silent, THEODORE TILTON proclaimed his accusation against BEECHER in the most formal and public manner. Mrs. TILTON became a partisan of Mr. BEECHER. She appeared before the Church Committee and testified in his behalf. She has attended this trial, taking her place among his friends, and, as was disclosed by one of the witnesses, has been supported by money contributions of his friends.

Hardly had she left her husband before her humiliation began. Mr. BEECHER in his statement before the Church Committee spoke of her having thrust her affections upon him, and claimed that his grief in the past had been caused by his not having put aside the affection she was seeking to lavish upon him. In his evidence on the trial he repeated this statement substantially; that the woman had become in love with him, had pushed her affections upon him, and that the only weakness he was conscious of was that he had not spurned her. His innocence was all-important, and to establish that the defense adopted the theory that this unfortunate woman had been for years forcing her love on BEECHER, without any reciprocity on his part, and that all that there was in the case was traceable to her weakness and her forgetfulness of duty.

During this long suspense this poor woman, if she have the ordinary sensitiveness of human nature, must have felt that, in abandoning a husband because he reproached her, to espouse the cause of a man who proclaimed her moral guilt as evidence to sustain his own innocence, she had hardly bettered her condition. She had left a husband who, believing she had been betrayed into guilt, still braved the world's scorn for her sake, and for the sake of their children, to take up the cause of a man who, from first to last, has accused her of wantonly thrusting her affections upon him against his will, thus placing him in embarrassing positions, and giving color to unfounded charges against his character. She abandoned her husband, children, and home; while Mr. BEECHER has treated her from first to last as a sickly, sentimental fool pursuing him with her affection and vainly tempting him into error.

In the progress of the great trial, when her husband and BEECHER had both told their versions of her conduct, weakness, and, perhaps, crime, she waited with patient, agonizing suffering for the moment when she could tell the Court and jury, and that world which had so long been busy with her name, the sad story of her life,—waited until she could tell them what she knew, and knew better than all others, of herself, and how she had suffered, and what she had endured, while used as a football between the two great Egotists—her husband and her pastor. Day after day she waited. Witness after witness, including her own servants and her brother, were put upon the stand, not to testify to her innocence or her guilt, but to the innocence or guilt of Mr. BEECHER. She, the great central figure of the whole case, upon whose innocence or guilt all other things depended, was entirely ignored,—treated as outside and foreign to the case. Men and women, and Mr. BEECHER himself, swore to Mr. BEECHER's innocence, ignoring the fact that, if the despised little woman living upon alms was guilty, no amount of swearing could acquit the man to whose defense unlimited money and unlimited friends had been contributed. The attempt to acquit Mr. BEECHER and leave the world to believe what it chose of Mrs. TILTON's guilt is one of those anomalies which are not explainable. That, however, has been the theory of the defense. Mr. BEECHER, at the last moment, even if he had ever intended to do so, refused to let Mrs. TILTON tell her side of the story. He had called her as a witness before the Church Committee. He had paraded her in the court-room with his friends. But the agonized woman, who is of necessity as innocent as he is, was refused permission to tell her story, to explain why she confessed, and recanted, and confessed again; to tell her version of her acquaintance with Mr. BEECHER, of his visits, of his letters, of their rides, and of their various meetings. She was again repelled, rebuked, turned out of court, and refused a hearing in a case where the sole question of fact is whether she committed adultery. Her exclusion, it must be borne in mind, was by the person charged with being her companion; he had related his version, but refused to permit her to give hers.

The reason for this exclusion is too patent to be misunderstood, and it did not need the explanation that the defense would call her as a witness if the other side would not cross-examine her. It will be remembered that, in his examination, Mr. BEECHER's memory of various incidents and events of which he and Mrs. TILTON alone were cognizant was very defective,—too defective to enable him to state them in detail, or even substantially. It is possible that the unfortunate woman into whose memory all these things have been branded as with a heated iron would have filled up the gaps in the story, and given particulars of which Mr. BEECHER had no recollection. She, of all other witnesses, could tell whether the accusation of adultery was made in 1870 or in 1874, and on this point she could sustain the defense, or overthrow it.

Driven from the witness-stand; refused a hearing in a case where the sole issue is, was she an adulteress; without home; separated forever from husband and children; living upon the contributions of persons interested, not in her, but in Mr. BEECHER; her name spread over the wide world and destined to live forever in the chronicle of the greatest scandal of the age; forced into silence and submission to every imputation upon her morals, and especially of her intelligence,—she is an object of commiseration, of sympathy, and of pity,—a woman so overwhelmed with affliction that mental oblivion seems to be the only possible relief or escape.

BEAUREGARD AGAIN.

The New Orleans Bulletin, the organ of the "banditti," having recovered from its frenzy over THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's criticism of the course pursued by the Conservatives of the Louisiana Legislature, once more is exercised at THE TRIBUNE's comments upon BEAUREGARD's public declaration that he was in favor of giving no quarter during the War of the Rebellion. Unfortunately for the Bulletin, Gen. BEAUREGARD's recent letter to Gov. PORTER, of Tennessee, and other letters of his which have been printed, are so explicit in this declaration that it can make no issue in this direction, but frankly says: "We are not called upon to justify what he said, nor to attempt to vindicate him, nor to adduce arguments in favor of the policy of making no prisoners of armed men." It seeks, however, to blunt the charges, first, by declaring that the object of the malice of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE "can in no manner be lowered in the esteem of the 12,000,000 of men, women, and children of the South by any slanders which can be invented and set in flight from Chicago." We commend to the Bulletin the fact that this was not a slander invented in Chicago, but a fact stated by BEAUREGARD himself. Second, the Bulletin covers up the charge in the following panegyric:

> We can assure them that in honesty, purity, chivalry, and all magnanimous instincts they cannot name a Northern General of the Union army who will dare claim to be the superior of our knightly and noble BEAUREGARD. Scion of a lordly race of men, he went into the Southern war as a tried and thorough soldier, an ardent patriot, a lover of political liberty, and honored citizen, and a chieftain whom the young men of Louisiana followed with devoted attachment.

All this may be so, and yet it does not alter or affect the facts in the case at all. Northern Generals will not be likely to compete with Southern Generals in point of chivalry. We have no "scions of lordly races" in the North. A Northern man who should advertise himself as a scion of a lordly race would be looked upon either as a lunatic or a humbug at once. No comparisons will be instituted, however much the Bulletin may invite them. The chivalry of the Southern sort is unknown in the North. The facts, however, to which we wish to call the attention of the Bulletin are, first, that BEAUREGARD advocated hoisting the black flag without provocation; second, that BEAUREGARD was the only Northern or Southern officer who made a public declaration of the fact; third, that universal massacre has never been considered among civilized nations since the commencement of time as a characteristic of chivalry; and, fourth, that this is the reason why Gen. BEAUREGARD was not included in the invitation to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Reunion in this city. Had any Northern officer advocated a war of extermination, he would have been excluded for the same reason.

ADJUSTABLE DENOUEMENTS.

Mme. CHRISTINE NILSSON-ROUZAUD has set a curious fashion, by which she leaves an audience its choice of a denouement. She has provided no less than three endings to AMBROISE THOMAS' opera of "Mignon." In the French performances, Mignon marries Wilhelm Meister. As this would be very ridiculous to the Germans, especially those acquainted with GOETHE's heroine, and as they would be sure to violently condemn any such liberty taken with her, when "Mignon" is given in Germany the heroine dies. Recently Mme. NILSSON has been making a tour of Belgium and giving "Mignon." As Belgium just now occupies a sort of intermediate place between France and Germany, and the audiences in the Belgian theatres are made up mainly of French and Germans, Mme. NILSSON has shrewdly provided a denouement which suits both classes and gives them freedom of choice. As the curtain falls, Mignon sinks into the arms of Wilhelm Meister and quietly reposes there. The German, if he so choose, can assume that she dies there, and go away satisfied. The Frenchman, on the other hand, is at liberty to infer that she swoons away only to recover and ever after live happily as Mrs. W. Meister. The Belgian, being a neutral, we presume takes the neutral view, and regards Mignon as neither dead nor married, but indefinitely reposing in a comatose state upon Wilhelm Meister's manly breast.

There are a great many advantages in these adjustable denouements, and hereafter the playwrights and librettists will undoubtedly so arrange their catastrophes that the audience may have the privilege of choice to suit their own notions. There have been cases where dramas have two endings. For instance, a version of Romeo and Juliet has been prepared in which Juliet recovers from her poison, which turns out only to be an anaesthetic of a harmless description, and Romeo marries her, and their wedded life is of the happiest description and abundantly blessed with olive plants. There is a musical version of "Othello" also, in which, just as the Moor is about to suffocate Desdemona, his insane jealousy is overcome by Emilia, who satisfies him that Desdemona is true, whereupon he forgives her, they rush into each other's embrace, and ever after are happy. In these cases, however, there are but two endings, and they are not so adjusted that the audience has a choice. In "Mignon" there are two different endings, and, in addition, the third one, which can be made to suit any one's notions. Such an arrangement would leave the dramatist free to plunge his hero or heroine into all sorts of situations, with no regard to the manner of extricating them, since that responsibility would devolve upon the spectator. The villain of the piece at the close would be handed over to the audience, which might slaughter him upon the spot, or hang him, or send him to the Penitentiary for life. It would also be flattering to novel-readers, if the writer fitted his work with an adjustable denouement, so that the reader could dispose of the virtuous heroine, the afflicted lover, the scheming uncle, and the tormenting villain, as he saw fit. It would gratify a harmless vanity to be allowed this privilege, and, in the case of the drama, would add immensely to its effect and popularity.

REPUBLICANISM IN EUROPE.

Mr. EDWARD A. FREEMAN has been writing, in a thoughtful way, of the difficulties of planting Republicanism in European soil. He makes out a good many. The truth of the doctrine of evolution, so far as the science of Government is concerned, was long since recognized by all students of politics outside of France and Spain. Good Governments grow. They cannot be manufactured to order, unless, indeed, the materials of the old structure are liberally used in building the new. So a monarchy can safely become a Republic only by a slow passage from the rule of the one to the rule of the many. Moreover, local self-government must precede general self-government. A democratic State must be a combination of political units. And the units must form the State instead of the State's being artificially separated into them. The latter process has been tried in France, where the central power split up the country and appointed a lot of prefects to superintend local action. But there has been no local action. The presence of the prefects crushed it, and the division merely aggrandized the central despotism. When these two leading principles—that a new form of government must have its roots deep in the old one and that local must precede general self-government—are applied to particular cases, it is evident that Mr. FREEMAN's doubts about an immediate development of republican institutions abroad are justified.

There is Spain. This unhappy country tried to be a Republic, as it, or part of it, has tried every other known system of government. But the new form had no connection with the traditions of the past. It was opposed to them. Moreover, Spaniards are guilelessly ignorant of local management, though not of local independence, despite their sharply-drawn provincial lines. Mr. FREEMAN thinks the demand for a Federal State, which wrecked CASTELAR's pretty theory of rule, was a healthy symptom. He interprets it as a sign of a growing desire and capacity for local self-government. But, while palaces built by Kings for Kings stood empty in Spain and a Spanish King lived at Paris, what could be expected save what came?

France, according to the eminent historian, has not succeeded in making out a very serviceable scheme of government. He picks flaws in the new plan ruthlessly. Still, it may be permitted us to say that the new scheme is really in great part a growth, and that France has passed through so many phases of government that any new theory must find root somewhere in the past. It is true that the prerequisite of local management does not as yet exist, but there seem to be chances of the survival of the Republic, which are perhaps more weighty than the chance, upon which Mr. FREEMAN lays stress, of the return of HENRI Fifth under the lilies, or of NAPOLEON Fourth under the violets.

Switzerland is the eminent writer's ideal Republic. He discusses the details of its government with rapture. Its Executive Council seems to him far superior to our single Executive official; for, as he says with some humor and more weight, "The Federal Council is never born, it never dies, it never marries, it never falls sick and recovers; its walks and rides cannot be recorded in a Court circular; it holds no drawing-rooms or levees; it pays no one the honor of a visit, and no one has the honor of being invited to visit it in return." There is no chance for the gradual introduction of ceremonious pomp by which BONAPARTE the Consul paved the way for NAPOLEON First, Emperor.

Switzerland is sure to maintain her Republicanism; France may; but elsewhere there are no prospects of any immediate development of democracy. We are not aware that the fact is a bad one. A government generally fits the governed. When they grow, it grows. No doubt a Republic is the only good form for such a highly-intelligent and civilized people as our own, but "effete despotisms" suit effete nations. Working to introduce Republicanism abroad instead of purifying it at home is much like subscribing to supply the Feejee Islanders with Scriptural shirts, while thousands of native-born heathens are left to rot and die uncared for.

A gentleman who pretends that he was on intimate terms with MACREADY has written a communication to the New York Evening Post in regard to BULWER's "Richelieu" and MACREADY's opinion of it as a playing piece. The writer of the communication asserts that MACREADY held rather low views of BULWER's ability as a dramatist; and, as confirmation, the actor gave on one occasion, in private conversation, the history of "Richelieu." MACREADY said that when BULWER first brought the play to him, Richelieu was a subordinate part in it. The character did not appear until the fourth act. On being asked whether the world was not as much indebted to MACREADY as to BULWER for the play, the former is said to have smiled and said nothing. We have given the story thus far merely to say that it is supported by no sufficient authority. MACREADY's friends and admirers would be sorry to have him convicted of such incredible presumption and vanity as the unknown writer charges upon him.

The name of the first controversialist to accept the challenge to prove the inspiration of the Bible was withheld by a gentleman in this city on his own responsibility. He has authorized its publication now. He is the Rev. O. A. BURGESS, President of the Northwestern Christian University at Indianapolis. Mr. BURGESS has, of course, precedence of all competitors in the argument; that is, if terms can be agreed upon between the parties. Mr. BURGESS says: "I hope no one will think I am weak enough to suppose I could carry my point before the jury; the fact that a man who does not believe in the Bible is to select half that jury at once stamps impossibility on its face. There are, however, moral questions which call for some extraordinary work on either side; we are living in the midst of such times, and this offer may serve as a means of attracting attention to the real issues of the day, and may end in settling the great dispute. My effort would, therefore, be more to the world through the jury than to the jury direct."

Compounding felony is a fashionable crime, and so frequent that ordinary cases scarcely attract public notice. A very extraordinary case has lately come to light in New England. The Souhegan National Bank of Milford, N. H., was robbed last October by masked burglars. The detectives failed to find any clew to the stolen property. After all efforts in this direction had been abandoned, the President of the bank received a telegram from a pretended detective in Baltimore which induced him to visit that city and grant an interview. Several interviews were held between the President and the robbers, and the former, becoming satisfied that the stolen property could be obtained in no other way, was persuaded to bring on $40,000, the sum demanded for its restitution, from home. We let the story continue in the language of the reporter:

> Mr. TOWNE was taken to the private office of the so-called detective and required to place a certain sum of money on the table. When this was done the agent rapped on the door, which was instantly opened and a package thrown in. Mr. TOWNE was requested to examine this, which he did, occupying nearly two hours. Among a mass of securities he found many belonging to his bank, which he checked and laid one side. When this was done he was requested to place another sum of money on the table, which he did, and another package was thrown in and examined as before. This resulted in the recovery of many of the missing papers and some which had not been missed. Mr. TOWNE was then informed that this was all that could be done for him, and he was allowed to pocket the valuables and depart in peace. His situation during the negotiation was not an enviable one, as he knew he was dealing with desperate men, with whom he was forced to trust himself with a large sum of money, with no security against assassination.

The condition of the detective service in the United States is pretty well exposed by this criminal proceeding on the part of the New Hampshire bank officials. Doubtless the detectives will remain the most accomplished and merciless thieves in the world so long as they find it profitable to maintain the traditional policy of Addition, Division, and Silence.

The libel suit against the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, which reached the end of its first stage last week, is in some respects remarkable and deserving of public attention. The action was instituted by Mr. WILLIS G. PHELPS, of Springfield, contractor, municipal benefactor, and what not, who had been charged by the Republican with fraud. The language used was incapable of misconstruction. Mr. PHELPS was said to be the "Boss TWEED of Springfield," and "a public corrupter." The plaintiff claimed damages of $200,000. The verdict gave him $100. A peculiar feature of the trial was the absence of a jury, both parties consenting to the statutory provision which allows a trial to proceed before a Judge, nem. con. Of the verdict, it may be said that the substantial victory rests with the defendants. No doubt, the Judge ascertained and determined the merits of the case much more exactly than a jury would have done. He was compelled by the technical necessities of the law to find for the plaintiff; yet a regard for the public good, and a broad view of provocations and motives, induced him to award only nominal damages. One word more remains to be said of this remarkable case: The conduct of Mr. BOWLES, proprietor of the Republican, from the beginning to the end of the proceedings, has been of a nature to evoke the warmest admiration and sympathy not only of journalists but of all who appreciate courageous and disinterested devotion to the public good.

Influential men are such because they are commonly supposed to be men of judgment. Popular estimation frequently places them a notch above this, and supposes them to be men of strong moral purposes. So it frequently happens that the influential men do an immense deal of harm in the mere matter of selling bad and foolish books. A country minister has just called attention to this evil in a card published in one of the Eastern newspapers. He has been looking over a small volume of "Instructions to Agents" issued by a firm of subscription-book publishers, and has found in it such golden aphorisms as these: "Always secure the most influential men first. . . . The getting of leading names is the great turning point of success in canvassing. . . . If any of these leading people are unable to buy or assist as a helper, then ask for their names to head your list for the sake of their influence; the condition being that they are at liberty to take the book or not, when you bring it." This looks very much to the country minister like a conspiracy between publishers, canvassers, and these important "influential men" to obtain money under false pretenses from the general public.

The JOHNS HOPKINS University may yet be an institution worthy of the name it bears. The only effect of the controversy that has arisen as to the scope of the curriculum has been to direct the attention of the Trustees to the post-graduate plan suggested by the New York Nation, and to enlist their sympathies in its favor. The Baltimore American has authority for saying that some of the most influential and energetic of the Trustees are strongly disposed to adopt the new idea, and put it in execution at once. We are heartily glad to hear this. Mushroom colleges and universities have flourished and fallen in this country so often that a single addition to their number would hardly be worth noticing; but the establishment on a solid foundation, though only as a beginning, of an institution that would really assist the cause of higher education, is an event of the utmost consequence.

OBITUARY.

HEINRICH EWALD.

A day or two since the cable announced the death of GEORG HEINRICH AUGUST VAN EWALD, one of the most eminent of modern Orientalists. He was born at Gottingen in 1803, and commenced the study of Oriental literature in his school-days. In 1823 he was a teacher at the Wolfenbuttel Gymnasium, in 1827 extraordinary, and in 1831 ordinary, Professor of Philosophy at Gottingen. His first great work was his "Critical Grammar of the Hebrew Language," in 1827, several abridgments of which have since been published. Between the years 1843-1850 he published an important work in four volumes on the "History of the People of Israel Until the Time of Christ," and a volume on "The Antiquities of the People of Israel." His lectures at Gottingen embraced the literature of the Arabic, Persian, Aramaic and Sanscrit tongues, which were the precursors of several volumes on Arabic subjects. In addition to these books, EWALD planned the "Journal of Eastern Knowledge," "the Yearbook of Biblical Science," and several minor volumes of Ethiopic literature. In 1866, at the time of the reconstruction of Germany, he appeared as a defender of the rights of Hanover, and assailed the Prussian Government so violently that he was tried for high treason, but was acquitted.

MICHEL LEVY.

The New York Herald of the 6th says:

> "A cable telegram from Paris dated this morning, the 5th inst., announces the death of M. MICHEL LEVY, the well-known publisher. He and his brother, CALMAN, formed the well-known publishing firm of MICHEL LEVY Freres, into whose hands were intrusted the works of the principal French authors. MICHEL LEVY was born October 19, 1819, and in 1836 the celebrated house was founded. Although their catalogue comprised every branch of literature, it had as a specialty the publication of dramatic works. LEVY Brothers were also editors of the dramatic journal Entr'acte, Journal du Dimanche, L'Univers Illustre, and Les Bons Romans."

The bill to prevent the sprinkling of street-railroad tracks with salt was practically defeated in the New York Legislature last Wednesday. The railroad companies sent a strong lobby up to Albany, and, after peculiar influences had been brought to bear for a short time, the Assembly was induced to reconsider its action and recommit the bill. The great difficulty of the members who had originally voted for the bill was to assign plausible motives for changing sides. One of them did at last, however, strike out a beautiful line of defense, and the bill was recommitted on the ground that salt-sprinkling, by clearing the tracks, helped horses more than it hurt them.

The London Law Journal, reviewing the case of JOHNSTON against the Athenæum, says that critics are safe enough so long as they keep within the limits of criticism. The following, whether true or false, would not be libelous:

This is the most vile story it was ever our cruel fate to read. The plot is a jumble of plagiarized incidents. The personages are not characters, but Punch and Judy puppets. The author's style is weakest slipslop. We observe that the price of this novel is £1 11s 6d, but whoever pays for it a penny more than the waste-paper dealer will give for it, will pay a penny too much.

But an imputation of immoral purpose would be libelous. In the Athenæum case the libel consisted in stating something which did not appear in the book itself, that the reputed author was not really the author.

Maj. WOOD, of Lexington, Mass., had placed before his house during the recent celebration the English and American flags, and betwixt them a medallion, wreathed with olive-leaves, with simply "1875" in the centre. The design was to show that, however wide apart were the flags a century ago, they were united now. During the evening, after all his guests had departed, word was brought that a party of roughs were approaching to tear down the English flag. The Major took from his hall an old "Tower musket" which had been picked up near his house a century ago, walked out upon his doorsteps, his white hair bristling in the moonlight, and, as the mob halted before him, he said to them: "Fellows, I am aware of your mission. The first one of you who lays a hand on that flag, or offers it the least indignity, is a dead man!" There was a pause. "Right about! march! begone!" added the grim old Major, bringing his musket to ready, and, at the click of cocking, the gang did "right about" and march "double quick" down the avenue. That English flag was the only one displayed during the two celebrations.

DENTISTRY.

Success of Dr. W. B. McChesney's Great Popular Movement.

Reference has from time to time been made in the columns of THE TRIBUNE to a popular movement inaugurated a year ago by a leading dentist of Chicago, Dr. W. B. McChesney, and prosecuted by him in a vigorous and determined spirit till the present time, that move constituting a clean reform in the price of professional dental labor, which, up to the time that it became a fact, would have been regarded as an impracticable delusion. Dr. McChesney, as will be remembered, then avowed his ability and his determination to set his prices at from 30 to 40 per cent of the prevailing rates of standard dentistry, to do superior professional labor, using the best materials known to the profession, to make a good living at these fractional prices, and to fight it out on that line if it took several summers. During the lapse of one year the Doctor has been saved from starvation by professional treatment of 5,000 dental patients; has repaired the dilapidated mouths and furnished teeth to 2,500 persons; has established for his work a reputation for durability, service and comfort to be attained only by the rarest professional skill; has proven that the artificial teeth and plate used by him are the standard material of dentistry, and to accommodate the patronage of our citizens has had to develop his offices on Randolph and Clark streets to the largest system of dental-rooms in the United States, employing fourteen assistants including a physician to superintend the administrations of anæsthetics. The movement has been a success.

Real Estate.

The popular method of sales by installment inaugurated some years since by Mr. Ira Brown, the popular suburban dealer, and now applied by him to his subdivisions in various sections, Evanston, Park Ridge, Desplaines, Glencoe, Thornton, and Hyde Park, is again beginning to awaken popular interest, and the business at Mr. Brown's office in the Otis Block is again beginning to take on something the aspect of such a run as was witnessed during the summer of last year. Mr. Brown states, notwithstanding the rise in the value of property in all his subdivisions, he will adhere to the system of uniform prices and the Ira Brown method of sale,—$15 down and $5 monthly payments.

Andersen.

Hans Christian Andersen's birthday was celebrated enthusiastically at Copenhagen. The day before, the King of Denmark, at a private interview, gave him a decoration, and the Queen and Princess Thyra loaded him with bouquets of flowers. On his birthday crowds of friends visited him, and he received a little illuminated address bound in red velvet, announcing that Danish men and women of all classes had consented to petition the King to permit them to erect a statue of him in the beautiful Rosenborg Gardens in Copenhagen. The King has given his consent, and the sculptors are competing for the work. Andersen was very much touched by this tribute, and made a very pretty speech of thanks. Two of his pieces were performed at the Royal Theatre that evening. The day was also publicly celebrated in Odense, where the poet was born.

Veracious Rats.

New Bedford (Mass.) Standard.

Mrs. Henry Gibbs, of Agawam, Wareham, having occasion to visit one of her neighbors on Wednesday, left her youngest child, an infant of five months, asleep in a cradle in the kitchen. While returning, she fancied she heard her child crying, and hastening into the house was horrified at beholding two enormous rats spring from the cradle. Upon examination of the child's body it was found that the flesh of its left shoulder and arm had been badly lacerated. It is probable that had the mother remained away half an hour longer the infant would have been killed.

PURIFYING ELECTIONS.

Judge Doolittle's Resolutions Submitted to the Bar Association.

He Favors Viva Voce Voting and Fining All Who Fail to Go to the Polls.

Each Head of a Family to Have Two Votes.

Mr. Ayer Concurs in Many of These Suggestions.

At a recent meeting of the Bar Association of Chicago, Judge Doolittle submitted the following resolution:

WHEREAS, Within the last few years there have arisen questions affecting the fundamental law of republican government in which all patriotic citizens, without distinction of party, are equally interested, namely: The law of suffrage,—in what manner and by whom the best good of the State requires that right to be exercised; and

WHEREAS, A united expression of the Bar would receive respectful consideration, and perhaps point out a more certain way to secure this only sure basis for republican government, true civil liberty; therefore,

Resolved, That the Standing Committee on Amendment of the Law be requested to consider this subject, and to report to this Association at its next meeting such proposed amendments to the Constitution or laws as in their opinion would be wise and proper.

The question of suffrage in large cities is a very important one, since a great portion of their population is made up of gamblers, thieves, and loafers,—of persons who neither pay taxes nor contribute to the public weal, and whose sole object in life is to absorb the substance of their neighbors. Thoughtful men have given the subject much attention, but the difficulties attending a change and general apathy regarding elections on the part of the respectable portion of the community have repressed any agitation of the subject. The step forward by Judge Doolittle, however, promises to bring the matter before the public, and, when the Committee of the Bar Association shall have submitted their support, a remedy for existing evils may be suggested.

JUDGE DOOLITTLE.

HIS PROPOSED REMEDIES.

For the purpose of learning Judge Doolittle's views on the question, a reporter called on him yesterday, and had the subjoined conversation with him:

Reporter—I desire to get your views on the question of suffrage: have you any objections to stating them?

Judge Doolittle—I do not feel at liberty to speak in advance of the action of the Committee. It is composed of several of the ablest members of the Bar in the city, and they will doubtless in due time give the matter the consideration due to what all must feel to be the greatest question of our times,— the manner in which and by whom it shall be exercised. It is a question which is above and before all constitutions,—of more importance than negro slavery,—involving the broader question of freedom or slavery for all men, white as well as black, native and foreign born.

THE QUESTION OF SUFFRAGE,—

Reporter—What, in your opinion, is the best mode of preventing frauds in voting and in counting the votes in large cities?

Judge Doolittle—That is an old question—as old as republican government.

HOW TO PREVENT FRAUD

in the counting of votes and preserve the purity of the ballot-box in large cities is one of the gravest questions that can be considered. Montesquieu, in discussing it in his "Spirit of Laws," says: "The law which determines the manner of giving suffrage is fundamental in a democracy. It is a question of some importance whether the suffrages ought to be public or secret. Cicero observes that the laws which rendered them secret, towards the close of the Republic, were the cause of its decline; by rendering the suffrage secret in the Roman Republic all was lost," while some good comes from the secret ballots, experience in large cities shows that the evils of false voting and false counting of votes, when the ballot is secret, far overbalance all the good. In country towns these evils are not so manifest.

Reporter—What remedy would you suggest?

Judge Doolittle—In large cities there is only one sure method of removing the evils of the secret ballot, and that is to REMOVE ITS SECRECY.

Reporter—Are not the present laws adequate to prevent frauds, if enforced?

Judge Doolittle—They provide for the punishment of fraud, but there is no security against fraud in a great city like the open ballot.

Reporter—What would be the manner of conducting an election by an open ballot?

Judge Doolittle—In my opinion, the law should provide, first, that voting should be as public as trials in courts of justice; that every ballot, before being placed in the box, should be publicly read in the hearing of the bystanders, so that all parties might count when the votes were deposited. Second, that the name of every voter and the street and number of the house where he resides should be written upon the back of his vote. Third, that the ballot should be numbered to correspond with the name and number on the poll-lists; that the election districts should be reduced in territory, and the elections held in large rooms. In order to secure a just and full expression of the will of all the people, and of those having most at stake in the good government of the city, the law should provide (and for this purpose the Constitution should be amended) that every voter who is the head of a family and a householder, and who shall have resided with and maintained his family for the two years immediately proceding the election in the district where he offers to vote,

SHALL BE ENTITLED TO TWO VOTES—

one to represent himself, and one to represent his household—at every election held pursuant to law. In order to secure the performance of the highest duty to the well-being of society, the law should also provide that every elector having the qualifications entitling him to a double vote who shall not attend and vote at every election held pursuant to law, unless prevented by sickness or necessary absence from the city, or other sufficient reason, shall be SUBJECT TO A FINE.

These three provisions—the public reading of every ballot, the double vote of the head of a family—one to represent himself and the other the women and children dependent upon him, and who have as much at stake in good government in a city, and more even than men; and the requirement that every head of a family discharge this sacred duty to the State, to himself, and to his wife and children, would make the Government of Chicago as just and pure as that of any large city can be.

B. F. AYER.

WHAT HE THINKS COULD BE DONE.

The reporter next interviewed B. F. Ayer, Esq., the President of the Bar Association:

Reporter—What is your opinion of the present laws regarding suffrage?

Mr. Ayer—I have not reflected enough upon them to have a mature opinion.

Reporter—Do you think any change is necessary?

Mr. Ayer—Well, the evils attending the system of universal suffrage in large cities are constantly growing to be such that will be a matter of necessity before many years. What the nature of it will be I am not prepared to say. Whether relief will be sought in restriction or modification I do not know.

SOME RADICAL CHANGE

Reporter—Do you consider a change practicable?

Mr. Ayer—It would not be practicable to take away the right from any one who now possesses it, but a double vote might be given to certain classes of people.

Reporter—What classes?

Mr. Ayer—Upon tax-payers—those who contribute to the support of the Government under which they live. A very large portion of the voters in large cities are men who contribute nothing at all directly to the support of the Municipal Government, but they have the same voice in the administration of affairs as those who do.

Reporter—Are

ANY ADDITIONAL LAWS

necessary to prevent frauds at elections?

Mr. Ayer—We have laws which are good enough, but they are not enforced.

Reporter—Who is responsible?

Mr. Ayer—Well, there is very great difficulty proving such frauds. Some have thought that the abolition of the ballot and the restoration of the viva voce vote would be a remedy, inasmuch as it would render impossible, or very difficult, many of the frauds which are now perpetrated.

Reporter—Do you think

THE VIVA VOCE SYSTEM

could be successfully adopted in a city like Chicago?

Mr. Ayer—I do not know why it could not. I think the advantages claimed for the secret ballot are very much overestimated and exaggerated. The principal argument in favor of it is that, if men were obliged to vote openly, they could be more easily influenced by their employers. There may be something in that, but not very much in my view.

Reporter—Could 50,000 men vote viva voce in a day?

Mr. Ayer—Why not? There would be some difficulty to be sure where there were so many candidates, but I doubt not some means could be devised to obviate it. Of course the present machinery would have to be superseded, and the limits of the election districts materially diminished.

THE BAR ASSOCIATION.

Reporter—Will the Bar Association be apt to take any action regarding the matter?

Mr. Ayer—I doubt very much whether they will be inclined to take any decisive step or to make any decisive recommendation upon the subject. I would be glad to see the question discussed, and to have some suggestion made which would receive the approval of that portion of the community that has the good of the State at heart. The subject is a very important one, but it would be extremely difficult to make any change. The process would necessarily be a very slow one; nothing could be done until the people had been educated up to it by experience and a realization of its absolute necessity. Thoughtful men everywhere have become convinced that the right of suffrage has been in this country. I am not prepared to say whether it ought to be restricted as it is in some of the Eastern States, but I do think it is practicable to regulate it hereafter. In a Presidential election it does not make so much difference, for there is generally an expression of the popular will; but in municipal elections, which are often controlled by the very worst classes in society, a modification is necessary. The evils are not felt in the country districts, although frauds are committed at every general election, but not to such an extent as to affect the result. In large cities it is just the contrary. The Committee having the subject under consideration is a good one, and they will doubtless consider it carefully, and make a report upon it. I spoke to the Chairman (Mr. W. C. Goudy), and he promised to give it attention. Perhaps the Association may be the means of bringing the subject before the people, and inducing the newspapers to take it up. The press is the molder of public opinion, and the securing of a remedy for existing evils rest in great measure with the newspapers.

EXTENDED TOO FAR

SINGER THE SEWER.

The History of a Favorite Machine.

No More Is Sung "The Song of the Shirt."

The future historian, in reviewing the progress of civilization, will make the perfection of the sewing-machine the beginning of a new era, whose earliest days transcended long years of previous periods in the point of human comfort, and the ease and possibilities of production. Like the great majority of labor-saving machines, this one lingered in the minds of many ingenious men, and was experimented on long before the idea was put in such shape as to render it useful, popular, and within reach of the masses.

The first letter in the alphabet of the sewing-machine was the needle, pointed at both ends and having an eye in the centre, patented in England in the year 1755 by Charles F. Weisenthal. In 1770 Robert Alsop, and in 1804 John Duncan, added improvements, and in 1807 James Winter provided a substitute for the finger and thumb of the seamstress. Newton and Archibold, in England, and J. J. Greenough, in America, in 1841 and 1842, respectively, constructed ingenious machines, but it was reserved for Elias Howe, a poor mechanic of Cambridge, Mass., to secure a patent for the first practical, useful machine.

BUT ELIAS HOWE'S CLAIM to be the father of the sewing-machine rests only on the fact of his procuring the patent. In the field of invention he had a predecessor, Walter Hunt, of Boston, and a contemporary, Isaac Singer,—another Boston mechanic,—to the former of whom Howe is indebted for the idea, and to the latter of whom must be accorded the credit of devising some of the most useful features of the perfected machine. Howe's first effort was a curious affair, totally unlike the article so familiar to everybody, in both shape and method of operation, and, had it not been for the improvements which were rapidly suggested, it is improbable that it would have come into general use. First and foremost among the clear-headed and ingenious men who bridged the gaps of imperfection was the Boston mechanic, before referred to. He added two rotary shafts, and by devising the perpendicular needle-bar and several other ingenious contrivances, gave a wider range to its adaptation and the quality of finish to its operations; herein he actually constructed the first sewing-machine as known and used to-day. When he came to utilize his inventions, Mr. Singer was confronted by the holders of the Howe patent, and a series of lawsuits were instituted, which were presently swelled by the claims of other improvers, among them Grover & Baker and Wheeler & Wilson. Tedium and expense were avoided by a final compromise, by virtue of which the first patentee, the first maker, and the subsequent improvers entered into joint proprietorship, a royalty on the needles manufactured being reserved to the Howe's. Through all these chances and changes the prestige of Mr. Singer placed him, at the outcome, at the head of all manufacturers, showing that the public is often the best judge, after all, of the merits of rival and conflicting interests.

ISAAC SINGER,

In 1850

THE FACTORY OF J. M. SINGER & CO.,

in Boston, was small and unpretending, yet they had hardly provided themselves with more commodious quarters in that city, when the establishment of a branch house at New York became necessary; in the latter city they occupy the large building bounded by Delancy, Mangim, and Gorick streets. In 1859 a branch house was established in Paris, France. Ten years later the walnut forests of Indiana were brought to their doors by the erection of a large factory at South Bend. In 1870 they again crossed the ocean and established another European depot and branch, this time at Glasgow, Scotland. So rapidly have they extended their bounds in this country that to-day there is not a prominent city that does not number among its prominent firms and palatial edifices one of the establishments of J. M. Singer & Co. At Elizabeth, New Jersey, they have recently completed, and now occupy, the largest and most perfect sewing-maching factory in the world, capable of turning out 10,000 machines a week, or over 500,000 per year.

THE SINGER MACHINE

has become the popular favorite in Europe and in its native land, because it is the best. The immense proportion of the trade which has been gained by this pre-eminence cannot be better illustrated than by an exhibit of by the different companies during the past two years,—the Secor Company having suspended operations. Except the Singer Company, it will be noted that a decrease of sales is the rule. The Singer, however, in 1874, exceeds its 1873 sales by nearly 10,000 machines. These figures are taken from sworn returns, and are, consequently, reliable. They are as follows:

THE BUSINESS DONE

ICE.

No Longer an Unpleasant Subject for Discussion.

Prominent Dealers from Whom This Summer Staple Can Be Procured.

Ice was little known as an article of commerce until the early part of the present century, and, indeed, 200 years ago the luxury of ice-water was hardly enjoyed by the inhabitants of any temperate climate. The first consignment of the article to foreign ports was shipped from Boston to Martinique in 1805. Since that date American ice has been sent to far distant cities in the tropics, and many a vessel from our shores has unloaded her perishable freight at Calcutta, India. The home demand has long since demonstrated the fact that ice in summer is a positive necessity to each city, town, and hamlet of our land. Chicago, with her rapid progress in every other direction, has within her limits several firms in whose hands the traffic has grown to immense proportions during the last twenty years, and the excellent facilities in this vicinity for cutting, storing, and shipping have made our city the prominent ice market of the West.

MARK S. THOMPSON & CO.

During the season for cutting ice, or more properly during the ice harvest, the vicinity of Stone Lake, Laporte County, Indiana, is a scene of busy industry. It is from off the waters of this beautiful lake that Messrs. Mark S. Thompson & Co. annually store their immense stock of ice for the refreshment of Chicago and Southern cities during the heated term. Clear as crystal, and pure as the never-failing springs which fill the lake, are the glassy blocks packed carefully away to be taken out in summer, with scarcely a rounded edge. It was over thirteen years ago that Mr. Mark S. Thompson and James H. Thompson became engaged in the business of cutting and storing ice, but it was not until the year 1869 that the brothers availed themselves of the splendid opportunity offered at Stone Lake, and commenced operations in that vicinity by securing control of the ice-fields there located. The wisdom of their choice has been fully demonstrated by the steadily increasing demand for their ice, and from a comparatively small beginning their business has increased to such an extent that they have been obliged to erect additional storehouses at various favorable points, the principal localities, besides Stone Lake, being Clear Lake, also in Laporte County, Ind., and at Lake Winnebago, Wisconsin.

The past season, as the shuddering citizens of Chicago have been too often forced to realize, has been moderately favorable for the formation of ice, and consequently the present stock of that commodity secured at Stone Lake is both large and excellent, and the firm find themselves well prepared to furnish the finest quality of ice in quantities to suit the people. The extent of the present year's crop may be adequately judged from the fact that on the 23d of March last the firm had in store about 43,000 tons, and had stored and shipped for other parties about 19,000 tons, making an aggregate of 62,000 tons. Nearly all the ice consumed in the City of Vincennes is supplied by this firm, and they also ship largely to Louisville and Evansville.

As in former years, the ice for their city trade will be shipped to Chicago via the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad, and upon its arrival here is switched upon their side track and loaded into their distributing wagons. They also have various city depots, which are situated on Twelfth street at the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern crossing, at Nos. 97 and 99 North May street, 243 and 245 Twenty-sixth street, and at the corner of North Franklin and Pearson streets. It will readily be seen that these localities are most convenient for people who may wish to haul their own ice, which market and milk men often prefer to do.

To transact the firm's city business about fifty men are employed, and during the summer months seventeen wagons are kept constantly running. These wagons are of uniform size and pattern, are furnished with platform springs, and are all made in Cincinnati, and, of course, are the best and strongest that can be procured. With their gayly-painted sides representing an ice-cutting scene they are familiar and welcome objects to our citizens during the heated term. The process of daily distribution of ice commences at about 3 o'clock in the morning, when the wagons are loaded at their depot in the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern yard at Twelfth street, and almost the first sound which break the silence of our summer mornings is the heavy rumbling of those ponderous wagons, whose contents twelve hours later are to cool the fevered heads and palates of our inhabitants during the hot noonday.

JAMES P. SMITH & CO.

Ice, formerly regarded as a delicious luxury, has now come to be a positive necessity to metropolitan American life. The article was delivered here in a primitive way as early as 1847, at which time a one-horse wagon supplied the North, South, and West Divisions of the city. In earlier days, with an inferior population and fewer stately walls to enclose hot and oftentimes dusty streets, there was of course less need and demand for ice in large quantities.

Messrs. James P. Smith & Co. have been engaged in the ice traffic for the last twenty years. These gentlemen have left no means untried to build up and increase the business so prosperously begun, and the best standard by which to judge of their success is their present heavy trade and well-earned reputation. These years have placed them among the most enterprising and successful ice dealers in the Northwest, and their excellent stock and fair prices must enable them to retain such a position. The ice sold by the firm is cut in several choice localities, among which are Lake Calumet, Calumet River, Batavia, Illinois, and Fond du Lac, Wisconsin. The ice-houses owned by the gentlemen are large and numerous, and would, if collected, form a respectable country village. They are located as follows: Three on the shores of Lake Calumet, and an equal number on the Calumet River; one in the Fox River Valley between Geneva and Batavia, Ill., built in six sections; one in the town of Riverside; one in the City of Fond du Lac, Wis., and six in Chicago, five of which are on Indiana avenue near Sixteenth street, and the other at the foot of Ellis avenue. The latter was erected during the present season, and was built expressely to accommodate the inhabitants of the most southerly portions of the city, and also residents of the Village of Hyde Park. All those houses are so located as to be accessible to some one of the many railroads centering in Chicago; hence the facilities of the firm for promptly filling outside orders are most excellent.

The capacity of these houses is about 75,000 tons. The ice is from 20 to 28 inches thick, and all clear and solid. They employ about sixty men, and have constantly in use during the warm season twenty-five heavy ice wagons which may be easily known since all are painted white.

The offices of the firm are at Rooms 3, 4, and 5, 145 Monroe street, and 786 Indiana avenue.

WADHAMS, WILLARD & CO.

The oldest firm in the ice business in Chicago is that of Wadhams, Willard & Co., whose office is in Superior Block. This concern has been supplying our citizens with the sparkling crystals ever since 1859, and understand both the importance of serving their customers in the early morning and how to do it, and add to this knowledge the great advantage of delivering only a perfectly pure article. The progress of the art of comfort has rendered ice no longer a luxury; it is a positive necessity, hence the importance of using unusual care, on the part of the cutter and dealer, that only such ice as is free from the thousand and one impurities to which water is subjected, may be kept or sold. Wadhams, Willard & Co. compass this desirable end by procuring their stock at points distant from the contamination of cities and sewerage, bringing it to their ice houses over the Northwestern, Pan-Handle, Pittsburg & Fort Wayne, and Illinois Central Railroads. Their depot and stables are situated at the corner of Taylor and Beach streets, a central location, most favorable to early delivery. For this year's demand they have on hand 75,000 tons, and employ about thirty teams in delivery; they sell also to small dealers for retail. They employ a small army of men in the various departments of their trade, and are a prompt, reliable, and enterprising firm.

Personal.

We note the arrival at the Clifton House of our friend, Mr. N. C. Hinsdale, of the enterprising firm of Hinsdale, Doyle & Co., monument dealers, 659 Broadway, New York. He informs us that his firm has recently acquired the right of sale of all work and rough stock from the Westerly Quarries of The Smith Granite Company, Westerly, R. I., and that this will enable them to furnish to our citizens monumental or other kinds of work at prices even below those which they have heretofore charged. We commend him to our people, as no man has done more to beautify our cemeteries with perfect monumental work than he. The Northwestern Marble and Granite Company are their Western agents, No. 151 South Jefferson street.

Genuine Art.

There is on exhibition at 154 State street the most beautiful and valuable collection of imported marble statuary that has been in Chicago for many years. It is the special importation of Messrs. Viti Brothers, of Philadelphia (established 1815), and consists of beautiful bronzes, ormulu gilt twenty-one-day clocks, mantel vases, card-receivers, etc., besides the superbly-executed statues and statuettes in the finest Italian marble. Among these should be seen Salada's exquisite "Morning Rose," the gem of the artistic collection. The sculptor has pictured a fairy little maiden with arms full of flowers, and the execution and conception are alike marked by genius. Another superb feature of the collection is the line of ten emblematic statues, of which the most beautiful is "Feeding the Pets." Nelli's "Sleeping Child," in the window, attracts much attention, partly because of the snow-like purity of the marble. Another superb gem is Franchi's "Step to the Bath," wonderfully well executed.

The collection was yesterday visited and admired by large numbers of the best art judges in the city. It will be open for free inspection until Wednesday morning, when the popular auctioneers, Messrs. J. H. Chambers & Co., will dispose of the whole collection of 186 lots at auction, beginning at 10:30 a. m. Every admirer of art should enjoy the collection and attend the sale.

The Silk Question.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

CHICAGO, May 7.—As the Northampton and Rockville manufacturers continue quarreling about the poor old silk made years ago, I have taken pains to compare a 100 yard spool of each in "Letter D," with the following result:

Belding Bros., & Co.'s, strength, 9½ lbs., measured 84 yards.

"Gaylord's," made by Nonotuck Co., strength, 10 lbs., measured 89¼ yards.

"Eureka," made by Seavey, Foster & Bowman, strength, 11½ lbs., measured 102 yards.

MILWAUKEE.

ARCADIAN DELIGHTS AND THEIR CONSEQUENCES.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MILWAUKEE, May 8—A peculiar Milwaukee institution is the Sunday outdoor beer-garden, which begins to bloom once more, and allure the lovers of Nature and lager to its umbrageous groves and sweet-scented bowers. The innocent pleasures of these sylvan places of resort have been painted by many a master hand. The honest burgher recuperating himself with a foaming tankard of the beverage that does not inebriate but makes stupid, with his comfortable frau knitting stockings by his side and taking demure sips from her own little schnitt, and his healthy progeny gamboling on the velvet turf, is a picture so familiar to us by much telling from the platforms and writing in the papers that we seem to know it by heart and to have been looking at it all our lives.

Milwaukee abounds in such gardens, some of them large and pretentious enough to be christened "parks" by their ambitious proprietors. All have a theatre, and an immense block of buildings where the worship of Bacchus in any shape you please may be pursued, where the savory saveloy, or pickled trotters of the pig may be enjoyed; where "appointments" may be kept, and private rooms be had for large or small parties—that is to say, for a crowd of dancers or a select assembly of two. There is invariably a dancing floor, with an orchestra, and sometimes lager and peanut stands, dotting the grounds. Hundreds of tables, with benches in proportion, surround the Gambrinian centres. Straying away from the tables and benches, you shall chance to find a mossy bank, or snug ravine, or shady thicket, where the poet, the dreamer, the young enthusiast, may recline in luxurious ease and commune with Nature. Twenty-five cents and a supply of beer for the evening, will induce some one of the scores of graceful maidens who, in the pursuit of liberty and happiness, are pensively treading the mazy paths, to share your solitude and your adoration. These Arcadian scenes may be enjoyed nightly from this time forward. It has been too early yet to sit on a bank on which the grass has not begun to grow, wrapped in overcoat and furs, as one must have done these past beautiful spring nights. But soon the gentle zephyr from the sunny South will be upon us, and our hearts will sing tra la la, and we shall choose the sunset hours with perspiring feet, and lager shall refresh our bodies, and gracious fraulein fill our souls with bliss.

The scene changes.

FROM THE BIER GARTEN TO THE COUNTY HOSPITAL is but an acre or two. An interval of a few months alone seperates the glowing joys of summer in the garten, from the pains of spring in the hospital. Twenty-five sweet maidens, now paying penance in the latter place for too much pleasure in the former, answer questions somewhat in the following fashion:

Are you married?—No.

Do you live with your parents?—No. They sent me to work out when I was (11, 12 or) 13 years of age.

What do you attribute your present trouble to?—I had no friends, and used to spend my evenings "out" in the bier garten. There I became acquainted with Herman. He promised to marry me. (Sobbing.)

Well, why don't you make him keep his promise?—But, madam, I know not where he lives; or where he works. I saw him not elsewhere but at the gardens.

That's the story. They all tell it the same way. It is different from the ordinary platform and newspaper story, though; and as in this particular the Milwaukee institution seems to suffer from those of other places, I thought I would tell it to you. The News has been telling it, too; but in a less delicate way. The writers on that paper seem to look upon these bier gartens—not to put too fine a point on't—as no better than so many training-places for future prostitutes.

THE STORY OF JOHN BURKE.

John Burke emigrated from Ireland to the United States some years ago, bringing with him an unconquerable fondness for ardent spirits that rendered a longer residence in the land of his birth inconvenient and undesirable. He settled in Illinois, and staggered through life till the accumulated burden of a wife and four children proved too much for him, and he dropped the load and fled to Wisconsin. In this State, he turned up in divers places, hero of numerous shooting, cutting or fistic affrays, and drunken sprees. Last Monday, he was brought to the police station in this city, with a razor wound, 5 inches long, over the left eyebrow, and another, 4 inches long, below the left ear, towards the windpipe. The blade had glanced upwards in both instances, and simply cut under the flesh, carving it. Had it cut straight downward the affair would have been called a murder. I had a talk with this man. Physically, he was a splendid specimen. Mentally, he was a vacuum. "This ought to teach you to give up drinking," said I, always sanguine. "Don't know as it will," was the reply; "if I had a hundred dollars to-morrow, and I was out on the streets, in good health, I guess it would all go in whisky." "But does not this narrow escape prove it won't 'pay' to get drunk?" I persisted. "This ain't much," he answered, contemptuously, though his teeth were chattering and his body shivering. "I've gone through ten times worse than this; and 'tisn't such a trifle that's going to kill me." "But, are you acting the part of a man to your wife and children?" I continued. The fellow actually looked shame-faced at these words, and his eyes grew smaller and crystallized with unwilling tears, but the devil that was in him replied: "What's the difference, now, what becomes of them, or me? We've got no friends in this country. I've deserted them, and its only trouble and sorrow to them I'd be, if ever I set eyes upon them any more. I've never acted the part of a man to them, and I'm too fond of the whisky to begin now."

Here was a clear case of knowledge of an evil and inability to overcome it. The law has been fining and punishing this man all his life for getting drunk, and suffering him to be exposed to a temptation he plainly cannot resist. As soon as he gets about and earns a few dollars again, he will most certainly become intoxicated, and be as likely as not to kill somebody or be killed. Would it not "pay" to take hold of this man and do for him what he cannot do for himself,—force him to live without liquor, and when both mind and body are in a healthy state, and he is ready to receive instruction, teach him how to fight the evil alone and unaided? We want more sending of drunkards to inebriate asylums, and less fining and going free, to fall again into temptation.

This same Burke once stole a horse-blanket. He had never thieved before; but, being a drunkard, could not obtain work, and, having no money, stole in order that he might live. The man's ideas of right and wrong had got mixed up, under the pressure of trouble and the obfuscation of alcohol.

Another poor devil cut his throat yesterday. He was such a rascal of a drunkard that his wife died, and his four children abandoned him. One of them, nineteen years of age, testified at the inquest that he went to see the old man, a couple of weeks ago, but he was so drunk nobody could understand him. And out of respect for the feelings of others, in a moment of remorse and sobriety, "old man Gottlieb Friegge"—the "old man" was only 46 years of age, by the way—obligingly severed his windpipe. This man, by industry, and by keeping down the demon of intemperance during the first years of his married life, bought a lot and built the house he lived in when he snuffed himself out, upon it. When drink got too strong for him, he went down hill fast. The two uncles of the four orphans refused to have anything to do with the four children or the property; and the waifs will drift into whatever luck God or the devil may send them.

"BLUFF OLD HAL" ON HIS PEDESTAL AGAIN.

For the past two weeks I have had occasion to tickle his Honor the Mayor under the soles of his feet, on account of that annual message. I am rejoiced to say that "bluff old Hal" has reëstablished himself in my good opinion,—and will in the opinion of other former good friends and admirers, when they learn the facts,—by his evident intention to do what he ought to have done long ago: interpose his veto where he is satisfied an outlay is contemplated that ought not to be sanctioned. Of such a character, it is stated, is the late vote for the Seventh Ward Park, which he is credited with an intention to veto. This improvement has been a costly one, but it is in process of being carried out, and it seems a pity to allow the stones, turf, sewer-pipe, earth, and all the rest of it, to incumber the ground, in the state it is now in, and the work to be stopped when two-thirds through. Still, by vetoing the proposed expenditure, his Honor will show a disposition to carry his recent strictures into practical effect. None of us object to the strictures, for we know too well, alas, how frightful our expenditures have become; but strictures without action, when the power lay in the Mayor's pen-fingers, was simply adding insult to injury. In this case, some think the Mayor might compromise by allowing the works already undertaken to be completed, and vetoing anything beyond. Put Bluff old Hal up on the pedestal again; once more we count ourselves among the faithful.

THE ALLEGED LEAK IN THE RESERVOIR.

The Water Commissioners are said to have satisfied themselves by personal inquiry that the statement printed in THE TRIBUNE as to water leaking from the reservoir is not correct. I am informed by the gentleman who complains of the leak that he is having an investigation of his own made, the result of which I will communicate as soon as ascertained. The Mayor seems to be satisfied there is no truth in the report, and as he is a man in whose judgment we are accustomed to confide we shall go to sleep happy a few nights longer. If the Water Commissioners are correctly reported they have come to the conclusion that if there was a leak in the reservoir the pressure would be so immense that a break must have been caused long before this! Therefore there is no leak. Besides they discovered no water below the corner of the reservoir pointed out.

A BATCH OF LATE ITEMS.

The South Side is to have $3,000 for new hose. They already have an engine-house and some old carts. The carts will have to be tittivated up, and utilized for the hose. Our water pressure is such that a hose attached to a hydrant in any part of the city will produce a stream higher than the Newhall House.

The suit of $627,000, brought by the United States District Attorney against the Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, mentioned in my telegram yesterday, is to recover taxes, fines, etc., imposed by authority of acts of Congress on the passenger revenue and other sources of income of the defendant Company from June, 1862, to January, 1872. In a case of such importance as this, Judge Hubbell will do doubt be allowed assistance. The railroad company paid what it maintains to be all that it ever owed to the Government; and that the amount claimed is demanded under strained interpretations of the law by the Departments that will never be sustained by the courts.

The office of Alexander & Hatch, respecting whose extraordinary treatment of depositors an expose was exclusively made by THE TRIBUNE, have been forced to close their place of business, and seek from their own creditors that clemency they denied to others. The attorneys in the criminal case compromised the prosecution; but just what the terms of such compromise were have yet to be discovered.

The expenses of the Health Department for the past year amounted only to $2,219.16—a very small sum in view of the quantity of work done and good effected. Dr. Johnson, the inspecting officer, was reappointed by the Board, and he will doubtless carry out many of the reforms his report of the past year shows to be necessary.

Our Catholic population are making great preparations for the coming elevation of their beloved Bishop Henni to the Archbishopric of Milwaukee, and are not a little elated at the triumph of our ecclesiastic over the other dignitaries of the Church in larger cities—not to name names. The ceremony will probably come off about the 15th, and be as magnificent as the imagination can picture, or money, skill, and experience in displays, make it.

Anybody in the way of making fortunes out of brick, may find a substantial foundation to begin upon in this city. Owing to the severe winter, and the depth to which the clay was frozen, we are all behind this spring, in the manufacture of that much-prized article, Milwaukee brick, and shall be obliged to draw largely from Chicago, although we are quite well aware what inferior trash we will have to put up with.

A good deal of human happiness is derived from the weather. As we have had a good deal more weather of late than was really necessary for existence,—three seasons a day mostly,—there have been considerable fluctuations in our happiness; which may account for the extremely low spirits which possess this weary pencil today.

THE NEW RELIGIOUS DEPARTURE.

MILWAUKEE, May 8.—The readers of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE are already familiar with the fact that the Fourth Congregational Society, the Rev. Myron W. Reed, pastor, has taken to the Academy of Music as a place of worship. They held service there last Sunday for the first time, and it looks now as if it was to be the most popular religious movement ever inaugurated in this city. The large hall, which seats 1,400 persons, was very well filled in the morning, and at the evening service it was packed to its utmost capacity, many persons being compelled to go away, and others remaining to stand during the entire service. The audience was not only a very remarkable one in numbers for a city that is full of churches like Milwaukee, and on an occasion of no special interest, but it was made up to a large extent of young people, at least three-quarters of the entire crowd being under 30 years of age. A large fraction of those are not in the habit of attending religious services regularly any place, and if they can be induced to visit the Academy of Music every Sunday evening, they will improve in morals and manner, and stand the chance of drifting into safer and better ways in the future.

THE REV. MR. REED

has obviously a grand opportunity opened up before him in being drivin in this way into a place where the crowd will go and listen to him, and as his opportunity is increased so also will be his responsibility. He is undoubtedly the most popular clergyman in Milwaukee to-day, and is looked upon by his personal friends as the coming man of the Northwest in his profession; but here is a new test about to be applied to him, and the question is, Will he be able to stand it and acquit himself in a manly and successful manner? His new departure will be likely to attract a large proportion of that very class that need his ministrations most—the unchurched, the free-thinkers, the radicals, and the young people whose thoughts have never yet been seriously given to the examination of religious questions. There will be in his audiences the radical analytical sifter of all religious statements that emanate from the platform; the hard-headed skeptic whose mind resembles a quartz mill, grinding the granite of thought to powder in search of gold; the hungry logician who wants his spiritual food brought to him on one of Euclid's propositions, having all things proved in order that he may hold fast to that which is good; the young and inquisitive that are athirst for something new; and the highly sensitive and emotional natures whose devotional souls bask in the light of their Savior's countenance and are satisfied. The pastor is to provide the bill of fare that is to satisfy all these wants, and I believe Mr. Reed will be able to do it. While I have very little sympathy with his creed, I have a great deal of earnest sympathy with the man, and admire his ability, his sincerity, and his broad and catholic spirit that he manifests on all occasions. He is the best specimen of an

ANTI-CLERICAL CLERGYMAN

that I know, and well calculated to succeed in a popular movement of this kind. Is it not time for Christians of all denominations to begin to inquire why it is that their cause is so near a lost cause? Why is it that in a city like this only one in ten attends church on Sunday, and only one of the ten professes to lead a religious life? All except infidels and skeptics agree that the defect is not inherent in the Christian system itself, but that its want of success lies in the administration of it, in our methods of propagating it, and in the incidental circumstances and surroundings that belong to it. Possibly, our prevalent style of church architecture is responsible for sending many a soul to perdition; at any rate, there is less comfort in our churches, according to the amount of money that is lavished upon them, than in any other buildings that we erect. Isn't there a combination of vicious architecture, "dim, religious light," uncomfortable temperature, uneasy seats, ministerial whines, pious cant, and ecclesiastical smells, that keep the great bulk of the people outside of our places of worship? Will not Mr. Reed feel more free and less hampered by his creed when standing on the common platform of the Academy of Music than ever before? and will not his auditors realize a corresponding freedom when they reflect that the seats they occupy are theirs, and that no one of them is wedged into a pew that has been bought and paid for by some aristocratic neighbor?

READIN', RITIN', AND 'RITHMETIC.

That supreme peace that usually fills the Milwaukee bosom has been turned into a troubled sea recently over the action of the Board of Aldermen in the appointment of a School-Commissioner. To clearly understand the case, the reader must first be made aware of the fact that the schools, and everything else in Milwaukee that is run by the politicians, are made subservient to their ambition and wishes, and hence it is that we sometimes put upon the boards a roaring farce, when it would be manifestly to the credit and pleasure of both performers and auditors to have a respectable drama enacted.

The very last thing of the sort was the appointment of a party by the name of Mallon, whose given name is Patrick, to be School-Commissioner from the Fifth Ward, and the banishment of a highly-educated and experienced gentleman. Patrick's qualifications for the position are not considered first-class; indeed, to speak of him as plainly as his neighbors do, it would be safe to say that, if he should limit his endeavors to the management of a lumber-yard, he would find full scope for all his educational talent. Certain it is that the good people of the Fifth Ward are quite unanimously of the opinion that the Board of Aldermen have committed a great outrage upon them and their school interests, and six or seven hundred of them have publicly called upon the aforesaid Mallon through the public prints to resign. But Mallon is not that sort of a man if he knows himself, and, regarding a bird in hand worth two in the bush, he declares his intention to serve out his time in defiance of the wishes of his constituents.

YOUNG MEN'S ASSOCIATION.

The annual election of officers for the Young Men's Association comes off Monday, and, as there are three tickets in the field, there is naturally considerable excitement in the city to-day over the canvass. So far as I understand the matter, the controversy is not based upon any principle, or upon the proposition to adopt any different line of policy from that which has been heretofore pursued, but it is simply a scramble for the offices and the pride of controlling an organization that has grown to be a credit to the city. Each one of the tickets is excellent, and, no matter which wins, the Association will be certain of a choice lot of officials for the ensuing year. It is a great pity that all of them cannot be elected.

THE ST. PAUL RAILROAD ELECTION.

For the past few days there has been considerable local excitement over the anticipated result of the election of the next Board of Directors for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad Company. The Hon. Alexander Mitchell, the President of the Road and our financial Big Injun, deliberately put on his war-paint, and has gone East to dance the war-dance with Russell Sage and the other chiefs and grand sachems of the tribe. It is said that Sage, Cowdery, James, and their associates, have always been able to control the management of the Company, and that they shape its policy to suit themselves from the Wall street standpoint, and often to the great detriment of the road and the best interests of a majority of its stockholders. Two years ago, when the rates of freight were advanced, right in the face of the Grange excitement, it was claimed to have been at the dictation of the Wall street gentlemen and against the emphatic protest of Messrs. Mitchell, Merrill, and other Western stockholders. Sage is a domineering, aggressive fellow, full of pluck, audacity, and brains, and is always willing to steer the ship, if he can get at the wheel, but Mitchell is clearly of the opinion that Sage had better now stand back a little, where he can see just as well, and let older and safer heads run the machine. There is about $50,000,000 worth of stock to be voted upon, of which Sage and his party hold only $5,000,000. Mitchell's friends here are confident of his triumph.

"LET DOGS DELIGHT," &C.

We are just now witnessing the extraordinary spectacle of two newspapers using unkind and sarcastic language to each other. The Daily News, which is the oldest Democratic daily in the State, and which has always been noted for its high-toned dignity and severe chastity of language, has so far forgotten what is becoming to it as a pattern of propriety that it has called its pert little rival, the Commercial Times, some very unpleasant names. The Times retorts in kind, exhibiting even greater philological power, if possible, than the News, and furnishing some specimens of rough-and-tumble word-painting quite superior to anything Horace Greeley ever did in his controversies with Henry J. Raymond. What makes it more unpleasant is that both sheets belong to the same party—the Reformers—and there is danger of the public believing what each one says.

THE TRIBUNE.

The steady increase in the circulation of THE TRIBUNE in this section of Wisconsin, especially on Saturdays and Sundays, is a gratification that rises above self-interest and embraces the general good of the community. Its superiority as a newspaper over its unscrupulous and unconscionable rival is now everywhere recognized and acknowledged, and its patrons are an honor to it as it is to them. The Sunday issue has become a local necessity to Milwaukee, and its appearance is as welcome after breakfast as the ringing of the church bells.

LAKESIDE.

ANOTHER WISCONSIN WATERING-PLACE.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

LAKESIDE, Wis., May 7.—THE TRIBUNE is ever a welcome visitor here, and it seems natural to us to regard it as one of our best friends. We were just the least bit in the world jealous, last year, at reading such glowing accounts of the watering-places of Wisconsin in your columns, and not a word about this the gem of the whole; and think you ought at least to acknowledge our existence.

Mr. W. F. Coolbaugh, Mr. Eugene S. Pike, Mr. C. W. Belden, Mr. George Eggleston, Mr. B. H. Chamberlain, Mr. W. C. Goudy, Mr. F. W. Peck, Mr. G. H. Wheeler, Mr. F. S. Fairchild, Mr. W. H. Cunningham, Mr. Charles Fargo, Mr. Edward Asay, Mr. A. C. Tenney, Mr. A. A. Denning, Mr. N. H. Loomis, Mr. J. B. Lyon, Mr. J. I. Farwell, Mr. J. S. Cooper, and a number of other prominent Chicagoans, whose names I do not now recall, were here last summer, and the opinion was unanimous that a more beautiful, peaceful, healthful spot does not exist in the world than this favored little nest among the lakes of Wisconsin.

I must tell you this is none of your noisy, screaming, flaring, fashionable hot-beds of fatigue, flurry, and foppery. We have the best of the best, or, as the French so well put it, la creme de la creme, for our visitors, and they come here with one desire, namely: health, rest, and tranquil enjoyment.

Our hotel accommodations are unique, consisting of a picturesque group of cottages, all perfectly comfortable, elegant, and modern, with the varnish rubbed off and the scent of the forest flowers and green meadows pervading all.

The main hotel buildings are more like a big family club-house than anything else. Mr. C. D. Nash, of Milwaukee, the eminent banker, to whom they belong, has gone to great expense to render them in every way suitable to the tastes of the class of people whom experience has shown may be counted upon as our regular summer visitors; and they are just perfect, and, withal, the expenses here are not greater than they would be at any moderate boarding house. The capacity of the hotel has been greatly enlarged, and the entire place so improved and beautified that one may well say nature and art can do no more.

The hotel-grounds are 50 rods distant from the lake, 100 feet above it, and 500 feet above Lake Michigan. The grounds slope gently down to the water's edge, which is fringed with a most charming pebbly shore. On the east and west, the cottages are skirted with the grand old forest, the lake occupying the south line. To the north, there is a rich landscape of fertile pastures and green meadows, either side of the tree-embowered avenue leading to the railroad depot, with an amphitheatre of the everlasting hills beyond.

There is splendid fishing and rowing, shooting and walking. There is admirable system of attendance. The scream of the railroad whistle is sufficiently far off to be lost in the dimness of distance and sufficiently near to be accessible. A large drawing and reception room has been added to the hotel, as well as a magnificent bowling-alley. Opposite the cottages are the Oakton Springs, the proprietor of which claims the same virtues for them as are conceded to Waukesha water. A steamer plies to and fro at all hours of the day. Pewaukee Lake, on the shores of which this charming spot has been created, is 23 miles west of Milwaukee, on the LaCrosse branch of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad.

We shall be swept out and in tip-top reception order by the 15th inst. Now, friend TRIBUNE, we hope you will not forget to pay us a visit when you need to recuperate.

KENOSHA.

MAY.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

KENOSHA, May 8.—The month was ushered in by a snow-storm which covered the ground to the depth of 2 inches or more, and a fine young gale of wind blowing at the time made lively work with sign-boards, rickety old frame-buildings, and benighted foot-travelers. A May-day party on such a day as that would have been decidedly malapropos. Certainly the "Queen o' the May" would have had a pinched, blue look, and the driving sleet would have made sad havoc with her gala dress. No, this climate is not exactly suited to dances on the greensward in May, for its peculiarities are many, and such as try the strongest nerves and lungs. Were he so inclined the Clerk of the Weather might remedy matters somewhat by sending a few warm days to dissipate the chill and frost in the air, and the discontent that is fast settling down on us poor forlorn specimens of humanity.

ACCIDENTS.

Last Thursday morning, while Mr. Volney French was driving in the western outskirts of the city, his horse took fright, and, suddenly jumping, broke the bolts which hold the shafts in place, overturning the buggy, throwing Mr. French out, and injuring him quite severely. The horse did not wait to see the effects of his jump, but made tracks for the State Line, where he was secured and returned without broken bones to his owner.

Simmons' flouring-mill was the scene of an accident one day last week. The assistant miller, Mr. T. Dale, while working about the machinery, had his right hand badly mutilated, so much so that he was obliged to lose the second finger.

In the Third Ward Tuesday the cover of a cistern belonging to Mr. Van Allen gave way, precipitating his daughter into the water. But for timely assistance Miss Van Allen would have been drowned.

Mr. John Covert, whose home is near the State Line, died Wednesday from the effects of a kick received from a horse the week previous.

GOSSIP.

"It never rains but it pours" is an old saying, and quite true in this case, for the item last week concerning the approaching wedding in the upper strata of society here has brought to light several other similar affairs, which the parties interested therein thought known only to themselves and a favored few. To prove the contrary, on the 19th of this month a loving couple will be united in the holy bonds of matrimony, the lady belonging to this city and the gentleman to the neighboring city of St. Paul.

Following this there will be another wedding in the pleasant month of June on Kenosha street. The lady is a resident of this city, and the happy man a Waukeganite.

It is usually customary for a gentleman to "pop the question," but things in this rural city sometimes get strangely mixed, and the other day the reverse was the case. A certain young lady residing on a certain street in the city actually and in very truth told a gentleman that she loved him, and, furthermore, made him an offer of marriage, which, it is needless to say, was accepted. How shocked Madame Grundy will be at this fearful breach of decorum! Just imagine that significant shrug of the shoulders as she reads these lines!

PERSONALS.

The Rev. O. B. Thayer spent last Sabbath in Janesville, and the pulpit of the M. E. Church in this city was filled by a student from Evanston.

Capt. Walter Cook, an old resident of this place, left for Nebraska City Tuesday, to take charge of Judge J. F. Kinney's stock-farm.

Miss Alma Robinson is at home, having recently returned from Green Bay.

It is rumored that C. S. Bronson, formerly in the confectionery business here, will open a new store in that line soon.

The family of the Rev. Hugh Thompson, of New York, are here visiting Mrs. Thompson's parents on Prairie avenue.

Mr. J. Engle, of Chicago, visited this place last week, being the guest of Mr. E. M. Kinney.

Mr. Fred Hutchinson, son of C. J. Hutchinson, formerly a resident of Kenosha, was here last week with his bride, en route for California.

Mr. Winn, from Goold & Sons' in Chicago, was in the city Monday and Tuesday of last week.

ILLINOIS.

WHEATON.

NOTES FROM DUPAGE.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

WHEATON, May 8.—Mr. B. F. Taylor, the renowned lecturer, delivered, Friday evening, at the college chapel, before the Æolian Society, his fine discourse on "English Words, Their Uses, Abuses, and Beauty." A large and attentive audience greeted him.

Mr. Charles H. Fuller and bride, on the first evening of their return from their bridal trip, were the recipients of a serenade by the Wheaton Cornet Band.

Mr. Fuller and his estimable wife invited the gentlemen to a fine supper, which it did not take them any great length of time to demolish. Many hearty congratulations and good wishes for future prosperity were tendered the happy couple.

Mrs. Daniel Kelley and daughter, Miss Ella, started on a pleasure trip for the East Thursday.

The Misses Nash will soon take possession of their elegant new rooms on Railroad street. When the ladies have settled in their new home, they can boast the largest and handsomest millinery rooms this side the near Metropolis.

During the insurance trial, concluded last week, several lawyers of distinction were at the Du Page House and at the private residence of Mr. Ordway. Among the number was Elbert H. Gary, Mr. Herrick, Col. Cooper, Mr. Packard, Col. Vallette, and the Hon. Leonard Swett.

The "Busy Bees" are, indeed, all their name signifies. Again they have made glad the hearts of the Kansas sufferers by sending them a large supply of lemons, dried apples, calico, sheeting, buttons, needles, and thread. The articles were sent to Rush County, Kan., were the cry for help has been earnest and plaintive.

Anna Bent, Jennie Ruddock, Ella Miller, Willie Ruddock, Ruth Nutting, Newton Sutcliffe, Hattie Platt, and Irving Weaver, had their names on the roll of honor in the Wheaton public school for standing the highest in deportment during the month of April.

WAUKEGAN.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

LAKE COUNTY ITEMS.

WAUKEGAN, May 8.—We are enjoying beautiful weather now. The game of croquet seems to have lost none of its popularity by the long, cold winter. Almost every front yard has a set, and there is more interest manifested in this game than any other, especially by the ladies.

"What's in a name?" The Common Council, by their actions Monday night, evidently thought there was very little. When the petition sent in with 236 signatures, to allow live-stock to inhabit the streets of this city, was read, much interest was manifested by a number who were present as to the probable result. Hereafter the streets will be deprived of these unnecessary adornments, much to the sorrow of stock-raisers and the joy of property-owners. The given by the "Torrent" Fire Company Thursday night was well attended. About 8 o'clock the company formed a procession and marched through the principal streets, headed by a brass band, attracting much attention by their fine and orderly appearance. After the parade they proceeded to the hall, where they enjoyed dancing until morning. The hall had previously been decorated and ornamented with flags, lengths of hose extending from one pillar to another, nozzles, and other articles emblematic of the Fire Department. All present enjoyed themselves hugely, owing to the good music and excellent management.

A GOOD WORK.

The ladies of the Temperance Union, representing the different churches, are doing a good work in the cause of temperance. Last Monday evening a committee appointed by them out of their number visited the Council-room with the Rev. E. W. Adams, of the M. E. Church, who introduced the ladies to the Council and also stated the object of their visit, after which a petition was presented by the ladies asking that the "State Temperance law" be enforced, and praying that the Council do all in their power to further advance the cause of temperance.

Ald. Parks moved that the petition be accepted and necessary action be taken to comply with the requirements of the petition in so far as it related to the selling of liquor to minors or habitual drunkards. The motion was carried.

OBITUARY.

Died, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. O. H. Heath, in this city, May 6, of dropsy of the heart, Mr. Horatio Buell, aged 78 years. Mr. Buell was one of the earliest settlers in Lake County, having come here thirty-four years ago; he removed to Berlin, Wis., some eighteen years ago, where he was engaged in trade until about a year ago, when he sold out. He came to Waukegan last fall to visit his children, Mr. C. G. Buell, Sheriff of this county, and Mrs. O. H. Heath, and other relatives, intending to return in the spring, but death called him away. Mr. Buell has been a member of the Baptist Church over fifty years. He was an exemplary Christian, an affectionate husband and parent, and was universally esteemed and respected.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Pentacost, living north of the city, is quite an energetic young man, notwithstanding the fact that his 87th birthday occurred Thursday.

The Rev. S. S. Fisk, during the past week, has been confined to his house on account of sickness.

Mr. Philander Stewart and wife left home last Saturday. They go to visit relatives and friends in New York. They will be absent four weeks.

B. L. Flagg and family have returned to Waukegan.

John McCanna, who for some time past has been living in Baltimore, was home on a visit during the week. He left Friday night for Pittsburg.

IN GENERAL.

The drill at the artesian well has again "stuck," this time at the depth of 790 feet.

A vault is now building in the Catholic cemetery in this city.

The lecture on astronomy, by Prof. Wood, of Evanston, given at the M. E. Church Tuesday evening, was "slimly" attended. The lecture gave entire satisfaction to those who were present.

The bashful young man, whose expected wedding was briefly alluded to in last Sunday's Times, states that he is not the least bit scared. There is certainly no reason why he should be; weddings are perfectly legitimate.

There are now three additional policemen, making four in all.

KANKAKEE.

CROPS.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

KANKAKEE, May 7.—Provided we get good "corn weather," crops in Kankakee County will be considerably above the average. A much larger breadth of this cereal will be planted this season than heretofore. Oats promise at least an average crop. Winter wheat has been winter-killed, and but little spring wheat will be sown. Some corn has already been planted, but it is doubtful if it lives. Grass is making but little headway.

A CONTROVERSY.

The avowed determination of Mayor Shaffer to withhold his signature from orders drawn upon the city in favor of any Alderman is attracting some attention. Mr. Shaffer's interpretation of the language of the charter is different from that of the Alderman who figures in the present controversy. It is understood that all the city newspapers, with the exception of one edited by a very personal friend of the Alderman's, sustain the Mayor.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The dwelling of Dr. Goff, at Rockville, in this county, was burned recently. Loss, $2,000; no insurance.

The prompt good-will of her neighbors irritates a female near here. It is alleged that she set fire to her house, and, after the flames were under good headway, as she supposed, she aroused the neighborhood with her frantic cries. But they responded too quickly, and the fire was extinguished. The best of the furniture was afterwards discovered safely stored away in the barn. The house is insured for several times its value.

Kankakee claims the champion tomato and the champion lather. To what pinnacle in the temple of fame may not Kankakee yet rise? The tomato is "Hathaway's Excelsior,"—well known to horticulturists,—and the lather is a young man named Martin, who recently nailed 1,400 lath, covering an area of 108 square yards, in five and one-half hours.

The Rev. Frank Bristol's reading of last week drew a good house. Mr. Bristol is one of the youngest, as well as one of the best, elocutionists on the platform. Some of his renditions have never been excelled in this city. He is not a professional reader.

The ladies of the Congregational Church announce a dime reading for Thursday evening in their church.

The Rev. D. J. Bradford, of Lafayette, exchanges pulpits with Mr. Barnard, of this city, on Sunday.

The young lady pupils of St. Joseph's Academy connected with the Convent of Notre Dame, in this city, gave a musical and dramatic entertainment at the Convent Hall last night, in aid of the new Catholic church now in progress of erection. The young ladies displayed a great deal of musical and dramatic ability, and received the hearty plaudits of the large audience present. By the way, the boys are perfectly inconsolable over the amount of feminine loveliness that is confined within the stern walls of this institution, and that is so completely beyond their reach.

Several of the farmers in the town of Limestone are exceedingly anxious to start a cheese-factory, but, owing to a lack of co-operation on the part of others, have not yet been able to accomplish their ends. One farmer offers to furnish a suitable building gratis.

Immense herds of cattle are passing through here every day, en route to the Beaver Lake herding grounds. A herd of 1,500 went through our streets yesterday.

The Feast of the Ascension was observed yesterday by the Catholics. Appropriate services were held in the Church of St. Rose and in the German church.

OAK PARK.

THE NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The Rev. Robert Collyer, of Chicago, will preach in Unity Church at half-past 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. J. H. Quick has broken the ground for a series of houses, to be built at $3,000 each, part payment down, the balance in one, two, and three years. The houses will be gentlemen's residences, handsomely furnished, and arranged in the most convenient manner. They are just north of the Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Mabie, wife of the pastor of the Baptist Church of Oak Park, goes East to spend the summer. During her absence, a neat parsonage will be built on the church lot.

The new train to the city at 7:11 in the morning is a great convenience to the early birds. The Northwestern Road is accommodating itself to the public demands in a liberal manner. It is still rumored that the Oak Park depot will be removed west to Harlem, just across the town line, since La Valette station has been built so near. As this subject (the moving of the depot) was a bone of contention a few years ago, and the depot was spirited away on a Sunday to its present location, it might be as well to let it stay where it is, and allow the Harlemites to build their own.

Mr. Marshall Kirkman, Treasurer of the Northwestern Railroad, has removed his household goods to Chicago.

The young people, under the management of a popular literary lady of the Park, are getting up a tableau concert, in which Jean Ingelow's "Songs of Seven" will be rendered with fine effect. The entertainment will be for the benefit of Christ Church, Harlem.

Mr. G. G. Mayo is erecting a fine brick residence in the northern part of the town.

Mr. Ingalls is enjoying the delights of Rome, Italy.

Prof. De Rosa held the attention of a large audience of children Monday evening.

An oratorical entertainment was given in the lecture room of the Congregational Church on Thursday evening. Each speaker was limited to five minutes. Mr. Markes won the laurel wreath, being the brightest star of all the galaxy displayed before the audience. The programmes announced that prizes would be awarded to the worthy. The thirty contestants for the prizes were the principal denizens of the place, and with two exceptions were all men. The thirty were called before the audience at the close of the entertainment, and each presented by Miss Ida King and Master Gene Sherman with bouquets. No envy was manifested, for each carried off the prize. The affair was a thorough success, and Queen Mirth held a high carnival that night.

A paper is soon to be issued by a small company in the interests of Maywood and Oak Park. Mr. Walter Hadley, of Chicago, is the editor.

EVANSTON.

THE PRESBYTERIANS.

The Presbyterian Society held a meeting in the Baptist Church on Thursday evening. Mr. Charles Randolph was elected Chairman, and Mr. Ambrose White, Secretary.

After prayer by the Rev. Mr. Noyes, Mr. Purington, from a Committee appointed at a previous meeting to ascertain what suitable hall they could secure as a temporary place of worship, reported that all the churches east of the track had very generously offered them the use of their churches, and the Social Club of their hall. Yet the Committee did not deem it advisable to take advantage of their kindness, and, as they had had an offer of Lyon's Hall for six months for the very moderate sum of $100, they would unanimously recommend that the offer be accepted, and a lease taken of Lyon's Hall for that time. It was decided, on consideration of this report, that they use Lyon's Hall for one Sunday, and decide at a future meeting as to leasing it. The Treasurer reported that, with the exception of their funded debt of $4,500, which is amply secured on their lot, the Society is out of debt, and that there was enough delinquent pew rent to meet the expenses for the remainder of the year.

SOCIAL ITEMS.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Gibbs will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding Friday evening, the 14th. A large number of invitations have been issued.

A vocal and instrumental concert will be given at the Wilmette Church Tuesday evening, under the direction of Madame Pattiani. A great treat is expected.

The Eclectic Club held its semi-annual election Monday evening at the residence of Mr. J. S. Page. The regular exercises were dispensed with, the greater part of the evening being spent in balloting for officers, which always causes a great deal of merriment. The balloting resulted in the election of H. B. Hurd as President; Mr. Charles Beyer, Vice-President; Mrs. Percy Slaymaker, Secretary; and Mrs. George Lord, Musical Directress. The next meeting of the Club will be held at the residence of Mr. Charles Comstock.

The musicale given by Prof. Mayo and his pupils at the Woman's College, Monday evening, was but poorly attended, on account of the inclemency of the weather. The absence of so many of the lovers of music from this very pleasing entertainment is to be regretted, as it no doubt was the cause of the young ladies losing a great deal of interest in their performances, which, under other circumstances, they would have felt, and made the performances seem rather below the average. The vocalists of the evening all appeared to be suffering from severe colds, which did not add to the enjoyment of the performance.

Wednesday evening a couple of young gents, feeling that it would be only right that they should show their appreciation of the two delightful musicales which had been given at the college, procured at great expense two celebrated musicians of Italian descent, and wended their way to the Woman's College, where they serenaded the young ladies, who showed their appreciation of the treat by appearing at the windows and applauding with great vigor. When the orchestra took its departure the young ladies sang sweetly, as only they can sing, the "Knight's Farewell."

A sociable will be held in the parlors of the South Evanston M. E. Church Thursday evening.

Ladies of the Presbyterian Church will give a tea party in Lyons Hall Tuesday evening for the benefit of the church.

LAKE VIEW.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

A gentleman of the town who has been active in the promotion of the plan for furnishing it with a supply of pure water, has given several items of interest in regard to the matter. A house census is being taken, and the residences of the town all located on the map, the work being nearly completed. The Committee on Water Works, consisting of Messrs. Goudy, Chase, Wilson, Jones, and Owen, have nearly ready their report, and will probably present it at the next Board meeting, after which, action of some kind may be effected. In the meanwhile the universal cry is "water, water!" the idea seeming to be to make amends by a copious use of this article, for former propensities of the town toward beer. It is estimated by those who have thought of the project that all present needs in the water line could be met by an outlay of $125,000.

IMPROVEMENTS.

The cutting down of the Evanston gravel road drags its tedious length along in a painfully slow manner. It will be a blessing to the town, as well as to all who pass that way, when this piece of work is done, although it is to be feared such a result is not in the near future. The idea will suggest itself to the unprejudiced passer-by, that it is rather a poor business to keep the lower end of this road in such a condition for years, and yet charge the same rates of toll as formerly, a little further up.

PERSONAL.

The Rev. W. C. Young was suddenly called to Kentucky, Friday night, by the serious illness of a brother. His pulpit will be supplied during his absence, which it is hoped will be of short duration. Morning and evening services will be held as usual to-day.

Mr. H. G. Spafford goes in a few days to Richmond, Va., to attend the Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association to be held there.

Lake View is about to lose one of her young business men in the person of Mr. R. W. Goodwillie, who is on the point of removing with his family to Philadelphia, where he intends establishing a branch of the business in which he has hitherto been engaged in this city. A number of old friends will regret his removal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Young People's Club of Lake View held one of its parties Friday night at the residence of Mr. S. B. Chase. There was a good attendance, and the fun was kept up to a late hour. Ravenswood has been doing the festive to such an extent this winter, as to give very little chance to other localities in the town, but the young folks of the South End are determined not to let them have an entire monopoly of the thing any longer.

OAKLAND.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS OF THE PAST WEEK.

A large crowd filled the Congregational Church last Sunday evening to witness the concert exercises given by the members of the Sabbath school, but much disappointment was manifested by the audience at the close, as the exercises were not of such a character as they anticipated. The Committee in charge will do well to provide a more spicy programme for their next entertainment.

The Rev. Thomas Whittaker, of Scarboro, England, who is now delivering a course of temperance lectures in this city under the auspices of the Chicago Temperance Alliance, delivered one of his lectures before the Oakland Band of Hope Tuesday evening. He found his audience rather unmanageable at first, but he finally succeeded in breaking them in, and then proceeded and delivered one of the most humorous lectures on the above subject that the people of Oakland have heard for some time. The "usual collection" was taken up at the close of the lecture.

The most important event of the week was the musical and dramatic entertainment given by the members of the Projos Club, Thursday evening, in the Ninth Presbyterian Church. It seemed "like old times" to see the doors of the old church (formerly the property of the now defunct Presbyterian Society) thrown open once more, and allow the society people of Oakland probably the last opportunity to tread the floors of their old house of worship. But they did not come together to worship; they come with the understanding that the church was to be given over into the possession of the dramatists for one evening at least. And the result was one of the most select, and probably the largest, audience that has greeted an entertainment of this character, in Oakland this season. The entertainment opened with a brief introductory address by W. G. E. Pierce, President of the Club. He stated the object of the entertainment, and also made allusion to the fact that some of the people hinted that it would be imprudent for them to make any attempt to give an entertainment of this kind on account of their being amateurs, but they paid no attention to any such unkind wishes, but went ahead, intending to carry out their proposed programme to the letter, and to leave it all with a criticizing public, who might award just such approbation as they thought they really merited. The address was followed by the overture to "Masaniello," by Miss Emma Gillett and Mr. P. C. Lutkin, after which came the rendition of drama No. 1, entitled, "My Wife's Relations." After instrumental music by Mr. P. C. Lutkin, a young man emerged from "behind the scenes," and, with watch in hand, broke the good news gently to the audience that there would be a brief intermission of about 10 minutes.

After the "Overture to Mignon," by Miss Florence Grut, came a recitative by Miss Lulu B. Faulkins, which was loudly encored. Miss Faulkins acquitted herself nobly, not only in the character assumed by her in the drama, but also in the minor exercises. She really was the "star" actor of the evening. Then came a comedy entitled "Slasher and Crasher." At the conclusion of this piece the actors all appeared on the stage in a semi-circle, and made a polite bow to the audience, thanking them for their kind appreciation, and wishing them all a hearty good-night.

OTHER SUBURBS.

DESPLAINES.

The new Board of Trustees organized Tuesday evening. Mr. H. C. Senne was elected President.

The Congregational Society find it a hard matter to decide upon a minister. The Rev. Mr. Wakeman officiated Sunday morning, and in the evening Mr. Wright delivered a fine discourse to a good congregation. The question will undoubtedly be settled before many days.

The removal of Mr. and Mrs. Durham to Chicago will be regretted by all, and the absence of Mrs. Durham will be especially missed in musical circles. The good wishes of the numerous friends they have made during their residence here will attend them in their new home.

Postmaster Lee is convalescing from serious injuries received by the falling of something on his left eye while inspecting a new house.

Society is considerably agitated over the unexpected removal of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin to Chicago. It is hoped that they will find their new home both pleasant and profitable.

NORWOOD PARK.

The course of scientific lectures extensively advertised to be given at the Reformed Church Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday evenings, did not prove a success, the attendance being very small. The lectures were excellent, and deserved a better patronage. The fact does not speak well for the literary and scientific tastes of the citizens.

The new school-building is almost a reality. At the late meeting of the citizens to vote on the matter, it was almost unanimously determined upon. The cost of the building will be about $20,000, and it will be inferior to no school-house on the Northwestern Road.

Mrs. R. P. Lunt, of Evanston, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Lorin Collins.

The church sociable was held at the Rev. Mr. Gulick's Thursday. A large number were present and seemed to enjoy every moment. Mr. and Mrs. G. are famed for their hospitality.

PARK RIDGE.

Mr. Frank Moss intends building a residence on the corner of Prospect avenue and Centre street, work to commence at once. The cost of the building will be about $3,000. The location is a desirable one, the best on the avenue.

Mr. Foster is remodeling the little cottage on the hill, and will move into it for the summer.

The Congregational Church remains in an unfinished state, the finances of the Society being at a low ebb. The ladies have worked hard to pay off the debt contracted in bringing it up to its present state, but they can accomplish but a tithe of what is necessary. The Society is small, and not wealthy enough to finish what they have undertaken, without assistance. It is hoped some good genius will come to their rescue and aid them in its completion. The Rev. Mr. Davis, of Irving Park, although a Methodist, is preaching for the Society, and consequently many of the Methodists attend that church, which increases the congregation. Mr. Davis is a remarkably brilliant speaker, and his sermons are filled with excellent food for thought.

It is rumored in certain circles that an effort is making to start an Episcopal Church at this place. The lot has already been tendered, and a Sabbath-school is talked of being the first step towards the organization of the church.

Croquet parties seem to be the rage just now; old and young indulge in the innocent amusement.

WASHINGTON HEIGHTS.

The "Library Association" seems to be a leading feature among the young people, and even those of riper years seem to take an active part in its deliberations. At the meeting Tuesday evening the usual paper was read by two young ladies, in connection with which a very graphic history of the Association in blank verse was read by Miss Clark; also an article on Slander, illustrated by an amusing take-off on the Chairman, a lawyer and a bachelor of some years, who was reported in a very circuitous manner of talking of changing his domestic relations! The discussion of the question in regard to universal suffrage was continued, and compulsory education was strongly urged as a necessary concomitant, in order to the safety and perpetuity of a republican form of government. Judge Wallace, Dr. Tooke, Mr. Watson Howe, and others took an active part in the debate.

Dr. Lowenthal is building a new drug-store on Tracy avenue.

Mrs. French had her new millinery store opening Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Charles Edminster is opening a large store on Morgan avenue; also, a restaurant for the accommodation of the numerous pleasure-seekers and prospectors looking for pleasant and eligible sites for suburban homes.

It has been found necessary to reopen Morgan Park department of the public school.

Bethany Church sociable was held Friday evening at the residence of Daniel Barnard, Esq.

Several families intend leaving the city and coming here for the summer, not waiting for the time of green peas and cholera, but coming in time for the violets and apple-blossoms.

The Rev. Mr. Cone, of Chicago, is building a fine residence on Ninety-ninth street.

BARRINGTON.

Besides the bad spell of weather the past week, a "spell" of another kind was had in the Baptist Church.

The new Village Board organized Saturday evening. The members are: D. K. Holmes, L. Colburn, O. Lawrence, H. H. Church, and C. Jamison. Mr. Holmes was elected President. There are many needed improvements that should be attended to at once, and it is expected that the new officers will adopt energetic measures to further them. In so doing, they will receive the active co-operation of all citizens.

The Rev. Robert Sheperd, of Chicago, lectured in the M. E. Church Friday evening. His subject was "Manners." The lecture was well attended, and heartily enjoyed by all present.

The Rev. J. T. Cooper will build himself a residence here this season, with the expectation of making this his permanent home. Mr. Cooper is well known throughout this section as an earnest and zealous Christian minister, and he will be heartily welcomed by the Methodist brethren.

WINNETKA.

Barnum Blake and Mr. Gilmore have returned from Southern trips, the former from Texas and the latter from Florida. For the hot months soon to come no more comfortable place, within reasonable distance, can be found than the cool lake shore at Winnetka.

The first trial of Winnetka versus Glencoe in spelling, which was concluded Tuesday evening, resulted, as was predicted, in the defeat of Winnetka, but on the second trial Winnetka had half a dozen standing when Glencoe was completely squelched. The advent of warm weather, it is hoped, will cure the disease.

The sociable at the Congregational Church Friday evening was a pleasant affair, and it is pleasing to note that this once high-toned suburb is coming down to a level with humanity.

TURNER JUNCTION.

The Episcopalians held services last Sabbath in Voll's Hall. The Dramatic Club of the Junction are soon to produce "Handy Andy."

At the first meeting of the Town Board, the liquor license was raised to $200. The saloon-keepers freely expressed their disgust.

John Mulcahy has gone out of the saloon business.

Several young men who call the Junction their home have enlisted in the United States army, greatly to the relief of all respectable citizens. The business of these Young Americans has been for four months past the confidence game.

PALATINE.

This town is quietly reposing, waiting for something to turn up. Business is gaining in briskness, but not as rapidly as was expected. A number of citizens who have been to a more congenial climate have returned much improved in health and spirits. Mr. Filbert and Mr. Johnson are among the number who have been luxuriating on Southern soil. Mr. S. J. Filbert has made many friends during his stay here, and his departure is regretted.

The Village Board convened Monday evening. The most important business transacted was the appointment of a committee consisting of the Clerk and Treasurer to take measures to fund the outstanding indebtedness of the town.

AUSTIN.

A church sociable was held at the residence of Mr. Miles Crafts Thursday evening. The evening was one of rich enjoyment. The music, furnished by Miss Warner and Mr. Hastrieter, was a conspicuous feature of the pleasure the guests were the participants of.

It is rumored Austin is to have a new station-house in the eastern limits of the town.

LOMBARD.

The Rev. Charles Caverno gave the first of a series of free home lectures Friday evening. The subject of the evening's discourse was "Thoreau."

INDIANA.

SOUTH BEND.

NOTES AND NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 8.—There has been recently organized here a society to be known as the "Free Laborers," having no present connection with any of the other labor or mechanics' associations of the country, and this is somewhat remarkable for its declarations, or platform. It complains that "Capitalists seize upon the wealth of the nation, which they never produced," asserts that "laborers, who produce all

"the wealth of all nations, never enjoy it," complains that "the Government will do nothing to make money more plenty, or wages higher," that "capitalists are consulted in national affairs to the exclusion of all others," and declares that "relief must come, or a revolution must come, either by the ballot-box or by the sword."

The platform is quite lengthy, but these extracts are quite sufficient to show the organization to be "free" and outspoken, but as to the accomplishment of their desires they will undoubtedly find very many obstacles to confront them.

The organization has already nearly a hundred members, and is growing, but with their increased growth will come dissensions in their own ranks.

On Monday last came the Racing Association and Hippodrome, which spent last week in Chicago. The rain caused receipts to be less than their expenses.

The Chief of the Fire-Department made this week his annual report. There were thirty-one alarms, twelve of which were either false or from trifling causes. The department consists of six hose companies and one hook and ladder company, with 181 hydrants, single, double, and three-way.

The spring is very backward, accompanied with copious rains, which keep the farmers back from preparing the land for crops, and it will take until the first of June for the planting to be over, of which more acres will be in corn than ever before. The apples and cherries in exposed orchards are mostly killed. Those having the protection of the timbered regions will produce fair yields.

Mr. Colfax got home this week from his lecturing tour, which he closes early in June. His invitations numbered about 600, of which he has only been able to respond to about one-fifth. He has on hand a hundred for the coming fall and winter.

The Rev. D. J. Spillard, of Austin, Tex., is spending a few days at Notre Dame, where he was educated, and from which he was ordained.

Col. James H. Bowen, of your city, spends Friday here and at Notre Dame.

The Rev. C. T. Chapin, of Centreville, Mich., has been called to the Baptist Church here, vice J. M. L. Young, resigned.

On Thursday night Hose Company No. 6 gave the largest dance at Turner Hall that any fire company ever had here. The receipts are to be applied to the purchase of a new uniform and the adornment of their house.

The manufacturers report better sales for the past few days than for many months before. Collections are better and a better feeling exists among them. JOHN.

ELKHART.

INCORPORATED AS A CITY.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

ELKHART, Ind., May 8.—Elkhart is situated 10 miles from Goshen, the county seat of Elkhart County, which has always been a fact that the go-ahead citizens of this place did not quite fancy, as those desiring a little business done in the courts were compelled to go there with considerable loss of time, railroad fare, and hotel bills; so last winter Mr. Beardsley, the Senator from here, introduced a bill in the Legislature allowing towns of over 5,000 inhabitants to establish a court with jurisdiction in civil cases to the amount of $1,500, the court to be presided over by a Judge, to be chosen every four years, and the office to be self-sustaining. The bill, after going through the legislative sausage-grinder, came out with the word "cities" substituted for "towns," leaving Elkhart out in the cold as far as ever. But she was not to be baffled, so the people called an election to decide whether they would adopt a city charter or not. The election was held last week Monday, and resulted in a victory for the city by a majority of 13. It was strongly opposed by the Shylocks of the county seat, who were here doing their best to defeat it. An election for city officers has been set for Tuesday, at which a Mayor, Marshal, Clerk, Treasurer, Assessor, and two Councilmen from each ward will have to be chosen. Considerable speculation is indulged in as to who will be the first Mayor. One of the tickets in the field will be composed of Republicans and Democrats on a temperance basis, and the other of Democrats solely on a whisky platform, with free drinks and a recognition of "cribs" as a necessity, for the principal plank. The result is looked for with considerable interest.

Wolves and a Lamb.

Three robbers were walking by the roadside one evening after a day of profitless anxiety.

"It's a pity," said one of them, "that we can do no better than this. I am unwilling to let a day pass without some gain."

"Here's a chance," said another, and as they looked up they saw on the brow of the hill before them a man riding on a donkey, and by a string leading a sheep with a bell attached to its neck.

"I will steal that sheep," said the first of the robbers.

"You cannot," said the second; "do you not perceive the cord and the bell?"

"I see them," said the first; "but they present no obstacle to me, I'll steal that sheep."

"If you do," said the second, "I'll steal the donkey."

"What!" said the third, "steal a man's donkey from under him! You cannot."

"You will soon know better," said the second.

"If you do," said the third, "I'll steal all the clothes the man has upon him, or forfeit my pretensions to professional excellence."

"Bah!" said the other two, "you will attempt what you cannot accomplish."

"We will see," said the third.

The unsuspecting man was plodding along without thoughts of injury, when the first approached and cut the cord and bell from the sheep's neck, and attached the bell to the donkey's tail, where its jingle continued to be heard.

In due time the man looked behind to observe the condition of his sheep, and to his horror found it was gone. In dismay and distress he appealed to the first person he met, and asked if he had seen any one with a sheep.

"Yes," replied the person, "I saw a man clambering down the hill side with such a prize; but thought it was his own."

"Hold my donkey for a moment," said the man, and, as the person did so, he went in the wrong direction in pursuit of the robber and his sheep.

Finding, however, that his pursuit was vain, he returned tired and breathless to where he had left the donkey. But lo! it was not there! Sheep and donkey both were stolen from him. Sad and perplexed, he set down to reflect, and grieve over his losses; but soon he heard the wailing of some one in distress. He listened for a moment, and the sound became audible.

"What is this?" he said. "Can any one be more miserable than I?"

But the cry of anguish became louder and still louder. He hastened to the place whence it proceeded, and there beheld a man weeping as though there was no comfort for him.

"What is this, my friend?" said he. "How are you affected?"

"Alas!" said the man, "I'm ruined forever!"

"Ruined!" said he. "How are you ruined?"

"I came to this well for a draught of water," he replied, "and while I drank I let drop a costly gem, and it lies beneath the water."

"Is that all?" said he.

"Ah!" exclaimed the other, "it is of great worth."

"So it may be," said the honest man; "but I have lost my sheep and donkey, which I was unwillingly about to sell at the next market town, that I might pay off some pressing debts, yet I do not bewail my loss."

"What's that loss," replied the other, "compared to my loss of a gem worth thousands of ducats, and without which it would only cost my life to return to the King my master, who sent me with it as a gift to a Royal friend beyond the seas?"

"Why do you not go down in the water and recover it?" asked the man.

"Alas!" said the other, "I cannot swim; I would only drown."

"Then I will go down for you," said the good honest man.

"Will you?" exclaimed the other. "Do so, and here are four golden pieces for your pains—more than the sum of all your losses; and if you regain my treasure I shall forever owe you my gratitude."

The honest man received the pieces of gold and placed them in his pocket, and then took off his clothes and descended into the water. But after a long and careful search he came out of the well to ask the stranger on which side the gem had fallen, when lo! he was gone! and the poor countryman was without sheep or donkey, or clothing,—there all alone by the brink of a deep well,—and the robbers were all far away with the trophies of their artful roguery.

A Child Mother.

Duluth (Minn.) Herald.

Hattie Russell, who, a little over a month ago, shot and killed Mr. John Puggsley, has recovered her usual good health and spirits, and is now quite cheerful. She is incarcerated in the county jail, and is well and comfortably cared for. Her infant child is taken to the prison two or three times a week, and spends some hours at each visit. Hattie is extremely fond of it, and naturally enough evinces signs of depression when it leaves her. Hattie is probably the youngest mother in Minnesota, being but 15 years old on the 1st of this month, while her child is about 13 months of age.

GEN. PHIL. SHERIDAN'S FIANCEE

From Our Own Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—It hardly seems farther back on the annals of time than short yesterday since Miss Irene Rucker walked, a slender, dark-eyed little girl, in our midst, arrayed in short dresses, and her hair braided in two long plaits hanging below her waist. How rapidly these tender young things spring up into womanhood, and how early the bridal veil throws its soft mist over them! It makes us lookers-on search cautiously among our tresses to see if any threads frosted with years have crept in among our darker ones. It seems so short a time since Gen. Rucker was stationed here, and occupied the "Michler House," on Twenty-first street, within almost a stone's throw of the Potomac, its ample grounds filled with trees, grapevines, and flowers. Tony Rucker was then a great, honest, generous-hearted boy, brimming over with pranks and mischief, the greatest favorite with his companions, and a constant source of amusement to his elders. And now, little Irene Rucker—for I cannot think of her as a "young lady grown,"—has won the prize for which so many maidens have smiled and striven in vain!

A NEW EDITION OF AN OLD ROMANCE.

While out for a walk, a few days ago, a small, unpretentious brick house in the north part of the city, and within sight of many fashionable residences, was pointed out to me by my companion as the rendezvous which Barton Key engaged for his meetings with the beautiful and unfortunate Mrs. Sickles. The house is only two stories high, with a gallery running the entire side of the house. Windows front the street, as the entrance is beneath the porch on the side. "I can tell you everything about that tragic affair," said my friend, "because Barton Key was a cousin of ours, and Mrs. Sickles an intimate friend and sociable neighbor. Barton Key—although a relative—never crossed the threshold of our house, as my father and brothers knew too much of his private career to care to introduce him into their home circle. He was son of Key who wrote the 'Star Spangled Banner,' and was a handsome fellow, tall and finely-formed, with rich, dark skin, and unfathomable depths to his lustrous black eyes."

CRUEL AS THE GRAVE.

An incident in his early life is a key-note to every after occurrence. He had an intimate friend in the army, now living (and who will recognize the sad truthfulness of this tale), who was engaged to a most beautiful girl, the pride and idol of her fiancee, and the general admiration of all who knew her. To her personal loveliness she added a thousand nameless charms, which captured the ever-roving fancy of Barton Key, and added him to her list of lovers, although he was subtle enough to know his affection was doomed to receive no return, and that his bosom-friend was the successful suitor. Imperative army orders sent the friend far away, and he entreated Key with his farewell breath to look after his sweetheart, and to see that she wanted nothing during his involuntary absence.

A WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING.

Key obeyed his friend beyond the letter; for more delicate attentions were never before received by any woman, and, as he succeeded in intercepting letters between the lovers, he soon added the mission of comforter to his other duties. By adroitness and address, he made each believe the other faithless, and when the seeds of distrust were most thoroughly sown, and the feeling of pique and resentment crushed the first throbs of sorrow and agony, he pressed his suit, and won an unloving and indifferent bride to his arms. His efforts to kindle one spark of interest or enthusiasm in the breast of his wife proving unsuccessful, in a fit of rage and disappointment he told her that he had been the medium which had sown discord between herself and her only lover, that he had destroyed their mutual correspondence, and she had been fool enough to believe all that had been told her. From the time of this disclosure, the beautiful woman grew whiter and more lily-like, until one day she folded her slender hands and closed her tired eyes, and awoke in that heaven where the weary are at rest.

SPURRED ON TO DESPERATE DEEDS.

After the death of his wife, Key seemed to embark on a career of utter recklessness, pursuing women with only a desire for their ultimate ruin. The melting dark eyes and prettily molded figure of the petite Mrs. Sickles caught the restless eyes of the libertine, and he resolved on her destruction. He met her constantly; if she was walking he joined her; if she rode, he would stop the carriage and seat himself by her side, with confident effrontery of a man who knows his company is agreeable to ladies. Mrs. Sickles was young, beautiful, and not unmoved by the fascinations of the man who constantly sought her company, and made her believe that she alone embodied all the excellencies and perfections of her sex. She did not for one instant contemplate anything but an innocent termination to this very open flirtation. But "people," the ever wide-awake "people," with more eyes than Cerberus, began to put their heads together, and commenced to agitate the air.

WHISPERINGS NOT LOUD BUT DEEP

Gen. Sickles lived in the old Colfax house on the south side of Lafayette Square, and across the Park—which was then hardly more than a grass-plot, with a few varieties of trees and shrubs here and there—stood a large double red brick house, used for a gentlemen's club, and afterwards occupied by Secretary Seward. Key had his room at the club, and from its doors his usual custom was to stroll over to the Sickleses for a morning call, which was sometimes prolonged until after lunch. At one of these lunches, when Gen. Sickles was absent, the wine which Mrs. Sickles drank was drugged, so it is said, and of what followed that fatal meal the poor woman was never cognizant, but certain it is that Key held that event as a rod of terror above her stricken soul, and with it scourged her to the commission of deeds darker than that of the Egyptian plague. She became a mere resistless tool in the hands of this accomplished villain, and day after day this fiend would sit in the Park, opera-glass in hand, and watch the windows of that fateful mansion, until the unhappy mistress would make her appearance and signal with her handkerchief that she knew he was waiting for her, and very soon afterwards a veiled lady would be seen wending her way towards the little gray house in the northern part of the city.

VENGEANCE IS MINE.

At last the husband was aroused, and he saw as one from whose eyes the scales had fallen. He confronted his wife, and she confessed to him the whole tale, from its unhappy beginning to its criminal end, and bade him watch for the appearance of Key and his signals. The enraged husband waited only long enough to witness the approach of his enemy, when, seizing his hat and revolver, he rushed into the bright sunshine of a pleasant afternoon through the Park, filled with pleasure strollers, and fired shot after shot at Key, who, terrified, ran towards the club-house, but fell bleeding from numerous wounds at the foot of an oak tree near the sidewalk. The miserable man was picked up and carried into the club-house, where he shortly afterwards died, and went to make such peace as was possible with his God. The tree against which the murdered man fell was literally chipped to pieces by the crowds of relic-hunters who flocked to the city after the tragedy, and who years afterward visited the various points of interest connected with the cause celebre.

Sickles was confined in the old prison, near the City-Hall, where his little daughter, then about 5 years old, a sensitive little creature, with long golden ringlets and large thoughtful eyes, was daily brought, until the agony of visiting her father in his imprisonment was so great that it was decided best never to bring her there again.

IN THE VALLEY OF HUMILITY.

The mother was carried home by her friends, and, to evince her humility and sense of degradation, had her bed made on the floor, refusing to sleep on anything more pretentious than the simplest pallet.

Sickles was really infatuated with his wife, and, notwithstanding her unfaithfulness to him, after a little while he brought her secretly back to Washington, and they lived together in the house just back of the new Republican building, Mrs. Sickles never making her appearance outside the house until she was carried thence never to return in the flesh. This was the story told me by an old Washingtonian, as we strolled along, taking in the beauty of clear blue sky, budding trees, casting their lacey shadows over the grass as green as green could be, and, as it interested me, although by no means an unfamiliar tale, I take the liberty of writing it to you.

But, let me add, Sickles' sorrows were not deep enough to prevent his making a second matrimonial attempt, and two winters ago he appeared at different scenes of gayety accompanied by an exquisitely beautiful Spanish bride, whose loveliness awoke murmurs of admiration wherever she moved.

BLESSED ARE THE DRESSMAKERS,

as the little darky said, when endeavoring to repeat a verse of the beatitudes. And at last Washington is really blessed with a bona fide artist, fresh from Paris, with American prices attached. Her name, inquiring reader, is Mme. Soule, and her apartments are over Williams' fancy-store, dearly familiar to every feminine eye, and dearer still to their purse-strings.

"WHOE'ER GOES UP THE WINDING STAIR, WILL NE'ER COME DOWN AGAIN,"

without being enchanted, one might exclaim, after looking at some of the work done by Madam. She, of course, wants full and undisputed sway as to amount and character of material, and will not take suggestions kindly, which is her strongest point, in my estimation; for who likes to pay a dressmaker for merely putting a dress together? It is genius which requires no suggestions, but can draw new and original pictures from its inner consciousness alone. I wish you could see Madam drape an overskirt, an action requiring more than ordinary taste and grace. She handles yards of floating or heavy material with the most consummate ease, making a loop here and catching a sash-end there, until the whole is effective and stylish. A black silk grenadine, with the lacey-mesh just now so fashionable, was made with the tiniest plissé ruffles in front, looking almost as if crimped, and five yards of $5 silk for the sash in the back. The overdress was made in the prevalent "armour" style, very long in front, and sloping upward to a short and jaunty back. This dress, for the mere making, and furnishing sash ($25) and necessary materials, such as sewing-silk, etc., was a modest $100, the grenadine of course furnished by the young lady for whom it was designed. But, if ever such color, or absence of color, as black can suggest dreams of the pleasant kind, then this grenadine, which I cannot describe on account of its resemblance to "trifles light as air," was certainly a dream. Another dress was of brown silk, underdress and sleeves, and pale buff cashmere, soft and clinging for overdress and waist. Another still was of deepest navy blue underskirt and sleeves, and long side sashes and overdress, and waist of that peculiar shade of light blue, which wavers so uncertainly on the boundary line which separates blue and green. Low down on the watteau pleats of the train was a beautiful soft crush bow of the pale blue. OUISEL.

CHICAGO.

COMPANY C'S BALL.

The event of the week to which Chicago is looking forward with the greatest interest, anticipating much pleasure therefrom, is the Company C ball, which will take place on Thursday evening of this week. The invitations, which have been out for some time, are the artistic work of Messrs. Culver, Page, Hoyne & Co. They are very handsomely engraved on a large double sheet of finest satin-paper, the Company monogram ornamenting the top. This is a large "C," interlacing at the top the word Company. Inside are the "C" and "S," with "I" "F" and "R" interlaced. A wreath of stars surmounts this; banners ornament the sides, while tents in the distance, and cannon and cannon-balls, complete it. The invitation reads:

The members of Company C, First Regiment Illinois State Guard, respectfully invite you to attend their first ball, to be given at the Armory on Thursday evening, May 13, 1875.

WEDDINGS.

HUTCHINSON—LANCASTER.

Among the prominent local weddings of the past week was that of Miss Nellie Hutchinson, daughter of Benjamin P. Hutchinson, Esq., and Mr. Eugene Lancaster. The ceremony was celebrated at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 681 Wabash avenue, at 5 p.m. Thursday evening, the Rev. Dr. Ryder officiating. The attendants were Miss Kate Hutchinson and Mr. Noble P. Judah, and Miss Lydia Forrest escorted by Mr. Calvin Cobb. The bride wore the traditional white robes and orange blossoms, and the bridesmaids were in white tarlatan. The company was large and elegant, and the presents were numerous and handsome. The ushers were Messrs. Gibbs, Cleaver, Dr. Dyer, and another gentleman. The floral decorations were very handsome, and Haines acted as caterer.

HILL—FAIRBANKS.

On the same day at 4 p.m., in Christ Church, Bishop Cheney officiating, Miss Carrie Hill and Mr. John Fairbanks, District Secretary of the Illinois Sabbath-School Association, were united in marriage. The church was well filled with the friends of the interested parties. The attendants were Miss Alice Townley and Mr. A. D. Wilmarth, with another lady and gentleman. The ushers were Messrs. Logan, Howe, Parker, and Jayne. The bride wore a traveling dress of cafe au lait poplin, and chip hat trimmed to harmonize with the dress. One of the bridesmaids was in a dress of a similar shade, and the other in a suit of two shades of brown. The ceremony was brief, but impressive. After it was over the bridegroom and Bishop Cheney both saluted the bride. The party left for an extended tour to Washington and the Eastern cities. No cards were issued.

FLANDERS—HOGAN.

At St. Paul's M. E. Church, Wednesday evening, May 5, Miss Maggie Flanders, recently a teacher in the Clarke School, and Mr. E. F. Hogan, both members of the choir, were married by the Rev. H. L. Martin. The bridesmaids were Miss Annie Hogan, a sister of the groom, and Miss Jennie Anderson. The bridal party entered the church at 7:30 p.m., where a large number of their friends were gathered to witness the ceremony. The bride was attired in white silk, trimmed with tulle, tulle veil, and orange blossoms. The bridesmaids were also dressed in white. After the ceremony a reception followed at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 139 Johnson street. MURPHY—DE RIVAS.

Miss Nellie Murphy, daughter of the Hon. Thomas Murphy, late Collector of the Port of New York, and Senor M. E. De Rivas, a Cuban banker, were married last week. The ceremony was celebrated at St. Stephen's Church, New York, the altar being profusely decorated with flowers. About 3,000 people witnessed it, while the New York papers estimated the outside crowd at about 10,000. The hour appointed for the ceremony was 8 p.m., and the church was brilliantly illuminated. At the appointed time the bridal procession entered. His Eminence Cardinal McCloskey came first; then the Papal Ablegate, Monsieur Roncetti, Count Marefoschi, and Prof. Ubaldi, of Rome; then Bishop Lynch, of Charleston, succeeded by several priests and acolytes; next came the Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Rhinelander Dillon, followed by the ushers, Messrs. Vatable Koch, Fausto Mora, and Tresarian. Miss Jameson and Mr. R. G. Murphy, Miss Kitty Hastings and Mr. Golcuria, the attendants, were next in order. Then came Mrs. Murphy, escorted by the bridegroom, Mr. Manuel E. De Rivas, and the bride, Miss Nellie Murphy, with her father, Thomas Murphy. His Eminence made a brief address, and then the ceremony was performed, after which Cardinal McCloskey made the sign of the cross with his crozier three times over the heads of the bride and groom. A brilliant reception followed at Mr. Murphy's residence, which was superbly decorated with flowers.

The bride wore white brocade with trimmings of point-lace, veil of the same costly material, and garlands of orange-blossoms, with exquisite pearl ornaments. The bridesmaids were in white tulle ornamented with white roses, and wore tulle veils. Mrs. Murphy wore an elegant lavender brocade.

The presents, over 200 in number, were very handsome, and included a full dinner-service of solid silver, from the bride's mother; diamond bracelet, which the bride wore, from the groom; pin, ear-rings, and cross of pearls and diamonds, diamond ring, from Senor Ramon De Rivas y Lamar; pearl-set, consisting of a necklace, pendant, and ear-rings, from President Grant; superb diamond cross from Senator Jones; gold card-case from Lester Wallack; pair of bronzes from Dr. Chalmers; a chatelaine of silver and gold, and an opera-glass, from Mrs. John Hoey; a turquoise set, from Miss Birkbeck; diamond and a pearl cross, and a turquoise bracelet, from J. NILES—BADEAU.

Another recent brilliant New York wedding was that of Miss Marie Elsie Niles, daughter of the late Hon. Nathaniel Niles, at one time American Minister to Italy, and Gen. Adam Badeau, United States Consul-General to London, and one of Gen. Grant's staff during the War. They were married at the Gramercy Park Hotel, Cardinal McCloskey officiating.

The bride wore white silk and point lace. The bridesmaids, Miss Gilbert, Miss Wheeler, and Miss Pruyn, were in white tulle. The floral decorations were exquisite, and the presents very handsome. Mr. Badeau was once a journalist.

THE OTHERS.

Trinity Chapel, New York, was also the scene of a brilliant wedding in the marriage of Miss Annie, daughter of D. E. Allen, Esq., and Mr. Wallace. The bride wore white corded silk, with point lace overdress and veil, and diamond ornaments. There were no attendants. The reception that followed was elegant, and the floral decorations very handsome. The bridal pair received the congratulations of their friends standing beneath an arch of ivy and evergreens, whence an elegant marriage bell was suspended. The presents, which were very handsome, were not displayed.

Grace Church, New York, has also had its fashionable wedding, Miss Ward and Mr. Luther Kountze, banker, being the contracting parties.

At Amsterdam, N.Y., Miss Emily, daughter of L. Y. Gardner, Esq., and Mr. William J. Kline, editor of the Democrat, were recently married. Among the bridal presents, which came from various places, including New York, Washington, and Paris, were "sixty cases of silver, rare bronzes, and pictures." Her father's present was a set of solid silver and a grand piano.

SOCIAL GATHERINGS.

CLUB PARTIES.

A social was given at the Oakland Methodist Episcopal Church last week, at which Mr. Meredith, the pastor, welcomed Mr. Hood and family, who have recently returned after a long absence. Mr. Shepherd addressed the Sunday-school, and Miss Kimpson read an extract from "Dodd's" papers. Mr. Hood replied in a happy vein to the hearty welcome tendered him. Singing and refreshments followed, and all who participated in the pleasant evening seemed to thoroughly enjoy it.

The "Union Franco-Americaine" is the name of a new club which has been recently organized for the purpose of attaining a thorough knowledge of the French language and literature. Rinskopf; Assistant Secretary, Thomas F. Girard; Treasurer, L. M. Foley; Officers, Messrs. Charles E. Mich, E. Decelle, Robert Smith and A. A. Melancon. They promise an excellent club. Mr. and Mrs. R. Strahorn, No. 97 Forrest avenue, last Friday evening very kindly threw open the doors of their spacious parlors to the friends and members of the Memorial Church, on Indiana avenue, near Thirtieth street. Although this is only the second of a series of promenade sociables to be given by this church, the popularity with which they have been received by all denominations seems to favorably indorse the movement which has lately been made to establish an Episcopal church in this immediate vicinity. CONFESSION.

I could not look on thy true eyes,
And tell my coward's tale;
To my white lips falsehoods would rise,
And my weak heart would fail.

Let me speak quick, and of the worst:
I have been false to thee!
Temptation's billows o'er me burst,
And swept me out to sea.

I send your letters back, dear heart,—
To keep them is not fitting,—
Your picture, too. Oh! sweeter part
Existence to be quitting.

No curse of thine can touch my heart,—
'Twould seem a blessing now.
Life is my hell; no other smart
Hurts like my broken vow.

Forget, dear one, my worthless love;
Thank God! 'twas pure when spoken,
And could not stain thee, gentle dove;
Fly free! each tie is broken.

Ah! if it only "might have been"
That you had loved me stronger,
Perhaps—No! no! 'tis vile and mean
To hunt excuses longer.

Mine all the sin! Oh that were mine,
Shame's scarlet sea of sorrow!
To think its tide will poison thine
Heaps woe on each to-morrow.

. . . . .

Was I asleep? Am I awake?
Oh! but the dream was horrid;
I feel as if I'd made a break
From regions rather torrid.

'Twas but a dream, I'm glad to say;
But yet it is a warning,
And shows your love must be my stay
Just now, in youth's bright morning.

So, darling (if you can, you know),
Cling closer if there's trouble,
And let us tread the grass and snow,
Soul-single, courage-double.

Through life's strange maze we'll make a way,
'Neath clouds, 'neath sunny weather;
Sad hours will come, and moments gay,—
We'll share them all together.

FIDELIS.

A New Venice.

Mr. Frederick A. Johnson has addressed a letter to the St. Louis Trade Journal, warmly indorsing the opinion that a great city is sure to spring up in the Balize at the head of Eads' jetties, and gives the following as some of the reasons why this city will be a necessity: The very building of the jetties will give employment to numerous people of all classes, from laborers up. Saloons, boarding-houses, billiard-rooms, stores, and many other classes of business in a small way, will form the nucleus of a city, and, upon the completion of the labors of Capt. Eads, warehouses will be erected, and elevators, and ships will discharge and load at the new city rather than stand the outrageous charges incidental to ascending the river to New Orleans. This would also necessitate a custom-house and other public offices at this contemplated city. If we look at the items of expense on a vessel of 1,115 tons from the Gulf to New Orleans and back, we may depend upon it that she will, when possible, make the jetty or city thereat the termination of her voyage, thereby making a total saving of $2,500.

The St. Louis Democrat makes the following comments on the coming city: All who feel disposed to laugh at the proposition to build the "City of Eads" have the unqualified permission of the Democrat to do so. But all are begged to remember that "those laugh best who laugh last." The City of New Orleans boasts very justly of the salubrity of the magnificent "gulf breeze." The City of Eads will be located on the threshold of this gulf, while New Orleans is 120 miles inland. New Orleans is surrounded by swamps; in fact it is a swamp itself. The City of Eads will be built upon the firm land of South Pass, free from the malarious influences of swamps. It will have broad and beautiful streets, paved with the shells of the gulf, and shaded by the magnificent magnolia and superb oleander. Its grade will be established sufficiently high to insure a good drainage, and there is positively no reason why it may not be made one of the most attractive cities of the world.

The Steamship Bessemer.

The Secretary of the Bessemer Saloon Steamboat Company has received from the Board of Trade a letter, dated April 13, informing the Company, with reference to the recent trial trip of the Bessemer, that the vessel and her machinery have given every satisfaction, and that the Board of Trade will at once issue a passenger certificate for her. We are informed, adds the London Times, that the London, Chatham & Dover Railway Company will, in all probability, arrange for special services during the Whitsuntide holidays, by which the public will be enabled to avail themselves of express trains daily on each side of the channel in combination with the special conveniences and comforts of the Bessemer herself. The special arrangements will be necessary because of the increased draft of water of the Bessemer consequent upon the weights which have been added to her saloon machinery, and other unusual equipments; but, as these extra weights merely affect the questions of speed and of convenience in entering Calais Harbor at certain states of the tide, they will not interfere with the extraordinary comfort provided for passengers in this ship. It is but fair to add that the speed of the ship, regardless of tide, at her present immersion was shown on the measured mile to be 13½ knots, or nearly 16 miles per hour, with much less than her full power.

An Intelligent Animal.

An exceedingly valuable dog has Mr. Ira Wetherbee, of Chico, California, and one which Mr. Wetherbee should always have with him when he indulges in the fascinating but sometimes expensive game of draw-poker. Mr. Wetherbee became recently engaged in a little game of this class where the odds were immensely against him, because, as subsequently appeared, one of the party at the table was arranging the cards in a shamefully partial manner. This man, who was engaged in cheating, contrived to extract from the pack of cards a hand technically known as a "heart flush," with an ace at the head, which hand he laid in his lap to be used when the "pot" upon the table should assume imposing proportions. The opportunity soon came; the stakes were high, and somebody was certain to lose a great deal of money. Then the man with the excellent hand in his lap "went better" and reached down into his lap for the winning cards. His lap was empty. At the same moment, Mr. Ira Wetherbee felt something cold touch his wrist and found the cold object to be his dog's nose. In the dog's mouth were several cards. Mr. Wetherbee took the cards, saw what they were, and promptly played them, winning the pile of lucre upon the table and making good at once his wasted fortunes. Truly, as has been already remarked on various occasions, the dog is man's best friend.

MINERAL WATERS.

How These Refreshing Humbugs Are Manufactured.

Distilled Water, Carbonic Acid Gas, and Glauber and Table Salt.

Their Original Cost Rather Less than a Cent a Glass.

Why Physicians Prescribe Them for Their Patients.

The season for the pop-and-fizz variety of popular beverages is at hand, and from tonic beer to bitter Kissingen, the summer's demand for refrigerant drinks will give a stimulus to their production. The use of mineral water as popular beverage has grown up of late years, although the enthusiastic soda-water man thinks he has found a passage in Milton referring to that effervescent sweetness. It occurs in the "Masque of Comus," and is as follows:

And first, behold this cordial julep here,
That flames and dances in its crystal bounds,
With spirits of balm and fragrant sirups mixed,—
Not that Nepenthes which the wife of Thone
In Egypt gave to Jove-born Helena
Is of such power to stir up joy as this,
To life so friendly or so cool to thirst.
. . . . This will cure all straight; one cup of this Will bathe the drooping spirits in delight
Beyond the bliss of dreams. Be wise and taste.

Whether or not Milton had in mind the nectarious gush of the foaming soda in writing the above the discerning reader will determine, but as regards the description, the Granger's definition of soda-water as sweetened wind will be more readily recognized. But while the dulcet qualities of soda-water may be acknowledged, and the partiality of youth and woman-kind for it be patronizingly considered, a natural manifestation of their appetite for sweets, the virile taste that demands strength and body in its drink seeks the various mineral waters, which to the feminine palate are offensively suggestive of fish-brine. Moreover, is gratified by the curative properties attributed to the salts and bitters of these waters, and thus it is that of natural and artificial mineral waters upwards of half a million gallons are poured annually down the throat of the Chicago public,—that vast abysmal orifice down which are poured so many thousands of gallons of bitters, blood-purifiers, balsams, cordials, sirups, tinctures, extracts, oils, washes, drenches, electuaries, and remedial oils of all descriptions,—many hundreds of thousands of gallons of malt-juice and sour mash, all for the easement or delectation of that body which theologians assure us is essentially mean and vile.

THE NATIONAL PROPENSITY TO PHYSIC

THE MANUFACTURE OF ARTIFICIAL MINERAL WATERS

has assumed such proportions that the foreign natural waters have almost been excluded from the market, and all the Congress water kept on draught is artificial, as the entire product of the natural water is bottled. There are two modes in which the market is supplied. In the one case the retail dealer is supplied with the salts constituting the ingredients of the mineral water to be mixed by himself, or else he is served with the water already prepared and ready for dispensing. In both cases the mineral water is prepared by combining the constituents of the natural water in the same proportion. Thus is found by analysis to contain the following number of grains of salts to the pint: Carbonate of soda, 29; chloride of sodium, 4; sulphate of soda, 2; carbonate of lime, and some traces of other salts. These salts are put up by the manufacturers in their due proportion and with directions for their proper mixture and the quantity of water to be added, so that the retail dealer has only to attend to making the solution and charging the mixture with carbonic acid gas; but as this process is not as simple as it looks on paper, the large retailers, such as the leading drug-stores, make use of this means, and dealers are generally supplied with the waters already prepared by the manufacturers.

Carbonic acid gas supplies the effervescent property to all sparkling liquids, and its presence is obtained by mechanical means in more drinking beverages than the general public are aware. Wine which the natural fermentation has failed to make sparkling, flat ale, etc., are sent to the mineral water manufacturer, and, after having been impregnated with gas and bottled up by him, appear on our tables in a brisk and foaming condition. The manufacture of carbonic acid gas is the chief portion of the mineral-water manufacturer's labor, and the remaining processes are cheap and simple.

THE APPARATUS

used for the purpose are of various shapes, according to the designs of the manufacturers, but the essential parts of all are the acid chamber, the generator, and the gas-washer. Into the generator is put marble dust, which is a carbonate of lime, and sulphuric acid is let in upon this from the acid chamber. Sulphate of lime is formed, and carbonic acid gas disengaged, which passes off through a tube into the gas-washer, which is a vessel containing water through which it passes, and thence into reservoirs to be drawn off as required. Some of the manufacturers use very elaborate apparatus, passing the gas through several washers in order to insure its purity, and the reservoirs are ingeniously contrived for the convenient charging of soda or mineral waters, beer, ale, mead, wine, or anything which it is desired to make brisk or sparkling, and with ordinary care there is nothing in the process that could result in imparting deleterious properties to the beverages impregnated with the gas. A large manufacturer in this city has an apparatus for the production of the gas that, at one operation, can produce sufficient to charge 14,000 gallons of soda-water. For this two gallons of marble dust and two carboys of sulphuric acid are used. Having this reservoir of carbonic-acid gas, the manufacture of mineral waters is a simple process, although there are some niceties to be observed in

THEIR MIXTURE.

They are generally prepared in quantities of ten gallons, in portable reservoirs. These are composed of iron lined with porcelain or block-tin, or of a shell of block-tin within a shell of steel, the latter style superseding the former on account of its greater lightness. The block-tin, which is made from the pure metal, is not affected by the action of the salts in the waters, and cannot, therefore, impart to them any impurity. The salts and pure distilled water are mixed together in these reservoirs, and then charged with the carbonic acid gas from the large reservoirs. These portable reservoirs are then served to the retailer, who connects them with his dispensing apparatus by means of stopcocks, the pressure of the gas making the water ascend the pipes.

The principal artificial waters manufactured in this way are Vichy, Kissingen, Seltzers, and Congress, although Friedrichshall, Puellna, or any of the other waters are supplied to order. In some of the stronger waters the solution of the salts could not be accomplished except with the aid of the gas.

THE PROCESS

is first to charge the water with gas, under a pressure of about 25 pounds to the square inch. This displaces the air in the water with carbonic gas, about 15 per cent being absorbed. The gas remaining mingled with the air that has been expelled from the water is then set free. The solvent power of the water is increased by the addition of the gas, and the salts are added in a certain order, varying in the different waters, and which is ascertained by experiment, as fast as one set of salts have been completely dissolved others being added. Strong waters, like Friedrichshall, will retain the salts in solution only under strong pressure, 200 pounds to the square inch being generally applied.

It is claimed for these artificial waters that they are

IDENTICAL IN COMPOSITION AND EFFICACY

with the natural waters, and similar in taste, except that the natural are not so highly charged with carbonic acid gas, which affects the taste of the waters, making them more palatable. An advantage is claimed for the artificial waters in that they are made from formulas obtained by analysis of the natural waters when at their best. The natural springs are subject to changes and deteriorations, the difference in the composition of their waters at various periods being very considerable. A notable instance is the celebrated Kissingen Rakoczi spring, which suffered a loss of 22½ per cent of mineralizing ingredients from 1830 to 1855, besides a change in their relative proportions, and became more diuretic. It is found that the natural water imported in bottles vary a great deal, and are generally deteriorated in their efficacious properties. The leading manufacturers claim to have secured an exact similitude of composition to the best natural waters and observe the greatest possible care in their processes.

THE COST.

of a glass of mineral water to the retailer is about a cent; to the wholesale manufacturer it goes down so far in the fractions that computation can hardly follow it. The cost of its manufacture lies almost wholly in the cost of labor and apparatus, which latter represents an investment from $20,000 to $40,000 for the wholesale manufacturer. Take for instance the ordinary Kissingen, containing, when properly prepared, the following grains of salts to the pint: Chloride of sodium 62, chloride of magnesium 7, carbonate of magnesia 2½, carbonate of lime 3½, proto-carbonate of iron 6-10.

Chloride of sodium is nothing more or less than common table-salt, which, it may be remarked, is, under its imposing chemical name, the chief ingredient of all of the mineral waters. The chloride of magnesium is sold by the wholesale druggists at $1 per pound, with a large trade discount. As there are 5,760 grains to the pound, the 7 grains in a pint of Kissingen would cost a little over a mill. Carbonate of magnesia sells wholesale at 28 cents a pound, carbonate of lime at 25 cents a pound, proto-carbonate of iron at 50 cents a pound, so that one-half of a cent would leave a good sized margin for profit on the cost of the ingredients of a pint of Kissingen, selling at 10 cents the half-pint glass. The constituents of Vichy water, the analysis of which has been given, cost a great deal less, and in none of the waters are the ingredients more costly than a dollar a pound, a quantity sufficient for from 50 to 500 gallons, according to the proportions. The salts, which constitute the largest ingredients, are almost always the cheapest. The retailers, however, rarely, if ever, manufacture the waters from the crude materials, but prefer the salts ready prepared for mixing, although the cost is a great deal more. One New York house makes the preparation of these salts a specialty, and the name of the firm is a guarantee of the purity of the salts and the exactness of their proportions, which gives them a value a good deal above the mere cost of the materials. In this shape salts of Kissingen, Vichy, Carlsbad, Seltzer, and Congress, cost from $1.25 to $1.50 a package, sufficient to produce ten gallons of mineral waters. This gives a cost of a little less than a cent for the 10-cent glass served to customers, so that 9 cents are put on to represent the cost of fine marble fountains and the curly-headed clerk behind the counter.

THESE FOUNTAINS

gotten up in a style of beauty and richness cost from $200 to $600, representing an interest of say $50 per annum, so that with a fair amount of custom there is a handsome profit in the mineral-water business. The cost of the mineral water supplied ready made is probably less, as the retailers buying only the salts have to manufacture their own carbonic acid gas with which to charge the water. Then, again, some of the wholesale dealers rent fountains, so that one can start out in a business with an enormous percentage of profit on a small capital. Indeed, a complete apparatus for making and dispensing soda and mineral waters, including marble fountain, tumblers, flavoring-sirups, etc., can be bought at from $200 to $2,500, according to the fancy fixings, the apparatus' highest price being of the most elegant style. This expense includes apparatus and materials for every step of the process, from generating the carbonic acid gas to serving the waters.

THE NATURAL MINERAL WATERS

kept on draught are all from springs in this country, and are continually varying in popularity. Every now and then a new water is put on the market and run up by vigorous puffing, obtaining a transient popularity which soon abates. A great many so-called medicinal springs are merely real-estate speculations. A mineral water now being put on the market is stated to be an active diuretic, and persons using it for that purpose are recommended to drink as many as five glasses at a time and fifteen daily. If one should drink as much of any kind of water, it would exert an "active diuretic" influence, or to use non-technical language, would cause a free action of the kidneys. The principal natural waters now on the market are the Magnetic, of Spring Lake, Mich., recommended as an aperient, and as possessing curative effects in cases of rheumatism, paralysis, etc.; Glen Flora, of Waukegan, a diuretic; Deep Rock, of Oswego, an aperient and also diuretic; Geyser, of Saratoga, an aperient; Blue Lick, of Kentucky, an alterative and blood-purifier; Bethesda of Waukesha, Wis., an active diuretic. The cost of these waters ranges from $6 to $12 per barrel of 40 gallons. The Geyser Spring water is wholesaled at 25 cents a gallon; the Deep Rock at 20 cents; the Bethesda is the highest, $12 per barrel at the spring, or 30 cents a gallon. Twenty-five cents a gallon would be above the average cost, however, and this would make the glass sold at 10 cents cost less than one cent and six-tenths.

Besides the branches of manufacture mentioned above, a considerable business is done in the supply of

MINERAL WATERS IN SIPHON BOTTLES.

The manufacture of these is carried on chiefly by dealers supplying saloons and restaurants. A good deal of this sort of mineral water is of very simple composition, some few of the leading salts, such as chloride of sodium, carbonate of soda, or sulphate of soda, being stirred into water and charged with the gas. Sulphate of soda is the common Glauber salts, having an aperient effect, and when a fellow wants the bartender to put some Kissingen in his liquor, a little Glauber salts and water will do just as well as the regular stuff.

Physicians are disposed to be tolerant of the use of mineral waters as popular beverages, inasmuch as they contain and they are too cheap for any adulteration. If they don't do much good they can't do much harm, and as the American people will take physic, this is about the best shape they can take it in. If the use of mineral waters in any degree supplants the various patent nostrums with which the market is flooded, they will perform good service. Many of the pills and other patent preparations recommended as aperients contain drastic cathartics which may have very injurious effects on the system, and a man had much better stick to bitter Kissingen. The composition of this water is as follows: Grains of salts to the pint, sulphate of soda, 57; chloride of sodium, 76; sulphate of magnesium, 50; chloride of magnesium, 38. It will be seen that the principal constituents are Glauber salts and common salts, but such is the influence of fancy that the person who used to rebel when his mother tried to worry into him a dose of Glauber salts for the good of his bowels, now steps up and takes it like a little man, when the dose is made more salty, bitter, and nasty, and called Kissingen. Physicians state that there is about some of the claims put forward for mineral waters, as for instance the magnetic springs in Michigan, whose waters were once in such great vogue. Water cannot have magnetic properties in the nature of things, and as for the efficacy of these so-called magnetic springs in cases of paralysis, a leading physician says that all the water in Michigan might be passed through a paralytic patient without helping the disease a particle. Some of the European springs enjoy great popularity on account of their supposed efficacy in calculus diseases, which are of much more frequent occurrence in Europe than in this country. If, however, the bottler or the imitator of these waters would convey all the curative properties of these springs he would have to put up their pleasant surroundings, good fare and good company, and skillful medical attendance. A well-known physician of this city tells a good story of the wonderful cure worked upon him by the water of Bath Springs, Berkeley County, Va. Getting over an attack of inflammatory rheumatism which left him so weak that he was hardly able to crawl, his friends insisted that he should go to the Springs. He did so, and in forty-five days gained 50 pounds, so that he was a walking advertisement of the waters of the Springs. The joke of the matter was, that he never tasted the water but once, and finding it too sulphurous and nasty for his palate, stuck to pure mountain water after that, drank whisky when he felt like it, ate plenty of beef and mutton, and took plenty of out-door exercise. The release from his studies, the change of scene, and good living were what built him up.

NO DELETERIOUS INGREDIENTS,

A GREAT DEAL OF HUMBUG

TIRED.

So weary, so weary am I
With this pitiless jostle and din—
Life's weakness, and folly, and sin—
That I pray, "Let me die! let me die!"

I have carried my burdens too long:
I have borne them in sorrow and tears,
Through barren and profitless years,
With a heart that was hopeful and strong.

I have labored with zeal, though in pain:
I have striven for loftier things—
God's grace, and the calm that it brings—
But my labors and strivings were vain.

So long have I breasted the wave
That I sigh for the tumult to cease—
For silence, for rest, and for peace,
Where the tempests no longer rave.

Ah, God! there is peace at last
For the souls that are tempest-tossed,
When the sorrows of time are lost,
And the Stygian waters passed.

[illegible] THEO. C[illegible]

THE BUSY SEASON.

A General State of Unusual Activity Throughout the City.

Chicago Merchants Unanimous in Reporting an Improved Condition.

The Business of April and May Fully Up to the Anticipations of March.

Retail Traffic in the North and West Divisions.

Signs of the Times in Books, Music, Hardware, Dry Goods, Etc., Etc., Etc.

During the month of March last, as will be remembered by the mercantile community and the general public, an article appeared in THE TRIBUNE, purporting to give the aspect and the outlook of trade for 1875, presenting the opinions of a large number of gentlemen prominently connected with the wholesale departments of commerce, which indicated with great unanimity, the expectation of a decided revival of business upon the approach of a warmer and more comfortable sun. Conversations within the past few days with prominent firms in several of the leading departments of commerce, wholesale and retail, seem to indicate the realization during the weeks that have since intervened, of the expectations and promises expressed at that time In the great department of wholesale dry goods, Mr. A. H. Winslow, of Richards, Shaw, Fitch & Winslow, stated in conversation with a TRIBUNE representative yesterday that the jobbing trade in all lines of dry goods for April and May was such as to confirm all anticipations expressed on the former occasion. In iron and hardware, Mr. S. D. Kimbark, who will be remembered as among those who took an encouraging view of the situation, notwithstanding the depression in the outside manufacturing industry, reports the business in iron, steel, nails, carriage and heavy hardware, blacksmiths's outfits, etc., as a very considerable per cent in excess of trade for the corresponding season last year, while in books, pianos, etc., which represent a field quite opposite to iron, W. B. Keen, Cooke & Co., Hadley Brothers, and others in the book trade, and W. W. Kimball, in the piano and organ trade, make a present report quite up to the anticipations entertained two months since.

Business at W. B. Keen, Cooke & Co.'s would seem to indicate that Chicago is beginning to take rank as a great publishing centre, some of their popular publications, such as Allan Pinkerton's stories, "Claude Melnotte as a Detective," and "The Expressman and the Detective," and others, finding an enormous sale throughout all the Eastern cities. Another book to be issued by them this month, and giving promise of great popularity, is the new work of J. Stanley Grimes, "The Mysteries of the Mind and the Heart Explained,—an Improved System of Phrenology, Mesmerism, Trance, and the Spirit Delusion, Ghost-Seeing, and Mind-Reading, Illustrated with Numerous Engravings."

In pianos and organs, which, though constituting a special item, has been developed by private enterprise into a very large and interesting feature of the commerce of the city. Chicago being the base and centre of supply in musical instruments for the entire Northwest, with its thousands of cities and towns, and millions of intelligent population, W. W. Kimball, who is regarded as our best Western authority in this department, reports the sales of pianos and organs, in both the wholesale and retail branches, at about 25 per cent in excess of trade for corresponding months of last year, the main demand being for the Hallet & Davis and Great Union Piano and the Smith's American Organ. Mr. Kimball is recognized by the trade as the largest among Western dealers in pianos and organs, which is to be attributed to the fact of his being sole Northwestern agent of perhaps the most popular instrument of music which the genius and invention of the age have yet placed before the world, the pianos of Messrs. Hallet, Davis & Co., of Boston, an instrument which seems first to have become assured of world-wide fame by coming up to the nice demands of German criticism. It was concerning this piano, it will be remembered, that Franz Liszt, the great pianist, and the highest living authority in music, expressed the concise opinion, "the most admirable instrument ever made,"—an opinion that, of course, met the prompt indorsement of all the court pianists, concert masters, and musical composers, professors and teachers throughout the Old World. Aside from this famous piano, however, Mr. Kimball's great warerooms on State and Adams street are the seat of a very large wholesale and retail traffic in the Smith's American organ, Great Union and Kimball pianos, etc.

TRANSPORTATION.

THE CHICAGO & ALTON RAILROAD.

The freight business of the several great railroads centering in Chicago, constitutes a sort of perpetual index of the commerce of the city, and the reports of freight officers, though not indicating a great improvement in the general business of transportation, exhibit an increase in the shipments of merchandise such as to afford a practical confirmation of the reports of merchants. Mr. James Smith, the General Freight-Agent of the Chicago & Alton Railroad, a line that traverses sections of country that have been largely tributary to the wealth and commerce and progressive development of the city, reports the shipments of merchandise to the main points of the line in Illinois, Missouri, and Kansas, as an improvement on the business of last season, though the failure of the corn crop and the operation of the Granger laws have prevented a corresponding increase of freights to the city. There can be no question but that the effect of those oppressive special laws which set aside all equity and freedom of trade among railroads, and which, if applied to the mercantile interests, would be the paralysis and death of commerce, have operated directly and powerfully to the detriment of the wholesale business of the city. The policy of the Chicago & Alton Railroad Company, before it came under the oppression and restraint of those laws, had been to compete at cross points connecting with Cincinnati, and other cities, for a large trade that was mainly subject to cost of transportation, by such special inducements in local rates as placed the business of those cross points and debatable fields beyond the competition of other cities, thus rendering them tributary to the commerce of Chicago. And the result of the Granger laws which forbade this accommodation in railroad rates has been to give back to Cincinnati and other markets no inconsiderable item of the legitimate trade of Chicago.

None of our other great railroad lines have rendered a greater service to the city in the industry of the city than the Chicago & Alton. While constituting for many years the great air line route to St. Louis and the main connection for the Southern territory, the accessions and improvements of the past year or two, in the addition of hundreds of miles of road to its western connections with a great railroad bridge at Louisiana, Mo., have rendered it a new arm of strength and life to Chicago as a direct line to Central Missouri and to Kansas and Texas, and adding millions to the wholesale traffic of the city. Perhaps no other railway in the country enjoys a better reputation for keeping up to the highest standard in equipment and accommodations, in regard both to the freight and passenger branches of the business, the outfit in locomotives, cars, depots, etc., being always on a liberal scale while the management and discipline of the entire line have been such as to guarantee shippers against the inconveniences and delays so commonly incident to transportation. The arrangements of the Company for carrying stock, for instance, which now constitutes an immense item, employing no less than one thousand stock cars, are such as to combine the greatest speed with the greatest comfort and safety; and while but forty hours are occupied in the transmission of great stock trains from Kansas City to Chicago, the line is provided at intervals with resting places in large yards constructed at considerable expense for the proper care of live stock, where the upper soil is all removed and replaced with a 2-foot bed of gravel. The stock trains are also provided with sleeping-cars for the accommodation of drovers, with all the comforts of the Pullman palace-cars. Another great and special service rendered to the city by the Chicago & Alton Railroad Company has been in developing the great coal-fields of Wilmington and Braidwood, and other points, and placing their native product in the Chicago market,—an interest that gives promise of indefinite and perpetual expansion.

BRINK'S CITY EXPRESS.

W. P. Brink, proprietor of Brink's City Express, main office No. 39 East Randolph street, for local transportation of light freight, packages, etc., to and from all points in the city and suburbs, reports business in his line as more active than at any former season. Brink's City Express, which is now regarded as one of the permanent features and institutions of the city, was organized in 1861, the original office being at No. 119 East Randolph street, the outfit and equipment consisting of one horse and one wagon. The business has been gradually developed and systematized, a large force of teams, wagons, furniture-cars, etc., brought in requisition, and regular routes established throughout all divisions of the city, and to Hyde Park, Evanston, etc. Under Mr. Brink's system, the charges for moving a trunk from the main office to Western avenue, a distance of 3 miles, is but 25 cents.

SPECIAL ITEMS.

STEELE & PRICE.

A representative of THE TRIBUNE also waited upon Mr. Charles R. Steele, of Steele & Price, manufacturers, 201 and 203 South Water street, and, in reply to interrogatories touching the spring trade in their popular manufactures,—Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder and flavoring extracts,—was informed that orders had been fully up to anticipations, the large increase in the demand for the flavoring extracts bringing the trade in that item to a large per cent over sales of last spring. It is well understood by the community that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, thousands of tons of which are turned out from this establishment every year, has constituted for many years past one of the special domestic staples at all the markets of the Northwest, with very considerable sales throughout the Middle States. It is regarded as one of the most successful and most creditable products of Chicago home manufacture, and is unquestionably the purest and best baking-powder ever placed in our markets, and if the opinions of druggists and chemists and all classes of consumers are worthy of acceptance, the flavoring extracts in the manufacture of which under the direct supervision of Dr. V. C. Price, the firm have been engaged on a very large scale, during the past three years, reflect equal credit on our home manufactures and are equally entitled to the reputation they have already established for strength and purity. Two of the broad floors of the large manufactory are devoted to the manufacture of these flavoring extracts, the daily product in bottles of all sizes, from one-sixteenth of a pint to a quart, being estimated at about 300 dozen bottles. These pure extracts, by which the native, vital odor and flavoring element of all fruits is brought out by chemical processes and made available for domestic use, have stood the tests of science and of practical use triumphantly, and give promise of taking precedence over all other manufactures.

REMOVALS.

HADLEY BROTHERS.

Since the 1st of May a number of well-known business firms of the city, among them Messrs. Hadley Brothers, booksellers and stationers, have made a change of base and gone into new quarters. Hadley Bros., who have been located for the past three years at 136 State street, finding their accommodations inadequate to the requirements of their business, which has been mainly a jobbing trade, have moved to 63 and 65 Washington street, their new store being one of the broadest, deepest, and in all respects most attractive, in the city. A retail department will be added to the business of the house, and hereafter the Washington street bookstore will constitute one of the attractions of the city.

SCHWEITZER & BEER.

Messrs. Schweitzer & Beer (Edm. Schweitzer, Carl Beer. Edm. Grieninger), importers and wholesale and retail dealers in toys and fancy goods, have vacated their old stand, and taken possession of larger quarters at 188 and 190 State street, opposite the Palmer House. The building now occupied by the firm is a capacious five story structure 145x43 feet in size, and affords them good elbow room for manipulating their great stock, including china, lava and Bohemian glassware, baskets, musical instruments, druggists' sundries, bird cages, children's carriages, etc. The baby carriages, which comprise a considerable item of the display, and exhibit a multitude of pretty and ingenious styles, represent some of the fine work turned out by the Novelty Manufacturing Company, 495, 497, and 499 North Wells street, A. Schoeninger, superintendent. This establishment, which makes a specialty of baby-carriages, carts, hobby-horses, etc., is entitled to mention as having achieved more than a local success in this line, having established a considerable trade with the Eastern seaboard cities. The works represent the perfection of mechanical machinery, employ near a hundred hands, and turn out baby-carriages at the rate of 300 a week.

MITCHELL & HATHEWAY.

Messrs. Mitchell & Hatheway, of the Chicago Episcopal Church Book Store, formerly 45 South Clark street, removed previous to May 1 to larger, more central, and pleasanter quarters, 158 State street. In addition to the Hymnal, Prayer-Book, and Bible, in a great variety of bindings and styles, the new stock embraces a large variety of standard and miscellaneous books, current literature, fine and commercial stationery, illuminated texts, etc., etc.

H. C. DAHL,

draper and tailor, late 159 South Clark street, who has during the past five years developed a fine local reputation as a faithful and accomplished artist, has removed to very elegant and attractive quarters, 119 Dearborn street. Mr. Dahl's stock consists mainly of the best lines of English and French cloths, his specialty, as is known to his patrons, being to turn out work worthy of his profession at very low prices.

WILLIAM DESMOND,

the popular florist, late No. 131 Madison street (greenhouses No. 755 Cottage Grove avenue), on whom the fashionable community have long been accustomed to rely for fine floral decorations, for public and private purposes, has removed to No. 152 State street.

THE WEST SIDE—THOS. PHELPS & CO.

The main item of interest on the West Side is the removal of Thos. Phelps & Co., dealers in fancy and staple dry goods, from their ancient site, 32 and 34 West Randolph street, where they have been established for over nineteen years, to 328 Madison street, corner of Aberdeen, continuing the Randolph street store as a branch. This is the second oldest dry-goods house in the city.

THE NORTH SIDE.

A VERY ENCOURAGING ASPECT—SHOENFELD, BROS. & CO.

The North Side begins to give cheering indications of a return to good times. Shoenfeld Bros., importers and retailers of dry goods, carpets, etc., 101 and 103 North Clark street, established in 1856, report the present as a great improvement over all preceding years, with a general return of old patrons of the house, which is the oldest of the North Division, carrying a very large stock, including a full line of curtain goods, window-shades, etc.

LOUIS ROMAN.

Among the institutions of the North Side, at which the people of that Division have begun to learn the folly of ignoring low prices and of carrying their patronage outside their own district, is the attractive and popular dry-goods establishment of Louis Roman, No. 169 North Clark street. Mr. Roman will be remembered by that community as conducting a prosperous business in dry goods in the same locality for several years previous to the great fire, and as the first to return to the old ground after that historic event. The establishment is spacious, handsome and attractive, with accommodations for serving a large patronage, and is one of the centrels of trade in the Division, the stock comprising full lines of silks, dress-goods, hosiery, underwear, cotton, and housekeeping goods, etc. Mr. Roman reports a busy season and a steady and uniform growth of trade since his early return to the North Division.

W. S. JONES.

Mr. W. S. Jones, proprietor of the magnificent dry-goods establishment in Brown's handsome stone-front edifice, corner of Clark and Superior streets, confirms the universal report of a general revival of retail trade in the North Division. The store occupied by Mr. Jones constitutes not only an attraction to the North Side community, but in point of size and elegance bears a very favorable comparison to the popular retail marts of State street, in the South Division. It was designed and constructed for the special accommodation of the dry-goods trade, and after the plans of the present occupant. The furniture, fixtures, and minor architecture, shelves and counters, window and ceiling-finish, etc., are all in the tasteful modern style of first-class dry-goods stores, and if located in the business centre of the South Side would probably bring a rental of $8,000 in excess of that paid by its occupant, one of the items of economy that justifies Mr. Jones in adhering to a low scale of prices, and which may reasonably remind the people of the North Side of the policy of trading at home. The store gives employment to twenty-three clerks and salesmen, the business comprising full lines of everything known under the head of dry goods, boots and shoes constituting also an attractive department.

FINE GROCERIES—ROCKWOOD BROTHERS.

Messrs. Rockwood Brothers, dealers in teas, coffees, spices, and choice family groceries, 72 North Clark, report an increase of 20 per cent sales over corresponding months of last year, owing to gradual repopulation of residence sections. The firm are noted for their faithful and persistent efforts to meet the demand for the best goods, and command the principal North-Side trade in fine groceries.

THE OSHKOSH FIRE.

REPORT OF THE CINCINNATI SAFE AND LOCK WORKS.

Mr. J. M. Terwilliger, General Agent of the Cincinnati Safe and Lock Works,—(office and ware-rooms formerly 49 State street, lately removed to No. 187 Washington,)—has received intelligence from Oshkosh to the effect that out of the large number of fire and burglar-proof safes of the Macneale & Urban patents, supplied by him to the burned-out merchants of that place, not one had failed to carry its contents sound and whole through that terrible conflagration, intelligence entirely in keeping with the record of the same safe through the Chicago fire. On that occasion reports showed that of 400 of the safes, many of which were red-hot under the embers of the burned city for a period of several weeks before being opened, only 4 per cent lost their contents, in the majority of instances the paper contents being not so much as discolored, the sealing-wax of packages and envelopes being unmelted. Among the work done by the company represented by Mr. Terwilliger, are the great vaults, doors, and safes, at the Fidelity Savings Bank, and Fidelity Safe Depository, together with much of the most approved vault work in many of our bank buildings and business blocks.

THE DIEBOLD SAFE.

Mr. D. S. Covert, General Agent for Diebold, Norris & Co. (late Diebold & Kienzle), No. 57 State street, who had about 800 of the Diebold & Kienzle safes in the great fire in Chicago, losing but 4 per cent, and saving tens of millions of dollars in money and valuables, reports that not one of his safes was lost at Oshkosh. It is estimated that 1,000 of these safes are now in use in Chicago.

CARPETS.

C. W. & E. PARDRIDGE.

Every season comes bringing in a new throng of styles and fashions of carpets, as in any other line, and the most popular patterns now in the market are sage-green, sage-drab, and tea-green shades for the ground-work, with over-work of lively figures and rich designs. In deep colors the dark browns are much favored. These are Brussels, and have a rich, soft, and pleasing appearance. A large stock of these pattens, as well as ordinary styles, can be seen at C. W. & E. Pardridge's store, at Nos. 118 and 120 State street. This department is under the able management of C. J. Stokes. The stock of French moquets is selling for $2.75 per yard, a low figure for the goods, as they are selling elsewhere from $3.50 to $4; while 5-frame body Brussels are marked at $1.80 per yard which heretofore sold for $2.50. The range of prices of other grades of carpeting is low this season, ingrains running from 35 to 75 cents per yard; two-ply at 65 cents to $1.25, while oilcloths cost 35 to 75 cents per yard. The finest imported tapestries can be bought from $1.20 to $1.40 per yard. American goods are from $1 to $1.25.

At such prices, all who contemplate laying new carpets would do well to avail themselves of the present low prices.

The German Note of April 15.

COLOGNE, April 19.—The Cologne Gazette publishes an analysis of the second German note, dated the 15th inst., which Count Perponcher wrote by order of the German Government, and communicated on the evening of the 16th inst., to the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs. The German Government expresses in the first place its regret at the refusal contained in the Belgian reply of the 26th of February to comply with the wishes of Germany. It says Belgium is certainly best qualified to appreciate the Parliamentary difficulties which stand in the way of affording the necessary relief which Germany asks for, but Belgium must surely, at the same time, be convinced that the primary thing to be done is to recognize the practical necessity of this redress, whereas the examination of the difficulties which arise in giving it effect occupies a secondary position. The consideration of the question how each State is to fulfill its international duty of protecting the subjects of neighboring States from disturbances of their domestic peace fomented on its territory and avert injury to its national relations does not interest Belgium alone, but in an equal degree all States which make it their task to cultivate the general peace and good neighborly relations. At all times this question has had to be answered according to prevailing requirements and existing possibilities for preventing foreign interference with the safety of the State. The present time is no longer suitable, as may have been the past, for exclusively adhering to individual sovereignty in dealing with international obligations.

The note here points to the interwoven character and sensible reciprocal action of the present means of intercourse, the solidarity of interests which has grown up with this state of things, and the proportionate increase of the power of action of the elements hostile to the existence of peace. All this is true to an extent which it was not possible to foresee a generation back.

The note draws from these arguments the conclusion that no State can remain free from the reaction of such disturbances of regular regulations. If the adoption of preventives meet with manifold difficulties, a friendly exchange of views may facilitate the task, as has already happened, in a friendly way, through the public discussion brought about by the preceding consideration of the subject. By this very means the attention of the Imperial authorities in Germany has been drawn to the defects in the laws of that country, similar to those existing in Belgium, as regards the protection of other States against enterprises undertaken by German subjects. Up to the present no complaints have been made by foreign governments against any such hostile enterprises, because German subjects have not mixed themselves up with the affairs of other countries. Nevertheless, the Imperial Chancellor has lost no time in calling upon the authorities of the Empire to consider by what legislative provisions it is possible to procure protection for foreign countries and for the internal peace of neighboring States against possible future disturbances. Of course, it is not possible to say at present what reception will be given to this subject by the legislative bodies.

The note proceeds to express a wish that Belgium will follow this example, and thereby give a fresh proof of the value which she attaches, as repeatedly expressed by her, to the maintenance of good relations with the German Empire. Should the endeavor fail, the public view of the question would, nevertheless, become clearer, and an understanding be brought about between all States that are equally interested in the matter.

Here follows the passage already communicated to the Chamber of Representatives by the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs, in which an emphatic denial is given to the misrepresentation conveyed by the newspapers that the German Government was aiming against the freedom of the press in Belgium. It was not sought to interfere at all in Belgium's internal affairs, but to prevent intervention in the internal affairs of Germany.

In conclusion, the note again refers to the obligations which have especially arisen for Belgium towards the guaranteeing powers out of the fact of her neutrality, and in proof of the peaceable neighborly intentions of Germany it draws attention to the fact that this exchange of views has been made with the knowledge of the other powers, to whom the steps taken have been communicated by the German Government.

The Last of a Noted Ship.

San Francisco Bulletin.

W. Simmons, a well-known rigger of this city, has a curiosity in his possession which possesses no small historical interest. It is a model of a bark made out of the timber of the Cadmus, the vessel in which Lafayette came to the United States in 1824. The Cadmus arrived in San Francisco, from England, in 1850, and being pronounced unseaworthy was sold at auction. Being purchased by a ship-chandlery firm, she was converted into a storeship, and for several years lay off the foot of Mission street. She was again sold—George Howgate and Frederick Howlin being the purchasers, who broke her up in 1856. A portion of her timbers were used as planking for the streets, Montgomery, between California and Sacramento, being planked with the "oaken wall" of the sturdy old craft. Mr. Simmons, however, who assisted at her demolition, had romance enough to save a fragment of her remains, of which he constructed a model of the original. It is pronounced a perfect imitation, the style of rig, shape of hull, etc., all being close copies of the ancient bark. The deck is made from the door frame of the cabin occupied by the illustrious Frenchman, a piece of the berth in which he slept forming the forecastle.

MONEY AND COMMERCE.

FINANCIAL.

The activity of the early days of the week has not been sustained throughout, as the clearings showed on Saturday, when they were the lightest of the week. The counter business has been lively on account of the settlements, but the mercantile business of the city has not contributed as much to that part of the operations of the banks as it would have done had trade been more favored by the weather.

The loan market remains in a steady and somewhat dull condition, with applications mainly of a uniform character from the well-established sources, almost nothing being experienced of a new or fresh demand. This leaves a considerable amount of unused funds in the hands of the banks, and in their desire to place these where they will return some income during the summer, more disposition is manifested to make reductions on the standard rates of discount. Bank loans have consequently been made as low as 6 per cent on call. Rates are generally reported at 8@10 per cent. It would be a mistake to infer from this however, that the discount market is any more accessible to weak borrowers. The scrutiny to which collaterals and indorsements are subjected naturally grows stricter the lower rates are made.

On the street matters are unchanged. Loans can be made at very favorable rates by first-class applicants. Rates range from 6@18 per cent.

New York exchange is scarce; the amount made by shipments is very small; the price is firm at shipping rates.

The clearings Saturday were $3,821,312.03; for the week they were $33,633,386.18, and the balances $2,781,124.70. The figures for the corresponding week of last year were $29,395,619.65, and $2,481,259.37.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce (which has a capital of $6,000,000 gold, and a reserve of $1,800,000 gold) opens business in this city Monday, the 10th inst.

CALLS FOR BONDS FOR SYNDICATE AND SINKING FUND.

It may be interesting to the public to know how the Government is getting along with the Syndicate under the last contract. The calls were based upon the last "firm" bid of the Syndicate for $25,000,000, and the voluntary bid of the Secretary to retire bonds for the Sinking Fund. The calls were as follows, all for 5-20s of 1862:

Interest ceases
May 1, for Syndicate	$15,000,000
June 1, for Syndicate	5,000,000
July 20, for Syndicate	5,000,000
Aug. 1, for Syndicate	5,000,000
Total	$30,000,000

The Syndicate have, by their last call, exceeded their "firm" bid by $5,000,000, and the estimate here is, that they intend to, and will, take the entire remainder of the fives.

In aid of this it is hoped here that the Sinking-Fund cancellation of $30,000,000 of the old bonds will create something of a brisk market for news 5s. This hope is indulged in by those in authority, in view of the shipments of gold to Europe, for the proportion of the Sinking-Fund call is $24,063,750 coupon to $5,936,250 registered bonds, and the coupon bonds are nearly all out of the country.

	Last week.	Prev's week.

Corn, bu	405,600	144,455

The leading produce markets were less active on Saturday, and again weak. The thermometer in the neighborhood of 85 degrees was an indication that summer weather is coming, and this tended to depress grain, while that feeling reacted on pork products. The speculative strength which has carried everything up beyond the line at which export to the seaboard is possible, was checked by the prospect of warmer weather, and sellers were more plentiful. We note that, as compared with New York, prices in this city are nearly the same on pork, and only 10@15c per 100 lbs lower on lard, while the value of wheat for shipment to Liverpool is barely 88¾c in store. It is therefore no wonder that the shipping movement is so generally dull, there being no inducement to operate, except for the supply of interior points.

Dry goods were active in a few departments only. Seasonable dress goods, linens, cambrics, hosiery, checks, denims, shirtings, and cottonades were in liberal demand, but in most other departments quiet prevailed. Prices ruled comparatively steady, except for brown and bleached cottons, which are unsettled. The grocery trade was fairly active in the staple goods department, orders from interior dealers being numerous and liberal. Minor articles continue quiet. The price changes were confined to an advance of an ⅛@¼c in sugars. Butter continues in good demand, and, under light supplies, prices remain firm. Cheese was unchanged in value. The dried fruit and canned goods markets presented no new features. Fish were fairly active and unchanged. Bagging, leather, coal, and wood were dull, as previously quoted. In the oil market the changes were unimportant.

There was a quiet feeling in the cattle market. Neither local nor outside buyers took hold with much apparent interest, and trading was slow at Friday's prices: Stockers at $3.50@5.00, butchers' stuff at $4.00@5.50, and shipping beeves at $5.50@6.75. The hog trade was more active at firmer prices, with sales at $7.25@7.60 for common to choice light, and at $7.40@8.25 for poor to choice heavy. Sheep sold moderately at nominally steady rates: shorn at $3.00@5.00, unshorn at $5.00@6.50. Highwines were in moderate demand at the recent advance, selling at $1.15 cash and $1.16 buyer two weeks. Lake freights were inactive but a shade firmer.

At the lumber-yards trade was active at uniformly steady prices. A large fleet was at the docks, and the market was active and steady. The demand for iron and steel continues fair, and the latter is tolerably firm, owing to the stoppage of several mills in Pennsylvania. Nails and metals were unchanged. No noticeable changes were made in broom-corn, hops, wool, or hay. Hides were dull and weak in the absence of any demand. Timothy and clover seed were in request to fill small orders, and firm. Hungarian was steady. Potatoes were quiet and less firm, the market being abundantly supplied, with a prospect of larger receipts by water soon. Green fruits sold readily, except some domestic varieties. Poultry and eggs were steady.

PROVISIONS.

HOG PRODUCTS—There was scarcely anything doing, except in mess pork, and the market dragged badly, with a weak undertow, though hogs were reported less plenty and 5@10c per 100 lbs higher. There was little demand, and the market promises to be quiet till after the taking of stocks on the 15th, which, it is thought, will not show a large decrease, as the recent outward movement of product has been light, especially of winter cured.

SHIPMENTS—The Commercial Report gives the following as the shipments of provisions from this point for the week ending May 6, 1875, and since Nov. 1, 1874, together with comparisons:

	Pork, brls.	Lard, tcs.	Hams tcs.	Should's, lbs.	†Middles, lbs.
Week ending May 6, 1875	2,572	891	1,617	794,709	2,545,600
Same week 1874	6,093	3,806	1,507	436,352	1,252,609
Since Nov. 1, '74	183,891	179,891	48,067	26,476,536	176,810,881
Same time '73-'4	145,825	117,026	56,830	24,840,830	159,706,024

†Includes all cut meats, except shoulders and S. P. hams.

The stock of provisions in Cincinnati, on May 1, was as follows: Pork, 26,000 brls; lard, 22,000 tcs; dry salted meats, 27,000,000 lbs. The stock one year ago was as follows: Pork, 9,866 brls; lard, 6,607 tcs; dry salted meats, 33,500,000 lbs.

MESS PORK—Was quiet, and averaged 5c per brl lower, in sympathy with New York, which was quoted weak at the minimum prices paid here, leaving no margin to pay the cost of shipment to the seaboard. Sales were reported of 200 brls cash (in car lots) at $21.50@21.60; 3,000 brls, seller June, at $21.62½@21.72½; 3,000 brls, seller July, at $21.90@21.95; 3,250 brls, seller August, at $22.10@22.25; and 250 brls seller September, at $22.45. Total, 9,700 brls. The market closed quiet at $21.50 cash; $21.60@21.62½ for June; $21.90 for July; and $22.10@22.12½ for August.

Extra prime pork was quoted at $15.50@15.62½.

LARD—Was dull and a shade easier, but was not offered freely, hence the market could not be called weak. Sales were reported of 61 tcs cash at $15.45; 500 tcs seller June at $15.50@15.55; and 750 tcs, seller July, at $15.70. Total, 1,311 tcs. The market closed at $15.40@15.42½ for May; $15.50 for June; $15.70 for July; and nominally at $15.87½ for August.

MEATS—Were dull and a shade easier, though not quoted lower. Sales were limited to 50 boxes long clears at 11⅜c; and 140 tcs sweet-pickled hams (17 lbs) at 11c. The market closed at 8¼c for shoulders, cash or seller May; 8⅜c do seller June; 8½c do seller July; long clear, 11¼c cash or seller May; do seller June, 11⅝c; do seller July, 12c; short ribs, 11⅞c, cash or seller May; do seller June, 12c; do seller July, 12⅛c; short clears, cash or seller May, 12⅛c; do seller June, 12⅜c; do seller July, 12⅝c. Boxed meats ¼c higher than loose. Summer-cured English meats, 11¾@12c boxed; sweet-pickled hams, 15 lbs average, at 11½@11¾c. Bacon meats quoted at 13¼@14½c for hams, 9½c for shoulders, 13c for short ribs, and 13½c for short clears,—all packed.

GREASE—Was quiet at 8@11c.

BEEF PRODUCTS—Were quiet and nominally unchanged, at $8.50 for mess, $9.50 for extra mess, and $20.00@21.00 for hams.

TALLOW—Quoted at 8¼@8½c.

BREADSTUFFS.

FLOUR—Was moderately active, being in fair demand, chiefly on Southern account. The receipts are slightly on the increase, but stocks were still so limited as to enable holders to be firm, nothwithstanding the weakness in wheat. Sales were reported of 100 brls winters at $7.00; 2,050 brls spring extras, partly at $5.50@6.00; 100 brls spring superfines, and 300 brls rye flour, both on private terms. Total, 2,550 brls. The market closed as follows: Choice winter extras $6.50@7.50; common to good do, $6.00@6.50; choice spring extras, $5.12½@5.50; fair do, shipping grades, $4.75@5.00; Minnesotas, $5.25@6.00; patent spring, $6.00@8.50; spring superfines, $3.50@4.25; rye flour, $5.35@5.50.

BRAN—Was in moderate request and a shade easier. Sales were 40 tons, at $17.50 on track, and $18.00 free on board cars.

CORN-MEAL—We quote at $3.75@3.87½ per brl for good, and $27.50@28.00 for coarse. Sales were 10 tons at $27.50 on track.

MIDDLINGS—Sales were 10 tons at $21.50 free on board.

WHEAT—Was less active and generally unsettled, at a further decline of about 1c per bu. There was no particular change in the early advices from New York and Liverpool, and our receipts were not excessive, but the weather was so warm as to take the stiffening out of the market and place its control in the hands of the bear element. The advices from the country were more encouraging to those who hope for good crops, and even from California came the news of more rain, and better prospects for a fair yield. This also tended to repress speculative buying orders, and there was no perceptible inquiry for shipment. The cargo operators "did not take a pound," and even the inquiry for car-lots to supply interior millers, which had been active for several days, dwindled down to zero. Hence cash wheat was relatively heavy, and dragged down the price for future deliveries, after which leading operators entered the market, and offered large lots in quick succession. Most of the offerings were taken, however, the short interest filling in rather freely. Several of those who sold at higher prices two or three days previously took hold every time the market went below $1.04, and this caused several little reactions above that figure. Seller June opened at $1.04, receded to $1.03⅜, sold up to $1.04⅛, fell off to $1.03⅛, reacted to $1.04⅛, declined to $1.04, and closed at $1.04⅛. Seller July sold at $1.06@1.07, closing at $1.06⅜. Seller the month, or regular No. 2 spring, sold at $1.01½@1.02, closing at $1.01⅝; and receipts dated on the 7th or 8th closed at $1.02⅛. Cash sales were reported of 2,800 bu No. 1 spring at $1.05@1.05⅛; 322,000 bu No. 2 do at $1.01½@1.02⅛; 3,000 bu No. 3 do at 90@92½c; 800 bu rejected do at 90c; and 1,000 bu white Hamburg at $1.11@1.13⅛, all free on board. Total, 329,600 bu.

MINNESOTA WHEAT—Was active and easier under more liberal offerings, with only a light demand. Sales were 28,600 bu at $1.07@1.07⅛ for No. 1 and $1.03⅛ for No. 2.

CORN—Was active and a shade lower, but steadier, as the recent severe decline brought out a good many orders to buy, chiefly to fill shorts. Liverpool was dull, and New York easier, while our receipts showed an increase, making the cash offerings larger. But the bulletin-board showed that the shipments of the past week were rather free, and this gave a little more confidence, which would probably have developed real strength but for sympathy with the downward turn in wheat. There were no buyers for canal corn, and May deliveries from store were relatively weak. Seller June opened at 74⅜c, receded to 74⅛c, advanced to 75c, at closed at 74⅜c. Seller July sold at 77@77⅛c, and seller the month at 72⅞@73c, the latter closing at 72⅞c. Gilt-edged receipts of No. 2 closed at 73⅛c. Cash sales were reported of 258,400 bu No. 2 at 72⅞@73⅛c; 4,800 bu high mixed at 73@73⅛c; 15,200 bu rejected at 69⅛@69⅜c; 5,600 bu by sample at 71@73⅛c; and 400 bu ears at 75c. Total, 284,400 bu.

OATS—The market was rather quiet, owing to light offerings. There was a good demand, which, with light receipts and reports of increased strength in New York, caused an advance of ⅛c from the closing prices Friday afternoon, which, however, calling out many sellers. Seller June opened at 62⅜c, advanced to 63⅛c, and closed at 63⅛c. Cash or seller the month was in light request at 61⅛@62c, closing at the outside. Fresh receipts sold at 62@62⅛c. Seller June was quoted at 63⅛@64c. Rejected sold at 59@59⅛c, and in a special house at 59⅜c. Sales: 62,800 bu at 61⅛@62⅛c; 1,800 bu rejected at 59@59⅛c; 3,600 bu by sample at 63⅛@66c. Total, 68,200 bu.

RYE—Was dull and easy at $1.07 for No. 2, the offerings being a little larger than hitherto. Sales were limited to 400 bu No. 2 at $1.07, and 100 bu by samplo at $1.05.

BARLEY—The market was quiet and a shade firmer. The offerings continue very small, but there is no demand except now and then for car-lots to fill orders, and occasionally a May option comes up for settlement. There is nothing to induce speculation, and the warm weather will soon cut off the demand from maltsters. No. 2 sold at $1.32@134, and No. 3 at $1.15 in N. S. Seller May was quoted at $1.30 bid and $1.32 asked. Sales were reported of 1,200 bu No. 2 at $1.32@1.34; 400 bu No. 3 (N. S.) at $1.15; 800 bu by sample at $1.15@1.25. Total, 2,400 bu.

LATEST.

In the afternoon the trading was cut short at half-past 3 o'clock by the sudden death of Col. Harrison, reported in another column.

Wheat was quiet and easier. Seller June sold at $1.03⅞@1.04⅛, and closed at $1.03⅞. Seller July closed at $1.06⅛. Common was quiet and steady at 72⅞c for May, 74⅛c for June, and 77⅛c for July. Other grain was quiet. A vessel was reported taken for 20,000 bu corn to Ogdensburg.

THE CUSTOM-HOUSE.

General Quiet Around the Institution Yesterday.

Suggestions of a Correspondent About Those Three Houses.

Nature of the Soil on Which the Custom-House Stands.

An Architect's Opinion of the Foundations.

AN UNEVENTFUL DAY.

NEWS AROUND THE CUSTOM-HOUSE.

The fraction of a Custom-House which Chicago possesses was utterly quiet yesterday as regards the transaction of any business, and the officials present used their time in harmless pursuits which did not advance or retard the building's prospects.

Yesterday, Mr. M. L. Holman, who has been acting as Master-Mechanic under Gen. Holman, received a formal order from the Secretary of the Treasury appointing him Assistant Superintendent, with an increased salary, the promotion to date from May 1. By the terms of the order, the new officer is directed to be under the direct charge of the Supervising Architect.

The suggestion made yesterday, that to investigate the charges of bad management which are rife, meets with great favor on all hands, and a movement for an inquiry will be made. It is doubted where the authority to appoint this committee lies, and it may be necessary to wait until the re-assembling of Congress before any thing can be done, but the end will certainly come; and, since the fault seems to lie between Mullett and Rankin, that one of them who demands the investigation will stand best in the eyes of the public until some authoritative report is made.

A COMMITTEE BE APPOINTED

The recent revival of interest in the Custom-House has dragged up the matter of built by Messrs. Muller, Rankin and Warner, and in which Buena Vista sandstone has a part. The theory formerly advanced by a morning paper here, that the government had paid for the stone, has been fully exploded by an investigation into the manner of keeping books and paying which prevails in the government offices. An ingenious correspondent has, however, fished out a plan by which the government might have been defrauded and the materials for the houses obtained without cost to the proprietors of the edifices. There are, however, so many "ifs" and "provided's" in the plan that it is not at all probable that it could have been carried out—still it is entirely possible.

The correspondent suggests that it was for Mueller's interest to use as many patched stone as possible in the quantity cut for government, and that if he could get a large number passed (as he certainly has), his profit would be so large that he could afford to furnish a considerable quantity of raw stone to any man who could get the defective ones inspected and accepted. The man who had the power to accept stone was Rankin, and, if he had colluded with Mueller, that would explain how the defective stones came to be accepted. Supposing, for the carrying out of the argument, that this collusion had actually taken place, and Rankin's treachery been rewarded with the gift of uncut stone for a house, it would not be difficult to have these stone cut at the government expense. For instance, a journeyman stone-cutter spends thirty days cutting a certain capital, and his less expert neighbor spends sixty days. What would be easier than to charge the government sixty days for each capital, and use the skillful workman for thirty days on private work at government expense? This would require the collusion of the head stone-cutter, but perhaps that might not have been so difficult to obtain.

This, then, is the theory of how it might have been done, and it is certainly an ingenious one, but seems hardly practicable. It requires too many men to be "in it."

THE FOUNDATIONS.

MR. ARCHITECT WIGHT'S VIEWS.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

CHICAGO, May 8.—The position which affairs at the new Government Building have assumed is now one of great interest, not only to the general public,—the tax-payers of Chicago, who have lived for three years in the hope that some share of what they contribute to the National tax-gatherers would here take a substantial form,—but to the architectural profession especially. Your comments on the recent "investigation" have attracted widespread attention, and have evidently been made with a view to ferret out the truth in this architectural puzzle. If your reports have drawn erroneous conclusions, they are pardonable, and are only the results of a want of full information, which has been sparingly given by Government officials. You will therefore, perhaps, allow me to offer some further information bearing on the subject, which has come to me in the course of my professional experience in this city during the past three years, and to volunteer some suggestions for what they may be worth.

I desire to say at the commencement that it is far from my purpose either to defend or accuse any one connected with the building, and though personally acquainted with the late Supervising Architect and the present one, as well as the late Superintendent and other officials connected with the building, I have not conversed with either of them for many months.

WHEN THE BUILDING WAS ORIGINALLY DESIGNED, under Mullett's direction at Washington, the drawings were made for very massive foundations under all the walls and piers, which were proportioned to the weights to be carried. The bottom course was to have been of concrete, I believe 3 feet in thickness, on which were to have been footing-stones, gradually diminishing in dimension until the thickness of walls was reached. These foundations were the same as are usually employed under heavy buildings in this city, built upon the clay plateau which underlies the greater part of this city at a depth of about 13 feet below the established grade of curbstones in the down-town streets, and which is also found on the site of the Government building. The only difference is that concrete is not extensively used here, though it has been, with the best results, under a few buildings, where the footings are required to be so wide as to make it difficult to handle large stones.

Before these foundations were decided upon, Mr. Rankin had caused extensive borings to be made in at least twelve places on the site, with a view to determining the nature of the substrata for a great distance below the surface. When consulting with Mr. H. H. Richardson, of New York, in relation to the reconstruction of some of the foundations under the American Express Building, which is located only one square distant from the Government building, Mr. Rankin kindly furnished us a copy of this survey, and it was thus that I became intimately acquainted with the facts in relation to these foundations.

THE SURVEY SHOWED that there were three strata of clay on the site, the first commencing about 13 feet deep, as I have mentioned, and which is generally taken as the starting point for foundations in the lower part of the city. It is harder on the top surface than at a lower depth, and is strewn with a pavement of bowlders, pebbles, and shells. As I speak only from recollection, I will say that this stratum of clay, generally called blue clay by our builders and architects, but named "Crawfish" clay by Mr. Rankin, has an average thickness of 12 or 15 feet. Below this is a soft and muddy clay to a depth of 40 to 50 feet below grade, and perhaps 20 feet thick, though not level on the top like the Crawfish clay. Below this is the third stratum of clay, the genuine "blue" clay through which our great tunnels are cut. This last is very dry and hard, as any one can judge who has seen the earth taken from any of the tunnel shafts. Without this valuable deposit, our whole water-system would have been impossible. This blue clay extends down to the limestone rock, which has been ascertained through the borings for artesian wells to underlie the city along the lake shore at a depth of 90 feet, gradually rising toward the west until it is very near the surface of the ground at a distance of 4 miles from the lake. These clay strata are the successive beds of Lake Michigan at different periods, and all have an inclination toward the lake. There is a deposit upon the highest stratum of clay, which is generally removed for the purpose of building, but east of State street the clay shelves off so rapidly that it cannot be reached unless at very great expense, and far below the water-level. Consequently, most of the buildings on Wabash avenue have been built on this material. It is though more resembling the former, but a mixture of very fine sand with clay which has been deposited from water. In reality it is the soft muddy deposit of the bottom of the lake. Immediately along the shore this is overlaid by a deposit of dry beach sand which formed the original plateau of Wabash and Michigan avenues. The foundations of most of the dwellings on those streets were built on this, and notably the original Second Presbyterian Church. This surface beach sand has always proved to be a reliable bed for foundations. But we have nothing to do with the two last-mentioned strata in this discussion.

NEITHER CLAY NOR SAND,

To return then,

THE UPPER STRATUM

of clay was determined to be sufficient for the foundations of the new building in accordance with the best experience of Chicago architects, notwithstanding the fact of the underlying stratum of soft wet clay filled with vegetable matter which intervened between this and the blue or "tunnel" clay. When the plans were made for the foundations in the manner that I have mentioned above, they were on such an extensive scale, so broad and massive, that the square interstices thus left were so small compared with the whole surface as to be comparatively insignificant. It was estimated that it would be no more expensive to run the concrete over the whole site. The natural wetness of the site was another strong argument in favor of this course, as by covering the whole ground a great trouble would be avoided, and it would be necessary to pump out the rain-water during the progress of the building. It was accordingly concluded to run the concrete 3 feet in thickness over the whole lot. This has been done, and on this plateau the building now stands.

But the moment this plan was carried out properly speaking. It became an artificial plateau by itself, and the foundation proper commenced on top of it. And it is just so much better than what was there before in proportion as it is so much harder. On this the scientific constructor would commence his building just as he would on hard clay or sand bottom. Whether such is the case or not I am not sufficiently acquainted with the building in detail to say. But it is perfectly clear that a building of great weight can be erected on such a bottom. Even supposing that there is a very soft material 15 or 20 feet below it, provided that the surfaces of the footings in detail are exactly proportioned to the weight they are to carry,—so many tons to the foot everywhere, and exactly the same proportion in all parts. A building thus constructed may go on settling, but it will go altogether. It is a stubborn fact that if the ground is soft, and an unresisting soil cannot be reached by any practicable means, the structure must go down. If the contractor knows his business he must carry out the fundamental principle in building foundations, proportion the weight to the resistance, and he does all that human knowledge can devise, and all that is worth doing under the circumstances.

THE CONCRETE CEASED TO BE A FOUNDATION,

In the present case the borings showed that the site was practically an even one, that is; there are no hard places to complicate the problem. The ground must yield evenly if the weights are equal. This may be possible with the building as designed or it may not. Much depends upon whether or not it is practicable to increase or diminish the weights to suit the present footings. If this cannot be done without changing the design, then the design must be changed. It is possible that porticoes or colonnades which do not carry walls may have to be omitted, or if possible cut loose from the main building. But to do so would be to make a very insignificant change compared with what it is proposed to do.

The "wise men from the East" who were sent here to examine the building drove piles to see what the bottom was! The archives of the office of the Supervising Architect would have shown them that the whole surface had been bored, and would have given them as a result sections of the ground 50 feet deep. Still they drove piles with a 2,000-pound rammer, and because their piles did not reach the blue tunnel clay I suppose they went off with a report "no bottom here." Our City Engineer could have told them that they could drive piles anywhere under our heaviest buildings, which stand firmly and securely, and still could not touch bottom in less than 50 feet.

DID THEY EXAMINE THE CONCRETE?

When it was put down it was subjected to extraordinary tests. I had the privilege of learning the results of all these experiments as to the composition and method of making the cement, and I know of no man more competent for this work than Philo Warner, the late foreman of masons. This experience was valuable to me, and I am indebted to Mr. Rankin's investigations for many valuable suggestions. I would not allude to this except to add by way of illustration that in reconstructing the foundations under the American Express Building I followed the method of making concrete at the Government building, and have put it to the severest practicable test. I will give the statistics of the largest pier of the front wall, by way of illustration. This pier has an average height of 118 feet, and the wall is 2½ feet thick on an average. The weight of the pier, by computation, is 216 tons, and the size of the concrete foundation is 8 by 13 feet, giving a surface of 104 feet, with a weight of very nearly 2 tons per superficial foot. This foundation rests on the same stratum of clay as that of the Government building, and is used for a wall in connection with walls already built. The settlement has not exceeded half an inch. I consider this clay capable to carry 3½ tons to the square foot, with which weight the settlement would be about 1 inch. In an isolated building it is not a difficult matter to provide for a settlement of 1 inch.

You naturally ask, What is to be done when they have torn down the building? And I offer these suggestions with a hope that the facts herein given may throw some of the light of experience upon a solution of the question. I might adduce further and fuller illustration of the nature of our soil, and the methods that have been devised to overcome the difficulties connected with building on it, in which I think I would be sustained by most of our ablest architects in this specialty. Through the courtesy of those heretofore connected with the building, I have had unusual opportunities for watching the progress of the work in its earlier stages, and can testify to its excellence so far as the masons' work is concerned. It looks very much as if the building had been injured by frost, and if this is the case it will be at least a month yet before the facts can be ascertained. It is clear enough without computation to any one who understands the nature of our soil that there has not been weight enough on any of the foundations to seriously affect them as to settlement, and this can easily be demonstrated, if necessary. Still there is every reason that such an important structure should not be allowed to proceed without a thorough investigation by those who are competent to make it, and the question is not so much, "Do the foundations now show weakness?" but "Are they of such a character as to sustain that which it is proposed to place on them?" and if not "What dispositions should be made in the superstruction to make the whole strong, sound, and lasting?"

Respectfully yours, P. B. WIGHT.

A Faithful Attorney.

If to serve a client faithfully by the adoption of every means to advance his cause is a moral obligation, then Attorney Stubbs, of Solano, Cal., has got a credit-mark upon the books of the recording angel. A very bad case of prisoner, a reprobate known as "Little Miller," was convicted of forgery, notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of Stubbs in his behalf, and was brought before the Judge for sentence. When asked if he had anything to say, "Little Miller" did not remain silent. He had a good deal to say and he said it. He wept like a child and spoke as one who had erred in a moment of impulse, for which he was resolved to atone by years of contrition and well-doing; every one in court was affected, and the emotional sensation extended even to the Judge upon the bench. Mr. Stubbs spoke of the physical weakness of his client, and the prospect that his wife would be ruined by a long term of imprisonment. Then the Judge sentenced Miller for only one year. After it was all over, Miller was questioned by a fellow-prisoner as to the cause of his extraordinary grief, and the reply was: "Stubbs told me to cry like a son of a gun, and the Judge would be light on me, and I did." Mr. Stubbs is evidently a great man.

An Intelligent Dog.

A Hartford expressman possesses a remarkably intelligent dog. It is a little "black-and-tan," and it knows about as much as the average jurymen in Beecher cases—after the jury has been in uninterrupted session for a year or two. Mr. Barnard—the owner—will hold up one finger and ask the dog: "How many?" Answer by the dog: "Bow." Then Barnard holds up two, four, or three fingers, as any bystander may request, and the dog, without waiting to be asked, says, if there are two, "Bow wow!" or if there are four, "Bow wow wow wow!" It is evident that, to a certain extent, the dog can count; and he is not to be fooled into giving a wrong answer, whether the number of fingers held up is increased in regular numerical gradation or not: so it is no routine learning on his part, but actual intelligence and comprehension. Ask the dog how many thousand dollars he is worth, and he responds with five barks. He will also tell how many commandments there are; and, when asked how many words there are in the Eighth Commandment, he responds with four bow-wows. No matter how one varies the questions, the answer is always correct.

EARLY—STOREY.

Arguments on the Motion for a New Trial.

Judge McRoberts Suggests that the Plaintiff Accept $15,000.

This Is Agreed to, and the New Trial Refused.

The motion for a new trial in the case of Alice A. Early vs. Wilbur F. Storey, proprietor of the Times, came up before Judge McRoberts yesterday morning. Mr. Goudy, for the defendant, first read the grounds on which he based his motion, which are in brief as follows:

That the Court erred in refusing to admit evidence in behalf of the defendant by declining to admit the letters received by the defendant detailing the facts in the publication complained of, and in refusing to admit the retraction. Also, that the Court erred in refusing to admit evidence tending to show the efforts made by the defendant to ascertain the truth of the facts stated in the publication, or in allowing the defendant to show the course of his business or the custom of newspapers in publication. The Court also erred in giving certain instructions, refusing others, and in subsequently calling the jury in and giving them oral instructions after they had left the box. Lastly, the verdict was excessive in amount. Mr. Goudy then read two affidavits to the effect that the jury had returned into court in the absence of counsel, and received from the Judge oral instructions without the consent of the defendant or his counsel.

then said that there were only two points on which he wished to expatiate; the point as to the exclusion of the letters. If they had been admitted they would have shown mitigating circumstances in that the defendant had been misled by others, and when he discovered the fact he attempted to make amends. In the present case also no evidence had been given of any actual damage having been sustained, and the verdict was, therefore, entirely punitive in its character. The second point was in regard to the amount of the damages, which were excessive. No verdict of that size had hardly ever been given. The counsel then cited several cases of malicious prosecution, which he held were in principle the same, where damages for over $10,000 had been set aside. The criminal punishment for the publication of a libel was a fine of $500 and six month's imprisonment, or either. Mr. Goudy thought the amount of the fine was some indication of the figure at which vindictive damages could be rated.

MR. SMALL

followed on behalf of the plaintiff. He thought the damages were exceptionally high, but that the case was unexceptionably exasperating, and that, under all the circumstances, the verdict was not excessive. The Court had rightly refused to allow the introduction of the letters, because they would tend to throw the responsibility off from Mr. Storey on some irresponsible person. The question of damages was the only serious one. The jury certainly was not led away by prejudice or passion, as the opening address to the jury was one of the worst ever made. He felt justified in saying that, for he was not slandering anybody. The defendant knew of the letters before the article was published, and yet, without more than informing himself of their character, passed them over to a subordinate. Mr. Storey was only too anxious to lay the filth before his readers—filth that, by the testimony of the business manager of the Times, had increased its circulation from 27,000 to 42,000. The defendant had not received the letters from his regular correspondent, but from a stranger, and, though he might easily by telegram have ascertained the truth of the matter, he neglected to do so, but treated the plaintiff as though she were a Fourth avenue cyprian. Mr. Storey was worth $250,000 besides the good will of his paper. He had published the article in all the editions, making a circulation of about 44,500, and the verdict only charged 50 cents for each publication of the libel. Some one had suggested to him that he was influenced by the fact that he and the parties libeled were of different political parties, but that idea never entered the defendant's head, but the publication was through pure devilishness, pure malice, and pure cussedness.

MR. SIDNEY SMITH

followed in one of his characteristic arguments and an unusual amount of sarcasm. He thought no punishment could be too great for such an aggravated assault on character. It was a gross violation of the rights of journalism, and an editor who was guilty of such conduct should be severely dealt with. The letters, instead of being adapted to mitigate damages, would rather tend to increase them, for they were signed by fictitious names, and came from strangers.

Mr. Goudy then anew drew attention to some cases in which the Court had set aside excessive damages.

JUDGE M'ROBERTS

then in a lengthy and rambling decision gave his reasons for granting a new trial. He said he had refused to allow the two letters to be read in evidence because the plaintiff was entitled to all the letters or none. Mr. Storey had failed to produce the other two, or account for their disappearance, and could not therefore avail himself of the two he offered. It was evident that the defendant had been imposed on, but he had not taken sufficient care in first ascertaining the truth of the letters before publishing an abstract of them. The retraction also had been ruled out because made after suit brought, and because it only purported to be a telegram from Rockford and not an editorial with the sanction and name of the editor.

But the verdict was for a very large amount. To be sure, $50,000 would not recompense the plaintiff, nor would any amount of money. He would have been disposed to allow the verdict to stand had it been $15,000, and that amount would have been a sufficient punishment, and accomplished all ends except taking money out of the defendant's pocket. The defendant was disposed to make reparation, and had offered the columns of his paper for that purpose. Besides, the plaintiff was not prosecuting the suit for mercenary purposes. He should, therefore, in view of all the circumstances, ask the plaintiff's counsel to remit $10,000 of the verdict or he would grant a new trial.

Mr. Small remarked that the Supreme Court had intimated that it was not proper to remit in such a case, but on being told that the Supreme Court had refused to reverse a case on that ground he held a private consultation with Mr. Smith and Mr. Early. In a few moments they returned, and Mr. Small said that, after consultation with his associate and the father of the plaintiff, he was of the opinion that the circumstances of the case were of such a flagrant character as to justify a verdict for $25,000. At the same time, he was desirous to avoid protracted litigation, or the imputation of being actuated by mercenary motives, and therefore he was disposed to assent to the suggestions of the Court, that judgement should be entered for $15,000. This was immediately done.

Mr. Goudy then took an exception and an appeal, and the appeal bond was fixed at $15,500, the amount of the judgement, and sufficient to cover the costs.

An Iphigenian Grisette.

Paris Correspondence St Louis Globe.

An American artist—he has lived here for seven or eight years-like most artists, had a mistress, of whom he was very fond, and who was very fond of him. She was a pretty grisette, well educated, graceful, and possessed of fine taste in literature music, and art. She was so conspicuously attractive that many efforts were made to alienate her from her allegiance, but without success. Last September, the artist met one of his country-women, a young lady from Boston, traveling on the Continent with her father, and fell in love with her. She reciprocated his passion, and they became engaged. He frankly told the grisette of this, and she accepted his surrender of her, not without sorrow and tears, for she was a woman, but without protest or murmur. Mistresses here expect to be givenup when their lovers are on the eve of matrimony, though it is said they are often taken back ere the first year has passed. Minnie and her friend had a sad and tender parting; but they parted about the middle of November, never, never, to meet again. The wedding was to take place on Christmas Day. Three weeks before that date the affianced husband sought out Minnie, and told her he had deceived himself; that he could not and would not abandon her; that he loved her ten times more then he ever could love the other woman. Minnie was happy, and yet she was wretched. She declared she ought not to keep him; that she must not keep him. Finally he told her that he did not believe his betrothed really loved him. This shook her resolution; she said no more. She determined, however, to see and judge for herself. She had learned where the fair Bostonian was residing, and, making some ingenious pretense, gained an interview, without revealing her true character. She found the American lovely; that she was well-nigh heart broken at the neglect of her lover; that she knew he had had a mistress; that she suspected he was still bound by his old attachment; that that was the barrier between her and happiness. The grisette went away. She saw the artist no more; but she wrote him a long letter, telling him how much he had wronged the beautiful girl he was engaged to; that she worshiped him and would make him happy. The next day Minnie was dead in her lodgings, asphyxiated by charcoal. She had deliberately destroyed herself to insure the happiness of another woman, and that woman her rival.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

Record of the Year's Work--Appeal to the County Board.

Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Illinois Humane Society was held yesterday afternoon at Room No. 14 Central Union Block, the headquarters of the Society. The chair was taken by J. C. Dore, President, about a dozen other members being present.

FINANCIAL.

The annual report of the Finance Committee, which was submitted to the meeting, showed that the receipts of the Society during the past year had been $2,783.90, and the expenditures $2,723.16, leaving a balance of cash on hand of $60.74. The liabilities, on May 1 were $796.93.

The report was adopted.

The President read the following

REPORT OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, which was adopted:

Number of cases of cruelty reported, 564; arrests made, 47; fines, 32; amount of fines, $387; number of abandoned horses killed, 62; number of disabled cattle killed, 93; crippled sheep killed, 166; disabled calves killed, 54; disabled horses ordered off the street, 150; horses condemned by agents of the Society and killed by the owners, 89; number of persons admonished for apparent unnecessary cruelty, 2,193.

It will be observed by the foregoing statement that the Society has been no less active in its exertions to prevent acts of cruelty during the last year than during the previous years of its existence. The number of cases of cruelty reported and the number of animals crippled and disabled reported and killed by the agents of the Society for the purpose of ending their misery, must not be understood as indicative of the amount of cruelty inflicted upon animals in the city and at the Union Stock-Yards. They simply indicate the amount of cruelty which has come under the observation of the two agents of the Society during the last year. One of these agents is stationed at the Stock-Yards, the other perambulates the city, visiting slaughterhouses, brickyards, stoneyards, stables, and streets most frequented by teams. He also attends to cases of cruelty reported to the Society by private persons, and to prosecutions. It is true these agents pass most of their time in places where willful and thoughtless cruelty is most practiced, but when the extent of the stockyards is considered and the number of slaughterhouses and brickyards, as well as the numerous streets in the great and busy city where teaming is mostly done, it will readily be seen that the number of cases of cruelty here reported as observed by two men only, neither of whom can be in more than one place at the same time, is in no sense a measure of the amount of cruelty practiced, even in those places most frequented by them.

But the influence of the daily journals of the city, which, without exception, have been strongly in favor of enforcing the humane laws of the State, and which, it is just to say, have rendered the Society great service by publishing, without charge, everything pertaining to cruelty which they have observed or to which their attention has been called, together with the influence of the members of the Society, already somewhat numerous, and we may add the influence of the thinking men and women of the city whose attention has been called to the subject by the press and the efforts of the Society, and, what is more important still, a general knowledge of the fact that the County Board has regularly for the last three years made an annual appropriation for the enforcement of the humane laws of the State, have contributed greatly to suppress acts of cruelty in all parts of the city, and to make those who are inclined to practice cruelty respect those who endeavor to prevent it.

Four years ago the impression prevailed among many who are accustomed to maltreat animals in every conceivable manner that ownership carried with it the right to lash and club them at will in the vain endeavor to compel them to perform impossibilities, without violation of law or restraint of any kind, and any personal interference by way of moral suasion or otherwise was sure to be met by vituperation and threats of personal injury. To-day the conviction that public sentiment is strongly opposed to cruelty, and that the County Board and Humane Society are determined to enforce the law against it, have so far corrected this impression that no man or woman now need fear personal assault or vituperation for admonition against cruelty, or for arrest and prosecution. It is a hopeful indication that persons prosecuted and fined for cruelty not unfrequently acknowledge their wrong-doing, and commend the agents of the Society for enforcing the law. There is reason to hope from the interest taken in all parts of the country and by the Congress of the United States during the last four years to prevent cruelty to animals that the time will come when humane instruction will form an important part of public education.

The total expenditure of the Society per annum, including the salaries of two agents before mentioned and a lady who remains in the office of the Society to receive complaints, give information, answer correspondents and keep the books, together with office rent, fuel, and stationery, amounts to about $3,100, a sum that would be refused by many first-class clerks for a yearly salary.

Of all the Humane Societies of which we have any knowledge, and there are over fifty in the United States, we know of no one that can show half the amount of beneficial results which the Illinois Humane Society can show, by an expenditure of twice the amount of money. The reason for this may be the fact that more animals are handled, more slaughtering is done, and more cruelty is inflicted in Cook County than anywhere else.

This Society has each year for the last two years requested your honorable body to appropriate $3,000 for the enforcement of the humane laws of the State in Cook County, assuring your honorable body [the County Commissioners] that a less appropriation would involve the necessity of discharging one of the two agents now employed, or of making up the deficiency by begging. Notwithstanding this appeal, but $2,000 per annum have been appropriated for the past two years. Between $700 and $800 have already been begged, and over $500 are now required to pay arrearages for salaries and rent during the past year, which will also have to be begged. The members of the Society again respectfully request your honorable body to appropriate $3,000 for the purpose of enforcing the humane laws of the State in Cook County during the ensuing year, to be expended as heretofore by the payment of such bills as shall meet the approval of the Committee of your honorable body having the expenditure in charge.

Trusting that the zeal manifested by the Society in enforcing the law, and the economy it has practiced in the expenditure of money, will re commend the above request to your kind consideration as to induce your honorable body to cheerfully grant it, this report is most respectfully committed.

COMMITTEES.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Sharp, Culver, and Derickson, were appointed to revise the constitution.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Pickard, Landon, and Sharp, were appointed to communicate with various cities in the Northwest for the purpose of inducing them to favor kindred associations in their midst.

MR. GRAVES

reported that he had ordered twenty horses off the street, had admonished 128 persons for cruelty, and four of the horses had been sent to the pound. Four persons had been spoken to for not feeding their animals, ten horses had been killed on account of their legs being broken, and a number of persons had been admonished for using the check-rein.

The report of Mr. Graves was adopted.

Mr. Brown recommended the placing an officer at the wholesale meat-market on Jackson street, where fearful cruelty was perpetrated to horses.

On motion, Mr. J. L. Corden was elected an honorary member of the Society.

THE ELECTION OF DIRECTORS for the ensuing year was proceeded with, and resulted as follows: Charles Mason, E. L. Brown, B. F. Culver, Mark Sheridan, J. C. Dore, Peter Schuttler, John Jones, Perkins Bass, H. C. Goodrich, Samuel Stone, S. T. Atwater, B. W. Raymond, S. B. Howes, John G. Shortall, W. B. Truax, M. M. Graves, R. P. Derickson, J. L. Pickard, William H. Sharp, John B. Sherman, Prof. C. G. Wheeler, A. W. Landon, C. W. Ross, Mrs. Condon.

The officers-elect then chose R. P. Derickson President, E. L. Brown Treasurer, and A. W. Landon Secretary, and Messrs. Dore, Derickson, and Richard were appointed the Executive Committee.

The meeting then adjourned.

Unconverted Theologians.

New York Sun.

Revival meetings are held nightly in the Church of the Holy Trinity, the pastor, the Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, Jr., being aided by the Rev. J. W. Bonham, an Episcopal evangelist from England. The attendance is large, and the religious excitement in the congregation intense. In one of those meetings a few nights ago Mr. Bonham preached an uncommonly vigorous sermon, and then Mr. Tyng added an impassioned exhortation, appealing to his unconverted hearers to embrace Christianity without delay.

"Let all rise who are willing to dedicate themselves to God now and forever," he said.

Nearly the whole congregation rose, the exceptions being a party of young men who sat in a rear pew. Mr. Tyng appealed to them explicitly as he walked up and down the aisle, using such arguments as would be most likely to affect young sinners, but they were repellant.

"We will pray for these young men," he said, after finding that a personal appeal did not move them.

The congregation knelt while he prayed fervently. Still the young men sat without showing any indications of penitence, and would not rise at the final appeal.

This party of young men were students in the General Episcopal Theological Seminary.

THE DISASTER.

THE NEWS IN NEW YORK.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, May 8.—A cable dispatch from London announces the destruction of the steamship Schiller, of the Eagle Line, Capt. John G. Thomas, which sailed from New York April 28, and the loss of at least 200 persons. The Schiller was bound for Hamburg via Plymouth and Cherbourg, and at 10 o'clock last night, in a heavy fog, struck upon one of the dangerous Retorriere ledges off the Scilly Islands, 30 miles west southwest of Land's End, Cornwall. A heavy sea was raging at the time, and the vessel filled and went down before the boats could be lowered. According to the story of some of the survivors, many perished before they could reach the rocks; others were washed off and drowned. The Scilly life-boat, and a boat from St. Agnes, southwest of the group, were dispatched to the spot, but the sea was running so high that they were of little assistance. A few of the survivors were rescued from the water and picked up with difficulty, after floating with the tide for a long distance. The Schiller was found lying broadside on the rocks and a hopeless wreck. The excitement in London on learning the news was intense, and all the papers published extras giving meagre accounts of the disaster. The offices of the Company were besieged by an eager crowd anxious to learn the fate of their relatives and friends, but the news which arrived was of so slender a description that but little could be told them. The names of those saved were telegraphed, but not with sufficient accuracy to allay any of the apprehension felt by relatives and friends. Later in the day news was received from Penzance that twenty-six more had been saved.

THE SCILLY ISLANDS

have caused more than one disastrous shipwreck. In 1707 Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovel lost three line-of-battle-ships at the same place. They are a group of rocks and islets, situated about 30 miles from the extreme southwest of England, in number 140 or thereabouts. They rise for the most part precipitously from the sea, are composed of granite and surrounded by submarine reefs of the most dangerous character. The largest islands in the group are St. Agnes, St. Mary's, Trescan, St. Martin's, Bryor, and Sampson. But few of them are habitable, and the inhabitants subsist principally on fish. There is a light-house on St. Agnes, and another on one of the further islands; but, in the fog which prevailed at the time, the lights were probably invisible. A fog signal is also reported to be in use, but either this was not audible in the gale or was not in use at the time. After striking, guns were fired from the Schiller, but not in time to be of any material service.

The Schiller and her sister ship, the Lessing, were built on the Clyde by Robert Napier & Sons. The former was one of the newest and best boats on the Atlantic, and was constructed on the most approved principles.

HER DIMENSIONS

were: Length, 375 feet; beam, 40 feet; depth of hold, 32 feet; 3,600 tons burden, and 3,000 indicated horse-power, and was classed at Lloyd's, 100 A 1. She was full-brig rigged, had eight large life-boats, and three iron decks. Her engine could run the vessel from 14 to 15 miles an hour. She is said to have been built according to the requirements of Lloyd's marine insurance regulations, and to have possessed every known appliance for safety. She was valued at $700,000, and was insured for her full value.

CARGO.

Besides a cargo of general merchandise, valued at about $150,000, which was insured.

SPECIE.

She carried six kegs containing $300,000 in gold, shipped by E. S. Ballin & Co., bankers, of No. 24 Exchange place, in this city, to F. S. Ballin & Co., Paris, and 250 mail-bags, containing the entire continental mail, together with a large Australian mail.

OFFICERS AND CREW.

The officers of the Schiller were:
Commander—John G. Thomas.
Chief Officer—H. Hillers.
Second Officer—E. Polemann.
Third Officer—G. Freeze.
Fourth Officer—R. Heintze.
Chief Engineer—L. Fahrig.

Capt. Thomas was the oldest commander of the line. He was for many years in the service of the Peninsular & Oriental Steamship Company, and was rated high among British sailors. It was with difficulty that he was persuaded to leave that service and enter that of the Eagle line.

The crew consisted of about 120 men.

Ziegler, Miss Dora.

The passengers were nearly all Germans, and had taken their passage to the old country, being among the first to venture. Carl Schurz missed going by the Schiller one day. He sailed in the Pomerania April 29, and must have met with the same gale.

So far as the number of passengers saved is concerned, the list is not large. The gale was still too severe to permit small craft to venture out, but a steamer went to the spot where the unfortunate vessel was lying, and rescued some thirty, all told, though the list, it is hoped, will be extended as soon as news can be brought from other islands, where some of the passengers, it is hoped, will be found, in addition to those already reported. Two corpses were washed ashore this morning, but have not been identified. The Captain is undoubtedly drowned. Early this afternoon it was reported that ten survivors had been rescued. Later advices state that twenty-six additional passengers and officers are saved.

The excitement in this city is intense. A large number of the steerage passengers and not a few of the cabin passengers are connected in this city. The arrival of the distressing intelligence brought hundreds to the offices of the Eagle Company, intensely anxious about the safety of their relatives and friends. Some of the scenes were of the most distressing character. One man, on hearing that his wife and two children were not among those reported saved, was seized with an apoplectic fit. Others seemed crazed by their apprehensions, and wildly inquired for the missing. The newspaper offices are beset by eager crowds.

THE VICE-PRESIDENT.

His Reception in Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 8.—Vice-President Wilson arrived at 3 o'clock on the Memphis & Louisville train. He was met at the National Cemetary by Committees from the General Council and the Chamber of Commerce, and, on arriving at the depot in the city, was met by Mayor League and the remainder of the city officials. The Mayor received him with a brief address, tendering the hospitalities of the city, to which Vice-President Wilson responded in an appropriate manner, taking occasion to say that he was traveling simply as a private citizen to see the country, and, after referring to his anti-slavery record and the late War, which he thought could not have been averted by any power of man, hoped that peace and good feeling would succeed its bitterness, and our country would prosper and become the greatest nation upon earth. After an air from the band in attendance, the party took carriages for the Peabody Hotel, where an immense crowd had assembled, and in response to a loud call the Vice-President appeared upon the verandah and made a short address. During the afternoon a large number of prominent citizens, including Col. Casey Young, member of Congress, Ex-Gov. Harris, Gen. Patterson, Collector of Internal Revenue, and others, called upon Mr. Wilson. He remains here until Monday evening, when he leaves for Little Rock. The state of his health and the weather will determine whether he will go thence to Texas or St. Louis, and if to the latter he will extend his trip to Denver, but it is his intention to reach home early in June.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS.

Educational and Missionary Work.

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 8.—The Southern Baptist Convention accomplished to-day a large amount of business. Action was taken heartily co-operating with the Northern Baptists in the literary and theological education of the colored people. The Northern Baptists have schools at Richmond, Raleigh, Columbia, Augusta, Nashville, and New Orleans. The Southern Baptists co-operate with these individually and through their Home Mission Board.

Reports were adopted also full of cheer as to Southern mission work in China and Italy. The African missions will be discussed on Monday.

It was decided to continue the publication of Kind Words, their Southern Sunday-school paper.

Resolutions also passed recommending the patronage of the Southern Baptist Review, provided it can be successfully accomplished. This is proposed to be done by the Southern Baptist Publication Society of Memphis.

The next convention will meet at Richmond, Va., May 8, 1876.

A report declaring fraternal affection and bidding God-speed to the American Baptist Home Mission and other Baptist societies North, was adopted. Ten delegates were appointed to the Northern meeting, assembling May 25, at Philadelphia.

THE BLACK HILLS.

Miners Gobbled Up.

OMAHA, Neb., May 8.—Gov. John M. Thayer, of Wyoming, left here for Washington, D. C., to assist in dealing with the deputation of Sioux Indians who are now en route, looking to the ceding of the Black Hills country. About April 25, a party of men at the Red Cloud Agency suddenly disappeared in the direction of the Hills. Lieut. Rogers, heading a scouting party, was sent after them, and on May 2 returned with five of the party. The rest returned the next day. The military think there are no whites in the Hills now, and that it is impossible for mining parties to pass the cordon of scouts and military.

CINCINNATI PACKING STATISTICS.

CINCINNATI, May 8.—The report of the stock of hog product in this city May 1, 1875, and for the corresponding period last year, was to-day noon submitted to the Pork Packers' Association by the Secretary, Sidney D. Maxwell. In preparing this report the business of 140 firms has been consulted. It is more comprehensive than any preceding report, in that it furnishes as complete details of the summer as of the winter product. The winter packing, from Nov. 1 to May 1, is as follows: Barreled meats—total number barrels of pork in 1875, 26,724; 1874, 10,075; total number pounds of bulk meats in 1875, 27,108,017; in 1874, 33,522,965; total pounds bacon in 1874, 3,296,985; total pounds hams, not including bulk, in 1875, 11,787,738; in 1874, 8,645,985. Lard for 1875—Total number of tierces, 22,294; barrels, 198; kegs, 3,206. In 1874—Tierces, 6,607; barrels, 95; kegs, 2,947. Summer-cured meats from March 1 to Nov. 1 in 1874—Total number barrels pork, 707; total pounds bulk meats, 441,000; total pounds bacon, 52,900; total pounds hams other than bulk, or sugar, or pickled, 65,180. Total number tierces lard, 22,000.

A VETO.

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—Gov. Kellogg to-day filed with the Secretary of State a veto of a bill passed during the extra session of the Legislature making all State scrip, of whatever character, receivable for back taxes. He says: "Of the outstanding obligations of the State, $5,219,912, chiefly ante-bellum bonds, have been funded up to date, and we have now in the Treasury $470,527 to the credit of the interest upon the new consolidated bonds. This is an encouraging exhibit for our creditors, provided we keep perfect faith with them. It is impossible, however, for the State to maintain its credit and meet its obligations at maturity except by requiring its revenues to be paid in currency."

The Unondago Dock Company, of Chicago, capital stock $20,000, filed a certificate of organization in the office of the Secretary of State, at Springfield, yesterday.

THE GREAT SCANDAL.

A Quotation from the Woodstock Letter Ruled Out by Judge Neilson.

A Juror Complains that He Has Been Approached Improperly.

Another Brief Talk with the Notorious Woodhull.

RULED OUT.

New York Sun's report of Thursday's proceedings.

Mr. Fullerton read from Mr. Beecher's testimony his denial that he had ever confessed to Mr. Bowen the commission of any adulteries, and put the question to Mr. Bowen: "Did you at any time state to Mr. Beecher any charges which implicated his moral character?"

Mr. Evarts argued against the admissibility of an answer, and Judge Neilson ruled in his favor, saying: "It is immaterial what a conversation may have been between Mr. Beecher and Mr. Bowen. I don't think we can take it."

Mr. Fullerton next offered the "Woodstock letter," written by Mr. Bowen to Mr. Tilton in 1863, of which only the following paragraph has ever been published:

I sometimes feel that I must break silence, that I must no longer suffer as a dumb man, and be made to bear a load of grief most unjustly. One word from me would make a revolution throughout Christendom, I had almost said—and you know it. You have just a little of the evidence from the great volume in my possession. I am not pursuing a phantom, but solemnly boding over an awful reality.

Mr. Evarts contested the admission of the letter, and Judge Neilson ruled it out.

A PROMISED "STARTLING REVELATION."

Dispatch to the St. Louis Globe.

NEW YORK, May 7.—The following will be published in the Sun to-morrow: "After the close of the Beecher trial there will be a startling revelation of the experience of the jurors. One of them has complained to Judge Neilson that he has been approached improperly and it is now regarded as certain that there can be no verdict. At the commencement of the trial Judge Neilson favored the isolation of the jury, but the lawyers on both sides, foreseeing the hardship of such a course, opposed it, and had their way. Jurors, consequently, have been accessible. The result has been closely watched by detectives on both sides. Soon after the trial began, John F. Bingham, who used to be in the employ of the Erie Railway under Fisk's management, and since then has had some connection with Shearman's office, went to Middletown, N. Y., on an errand from the defense. There he saw a Mr. Tuttle, who has been a detective for the Erie Company. Bingham said to him, in substance: 'We want to employ you to look after the jury in the Beecher case.' Tuttle declined the job, whereupon Bingham said: 'Well, the work is going to be done any way, if I have to look after it myself.' Bingham soon made his appearance in Brooklyn, and has spent most of his time there ever since, but has not been in the court-room. His movements have been closely watched by detectives in the employ of Tilton's side; and we dare say the secret history of the scandal would be as interesting as that which has been reported in the newspapers."

IN GOOD SPIRITS.

New York Herald, May 7.

Perhaps it is to be an era of good feeling before the trial ends. When Bowen descended from the witness stand at recess, Beecher shook hands with him. In the Plymouth Church circles the fraternization of the brethren was unusually cordial. Tilton was in uncommonly good humor at the end of the day's proceedings. He was ready to laugh and joke with anybody. His lawyers were jubilant, and the defendant's lawyers were not behind them in manifestations of joy at the great success of their side. And all the delight was so unaffected.

MRS. WOODHULL.

Mrs. Burnham's letter to St. Louis Republican.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Less than two months ago, Victoria Woodhull, wearied in body and worn in mind, straightened in circumstances, altogether under a cloud, occupied a very modest suite of apartments in a "flat" house on Eleventh street. Last night I found her occupying a stunning brown-stone on Fiftieth street, sitting in a saloon 30 by 75 feet large (the room, not Victoria) surrounded by carved walnut pieces of furniture of the most magnificent description, mirrors of fabulous size, gorgeous carpets, bronze figures the size of life, carved walnut doors, big enough for church purposes, robed in black velvet, sitting in state, refusing Sam Morris' earnest entreaties to take the stand as a witness in this Beecher business. "Why," said the astonished woman, "did Moulton and Tilton actually advise you to take this step?" And when Mr. Morris said they did, she exclaimed that the trial had unsettled their minds, "for," continued Victoria, "proving them false in their statements concerning me would throw out their evidence in all respects. And though Theodore's cause is just, and the statements of Tilton, Moulton, and wife, true in the main, they would be crushed by the foolish prevarication made about me, which I should explode the instant I went on the witness-stand." So Mr. Morris, evidently a rapid convert to the Woodhull opinion, withdrew, and left the triumphant Victoria to enlarge on this tremendous topic.

THE RELATION OF THE SEXES.

New York Times.

One of the witnesses in the Beecher case, the other day, told the Court that, in his opinion, "The relation of the sexes was a department of human life which should be relegated to the will and conscience of the individuals concerned; that the law should not interfere with the relations of the sexes, so far as the affections are concerned." Does it not almost seem that this view is held by other persons over in Brooklyn besides the witness in question, and does not that fact account for much that is otherwise wholly inexplicable in the present case?

BESSIE.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Bessie Turner is a smart girl, but she seems very subject to "self-deception," as Mr. Beecher calls it. She testified that she told Mr. Richards, Mrs. Tilton's brother, all about Tilton's abuse of his wife and attempt to ruin her in December, 1870, and Mr. Richards appears in court and swears that she never said a word to him about it; she declared that she did not tell Mrs. Bradshaw that Tilton had accused his wife of adultery, and Mrs. Bradshaw, being recalled, produces her diary with the record of that precise statement by Bessie. The question naturally arises whether she was the victim of similar "self-deception" in her vivacious narratives about Tilton's abusing his wife and carrying herself from one bed to another, etc.

CONDONATION.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

DUBUQUE, Ia., May 7.—As a pulpit-orator and elocutionist, Henry Ward Beecher is infinitely superior to any man living. No other, either of this or any past age, has been so powerful to sway an audience, or control at will his entranced hearers. His acting upon the rostrum is consummate, and his rhetoric of the highest order; but his great strength consists in his wonderful command of language, and the skillful use of words. This is his great forte, and in it he is unsurpassed. Nearly forty years of practice in the pulpit and lecture-room, before cultured and enlightened audiences, have rendered him almost perfect, and he is never at a loss. He always uses the right word in the right place, and gives to each its exact shade of meaning.

In a passage in one of Beecher's despairing letters to Moulton he says: "Tilton can do nothing; he had condoned his wife's fault." What did he mean? What was the fault which that wife had committed? "Condone" is a legal word, and has a definite meaning. Turning to Bouvier's Law Dictionary, we find it defined as follows: "CONDONATION (Ecclesiastical Law)—Forgiveness, either express or implied, by a husband of his wife, or by a wife of her husband, for a breach of marital duty, as adultery, with an implied condition that it shall not be repeated." Webster says: "CONDONE (Ecclesiastical Law)—To pardon; to overlook the offense of; especially to forgive for a violation of the marriage-vow,—said of either the husband or wife."

Is not the exact nature of the "fault" alluded to in that sorrowful and contrite letter to the Mutual Friend indicated with sufficient certainty? It seems to me so. There can be as little doubt as to who were the parties implicated in its commission.

C.

CRIME.

MATRICIDE AND SUICIDE.

New York Sun, May 5.

Susan Scutt and her son Wesley Van Dusen, who shot her and then killed himself, were buried yesterday in one grave in Hillsdale, Columbia County, N. Y. Every one in the neighborhood had a story to tell of the eccentricities of Wesley Van Dusen, the illegitimate son of Susan Scutt. He was 38 years of age, industrious and sober, and had been employed by the railroad company from his boyhood. Although morose and uncommunicative, scarcely ever being known to speak, he did his work to the satisfaction of his employers. It was not until about a year ago that his known eccentricity was suspected to be a form of insanity. Then he was locked up in jail on complaint of his grandfather whom he had repeatedly threatened with gun and pistol.

At the jail Van Dusen gave the Sheriff a sum of money for safe keeping, which seemed fabulously large to the gossips of the little agricultural town. Over $2,500 was in the roll, and among the bank notes were those of State banks long ago worthless except as old paper. That a track man and railroad laborer should secretly possess so much wealth, hoarded from his small wages, was not to be explained by the village. No one even of his family knew of his savings, as the money never went out of his possession even to be hidden. After he had displayed his money, it was decided not to press the charge against him, and he was released. He returned to live with his mother and her parents in a little cabin about half a mile below Hillsdale station, on an unfrequented road near a small stream at the foot of the mountain.

Caleb Scutt, the old man, is 92 years old, and his wife only little younger. Sarah Scutt, the mother of Wesley, was 60 years old. She took care of the story-and-a-half cabin, and made it a home for her son. The affection between them was warm, and after his release from jail Wesley and his mother puzzled over the question of the disposition of his money. Then she consulted John C. Hubbard, Esq., telling him that some one wished to borrow it and get it away from them. He advised her to lend it on satisfactory security at a reasonable rate, but she would not listen. Then he advised her to bank it, and she still objected. His next suggestion that the money should be hidden in some place known only to herself and son met her approval. She went away saying that they would hide the money so that no one living should be able to find it. Subsequently mother and son quarreled over the money.

On Monday Wesley began to show signs of recurring insanity, and to a physician called to attend him he said that some one was pursuing him to cut him to pieces. Little attention was paid to what were thought to be temporary vagaries. The inmates of the cabin retired as usual, Wesley and his mother in the loft, which was divided by a board partition, and the old couple on the lower floor. At about 5 o'clock the next morning, while the old man was building the fire, he heard scuffling, two pistol shots, and a heavy fall in the loft. His wife screamed, and he ran to the ladder and climbed to the trap-door, the only entrance to the loft. It was closed, and the old man pushed it up with great difficulty, for boxes and barrels had been piled on it. After he had forced the door, the old man saw the prostrate form of his daughter. She was groaning, and her night-clothes were red with the blood that flowed from two bullet-holes in her breast. Over her, with the smoking pistol still in his hand, stood the maniac, and his voice roused the old man from his stupor. "Damn you," it said, "go down, or I'll put a hole through you." "I won't," cried the old man. "But I'll have you twitched for this." Springing to the side of the dying woman, the old man raised her in his arms and started for the trap-door. The madman followed, and, with the pistol close to the inanimate woman's face, fired, the ball piercing her forehead. The old man did not falter, or lose his hold upon the woman. Descending the ladder, he carried her across the room and left her dead on the bed from which he had just arisen. Then, with his wife, he started to alarm the neighbors, and ran to Hillsdale. "Wesley has murdered Susan," said he, "and I want him arrested."

Deputy-Sheriff Knox and a number of others accompanied him to the house, from which he had been absent about half an hour. Stretched on the floor in the next room to that in which the murdered woman lay, was the body of the murderer. He had sat on the floor, bared his breast, and shot himself, an inch to the right of the heart. He was dead. In a basket of carpet-rags, just within his reach if setting up, was found a seven-barreled revolver with five chambers discharged. The rags were piled upon it, seemingly to conceal it.

As the news of the tragedy spread through the village the excitement became intense. Business was entirely suspended, and an aroused multitude filled the lowly cabin and stepped over the blood-stained floor. In the thorough searches made by the visitors, $1,500 was discovered in different sums in all sorts of hiding-places. It is thought that about $1,000 of the madman's money is still hidden in the house.

Yesterday morning Henry Scutt, a grandson of the old couple, who attended the funeral, found an old shotgun that had belonged to Wesley. As his grandparents were nervous, he thought he would discharge rather than keep it loaded in the house. The gun burst when he attempted to fire it, and terribly lacerated his hand and arm. The gun was one-third full of slugs, bolt-heads, and iron scraps that had rusted in. It is thought that the lunatic loaded it with murderous intent in one of his fits of aberration. The shooting is supposed to have been the result of a quarrel over the secreted money.

PRICE'S VICTORY.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., May 8.—The remains of Binkley, the man killed by Express-Messenger Price near Lima, O., reached this city at midnight. The Coroner's verdict was in accordance with the facts as telegraphed last night, and completely exonerated Price. The testimony showed that a cord 10 feet long was found on Binkley's remains, attached to which was a short, thick pieces of wood, from which it is inferred that the intention was to bind and gag Price, and either rob the safes on the train or else throw them out at some convenient spot and rifle them subsequently. The vigorous defense made by the messenger probably caused the assailant to shoot without carrying out his first plan. It was also shown that Binkley had his beard shaved off before leaving this city on Thursday night. The funeral of deceased will occur from his late residence to-morrow forenoon. Price's wounds, though very painful, are not regarded as serious.

MURDEROUS MINERS.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., May 8.—An attempt to burn the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad bridge, above Locust Gap, last night, failed, though it was damaged to such an extent that it is unsafe to run trains over it. These attempts at wrecking trains in the Schuylkill region are becoming alarmingly on the increase.

There was considerable excitement at Mahoney City to-night, occasioned by two Frenchmen being attacked in the principal street. One was badly wounded, and the other is not expected to live.

Burglaries have been a common occurrence in the city the past week, hardly a night passing without one or more stores or houses being visited. To-day Chief of Police Hatch took in Joe Seville, alias Spotted Pete, an expert from Memphis, who has been working at LaCrosse for several days. Pete has the reputation on the river of being an expert at the business, and a dangerous man.

A FATAL BOARD-BILL.

MILWAUKEE, May 8.—At Chilton, Wis., to-day, a one armed soldier named George Miller shot John Namis, proprietor of the New Holstein Hotel, and Henry Kuehis, ostler, and then proceeded to the cemetery and shot himself. Of the three, only Kuehis can recover. The cause was a quarrel about a board-bill.

CASUALTIES.

CYCLONE AT DES MOINES.

DES MOINES, May 8.—A cyclone passed over this city at 2:30 this afternoon, doing much damage. The large brick smoke-stack of the paper mill was demolished. It came suddenly, lasted about 30 minutes, and passed southeast.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

DUBUQUE, Ia., May 8.—A tremendous wind has prevailed all day, filling the streets with dust, and river navigation was almost entirely suspended. Various rumors are afloat to-night of a violent tornado at Fort Dodge, which blew a train from the track, and destroyed several houses, but these cannot be traced to a reliable source. The damage here was slight.

A DENIAL.

LONDON, May 8.—The report that Sir John Holker had accepted a Judgeship of the Court of Exchequer, made vacant by the death of Baron Pigott, is denied.

TRIAL TRIP.

The swinging saloon steamer Bessemer made a trial trip to-day from Dover to Calais in one hour and a half. The saloon being not finished, it was not worked. When the steamer was entering Calais harbor, she refused to answer her helm, and struck the southern pier, carrying away 50 yards of it.

SUICIDE.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

KEOKUK, Ia., May 8.—Mrs. John Harbert, a lady 60 years of age, committed suicide near her home, on the opposite side of the river, this morning by hanging herself to a tree. Domestic difficulty was the cause of the act.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

DUBUQUE, Ia., May 8.—Mrs. Louisa Gehring, the wife of an engineer employed at Rouse & Dean's foundry, committed suicide about 8 o'clock this morning by hanging. She sent her eldest daughter to market, and, with the absence of the family, took a clothes-line, fastened it to a stair post, and evidently jumped from a chair on which she stood in order to fasten the noose about her neck. The deceased had been ill in body and despondent in mind for a long time, and it is very probable that her rash act was the result of her physical and mental defects.

THE STRIKING MINERS.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 8.—The meeting of miners to-day was attended by delegates from every district in this region. John Siney, President of the Miners' National Association, was present. The proceedings have not been made public. Baltimore district No. 283 unanimously resolved to support their brethren on a strike, and continue to do so until they get their prices.

JOURNALISTIC.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 8.—Col. Amos Green has disposed of his interest in the Kansas City Daily Times, leaving Dr. M. Mumford sole owner. Under his management and editorial control the future of the Times is very promising, he having proved himself a journalist of large capacity and untiring enterprise.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The Oshkosh aid committee at LaCrosse report the collection of $1,000 cash for the sufferers by the fire. This, in addition to smaller amounts donated by associations, societies, J. H. McVicker, etc., makes quite a favorable showing for LaCrosse.

The Chicago & Alton Railroad have advertised excursion rates from Springfield to Chicago next week. Round trip, $4. A large delegation of ex-soldiers residing in Springfield have perfected arrangements to attend the reunion on the 13th, 14th, and 15th. The Governor's Guard will also come. They will number 60 guns.

A handsome pair of thoroughbred carriage-horses were presented by the physicians of Louisville, through Dr. L. P. Blackburn, yesterday, to the venerable Dr. Samuel D. Gross, of Philadelphia. The presentation was made in front of the Galt House in the presence of a large crowd of ladies and gentlemen.

Albert Todd, a prominent lawyer of St. Louis, introduced in the Missouri State Constitutional Convention on Friday a petition from the Woman's Suffrage Association of that State, asking that the Convention insert a clause in the new Constitution extending the ballot to women. It was referred to the proper committee.

Sheridan Shook, proprietor, and A. L. Palmer, manager of the Union Square Theatre, New York, have obtained a preliminary injunction restraining Wood's Museum from producing the play of "The Two Orphans," the former having a copyright of translation as well as possession of the original manuscript.

A Trifling Mistake.

Very painful is the situation of a certain clerk in a grocery store near the Town of Stamford, Ky. He was standing behind the counter but a few mornings ago, sniffing pleasantly the odor of dried herrings and kerosene and cheese which hung about him, and waiting for a customer, when there ran in, in a great hurry, a young lady from a house near by. She had forgotten the flour needed for some dish in course of preparation and had come in haste to the store to get it, taking out of a bureau drawer and bringing over what she supposed to be a clean pillow-slip to serve as a bag. The obliging clerk seized the pillow-slip in one hand and a scoop in the other, and dipping from the flour barrel a scoop-full, began filling the bag. The first scoop-full went not only in but through the receptacle, and the astonished clerk held up the pillow-slip to see that it consisted of two parts with fringed outlets at the bottom, through which the flour had gone to the floor. The girl saw the thing at the same time, and with a shriek, but without a word, ran home. The grocery-store clerk carefully dusted the garments and laid them away to be returned when called for, but they haven't been called for yet. And so, because of a carelessness not his own, that unfortunate clerk is in a painful situation, and the store in which he is employed has lost a customer. It was a dreadful affair.

THE INDIAN BUREAU.

CHARGES AGAINST THE INDIAN RING.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—Commissioner Smith, of the Indian Bureau, who has been engaged in New York during the week in superintending the opening of bids for Indians east of the Rocky Mountains, has returned. Some of the disappointed contractors have also reappeared here. Protests have been filed against the award of the tobacco contracts, and against the expert who practically determined the award. The claim is made that the quality of rejected samples was better than that of the accepted ones. It is charged that the tobacco is of the lowest grade, mere factory sweepings. The contracts for transportation were let at much lower rates than in previous years. The flour that is to be delivered at Cheyenne is of good quality, and exceptionally cheap. Beef is considerably lower than last year, but the amount purchased is less, owing to deficient appropriation. The aggregate amount of the contracts is $250,000.

Prof. Marsh still maintains his

CHARGES AGAINST THE INDIAN BUREAU,

and insists that Red Cloud did not deceive him. He says: "In a question between Red Cloud and the Indian ring, where both were interested, I would decidedly prefer the testimony of Red Cloud. In a private letter written at the Red Cloud Agency in April last, Lieut. Carpenter says: 'The Indians are all quiet now. The poor wretches have been several times this winter on the verge of starvation, through the rascality of the Indian ring. They have been compelled to eat dogs, wolves, and ponies.'"

THE SIOUX DELEGATION.

The Commissioner of Indian Affairs has received a dispatch from Agent Saville to this effect: That the delegation of Indians, consisting of Red Cloud, Spotted Tail, and other chiefs of the Brule Sioux, the Ogallalla Sioux, the Uncapapas, the Sans Arks, and Mineconjous were unnecessarily delayed at Laramie through the influence of four or five half-breeds who want to come to Washington as interpreters. He asked that orders be sent to Red Cloud and Little Wound to start for Washington, and proceed at once to Cheyenne.

The Commissioner telegraphed the desired instructions, and it is presumed that the delegation left Cheyenne for this city this morning.

The delegation of Cheyenne Indians, consisting of about ten, are supposed to be already on the way. The entire delegation, with the interpreters, will consist of about thirty.

Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, who has been very active in his efforts to prevent hostilities on the part of the Sioux, in view of the Black Hills excitement, has come to be present at the conference.

NOTES AND NEWS.

DAMAGE ALLOWANCE.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—It is not absolutely certain that the Secretary of the Treasury will adhere to the decision relative to the suspension of damage allowances on goods imported at interior ports of entry. The whole subject has been referred to Judge Burnham, the new Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. He is now engaged in examining the arguments. There is some reason to believe that he doubts the practicability of making examination for allowance of damage incurred on the voyage of importation within ten days from the date of original importation at the first port. One purpose of the new order seems to be to prevent Western merchants from obtaining damage allowance for damage incurred between the coast ports and the West. This, it is claimed, is a gross injustice to the Eastern importers, who, in selling their goods West, have to incur the risks of transportation. The whole subject seems to turn upon the legal definition of a few words, and the relation of the act of July, 1874, to the act of 1799.

A PROTEST.

Charles H. Hain, United States Appraiser, has sent a very earnest protest against the recent ruling to Gen. Babcock, hoping to secure the interference of the President. Gen. Grant, however, seldom interferes in the action of the executive Departments, so the letter was referred to the Treasury Department without recommendation.

WHISKY FRAUDS.

It has transpired that the private examinations into the operations of the alleged whisky ring have been conducted in Chicago, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Louisville, Evansville, and some other ports. The St. Louis distillers already understand that their operations have been discovered.

CORRECTION.

In a recent dispatch it was stated that the Treasury has not discovered any counterfeits on the Traders' National Bank, Chicago. This was an error, and should have read on the Third National. Counterfeits of the Traders' have been found.

[To the Associated Press.]

REVENUE DECISIONS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—The Treasury Department acquiesces in the judicial decision that German sausages are exempt from duty under the special provision for bologna sausages, and therefore no appeal will be taken to the Supreme Court.

The Department has decided that tobacco scraps are subject to duty at the rate of 30 per cent advalorem under the provision of the tariff for unmanufactured tobacco.

A People's Cafe.

London Standard.

April 16, the first cafe of the People's Cafe Company (limited), was opened in a newly erected building of substantial elevation, No. 184 Upper Whitecross street, St. Luke's, London, a thoroughfare surrounded by a dense poor population. The house is divided into several spacious apartments, neatly fitted and admirably adapted for the accommodation of the public. Plenty of light and ventilation add greatly to the comfort and cheerfulness of the rooms. On the ground floor is the principal department, with what may be termed the bar in the centre, and above are rooms to be appropriated especially to the gentler sex who may be disposed to frequent the Cafe St. Luke's. The furniture is of a description to be seen at more pretentious refreshment places not far from Charing Cross. Tables of marble-tops on bronze supports, covered with almost snow-white thick cups and saucers; nickel metal teaspoons, and pretty-looking milk jugs, are here at the service of the Golden lane district. The tea, coffee, and viands are of excellent quality, and disposed of at a tariff ranging from a penny to sixpence. Billiard and bagatelle rooms are also provided, and by and by there will be a reading-room and library. The cost of the building has been something over £2,000. The company are erecting another in Whitechapel. A large party of ladies and gentleman took tea together at the cafe, the Earl of Shaftsbury, Sir Harcourt Johnstone, M. P., Mr. George Cruikshank, Mr. R. Fowler, Rev. Basil Wilberforce, and several of the Directors, being of the number.

The History of Cavalry.

The Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, Inspector General of Russian cavalry, has determined, with the sanction of the Emperor of Russia, to offer for the three best essays on the subject of the history of cavalry, three prizes of 5,000, 3,000, and 2,000 roubles respectively. In order to encourage international scientific intercourse, he has decided to throw the competition open to all armies, but foreign competitors will have to get their productions translated into Russian. All competing essays must be handed in at St. Petersburg on or before the 1st (13th) of January, 1877, when they will be carefully examined by a committee nominated by His Imperial Highness, and the prizes adjudged.

One-Rail Railroads.

Houston (Tex.) Telegraph.

We took a ride yesterday on the Prismoidal one-rail railroad, and received a practical illustration of the fact that locomotives and cars can be run on one rail. The motion was much more easy and steady than we expected, though the speed attained, owing to the shortness of the track, was not very great. Curves were turned with much facility, and with no apparent strain or extra friction. Those interested claim the test to be a perfect success, and with some show of reason; but the value of the system in practical business remains yet to be established.

THE CITY.

GENERAL NEWS.

The First Regiment turned out yesterday for the first time, and made a most creditable display. Their marching was excellent.

Volunteers, ladies and gentlemen, are wanted to arrange evergreens and wreaths for the coming reunion. Such will report at 179 Wabash avenue to-morrow.

Charles K. Offield, a member of the Chicago Bar, was married last Monday to Miss Monson, of New Haven, Conn., a young lady well known in the social circles of the latter city.

The temperature yesterday, as observed by Manasse, optician, 88 Madison street (TRIBUNE Building), was: At 8 a. m., 76 degrees; 10 a. m. 84; 12 m., 85; 3 p. m., 78; 8 p. m., 72.

The first number of the Temperance Record, a new Chicago monthly publication, has just been issued. It is neatly printed, and contains considerable interesting reading matter. The editor and proprietor is John Meagher.

With a poetic appreciation of the necessities which balmy spring entails on humanity, a benevolent tobacconist on Washington street has arranged his Thomas-hawking Indian in a seasonable habit of loose calico robe and sunbonnet.

The clerks of the City Collector's office are engaged day and night in completing the delinquent tax-list of 1874, which must be turned over to the County Treasurer to-morrow. Ogden, Sheldon & Co. yesterday cleared their account of $30,000, and the Rock Island Railroad paid their taxes, amounting in all to $44,000.

The American Social Science Association commences its annual meeting at Detroit Tuesday. Sydney Meyers, of this city, although not a member of the Association, will by special invitation take part in the discussions. He leaves to-morrow, and the subjects he will discuss are "Finance," and "Homes for the People."

The Grand Jury yesterday morning commenced the investigation of the frauds at the recent sham city election. A large number of witnesses have been summoned to appear in this matter. The only one examined yesterday was Officer Crogan of the Deering Street Station. It is possible though scarcely probable that the jury will conclude their labors Monday.

A laborer named Thomas Madigan, who was working in a sewer on Ellis avenue, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth streets, was smothered to death by the caving in of the earth, yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. A brother of deceased was severely injured by the slide. The body was taken to No. 155 McGregor street, where deceased formerly lived. He leaves a family.

Deputy-Sheriff Corrigan desires to correct the statement that he failed to levy on the effects of Michael C. McDonald, to satisfy a judgment, wherein the latter was the surety. Through a misunderstanding between himself and Mr. Barrett, Deputy Criminal Court Clerk, he attended to two other writs on Mr. Trude, and took no action in the other case, understanding that counsel had settled, or would settle, the matter.

The legality of the Council ordinance in regard to camp-stools, chairs and other obstructions being placed in the aisles of churches, theatres, and other public places, has been amply vouched for by City Attorney Jamison, and a violent crusade will be begun at once against the violators of the ordinance. The police will begin their inspection of such places to-day, and all churches tolerating the nuisance may expect a raid.

At about 10 o'clock yesterday evening a Scandinavian, while walking along Wabash avenue, between Washington and Madison streets, was set upon by five foot-pads, who presented pistols at his head and removed $12 from his pockets. The man yelled "police" lustily, but no response came to his cries, and the highway robbers got off safe with their booty. The job was in all probability effected by Barney Aaron's gang, which ought by this time to have received the attentions of the police.

Mike McDonald went into the Circuit Court before Judge Rogers yesterday morning on a motion which had been made for him to justify as surety on an appeal bond, and swore he owned real estate in the City of Chicago to the value of $4,000, and that he was worth $50,000 over his indebtedness, and the rule was discharged. If Sheriff Agnew's deputy were to try again with that execution he might find some property on which to levy. If not, a look at the Clerk's minutes in Judge Rogers' room might help him.

Col. H. H. Harrison dropped dead on the floor of the Board of Trade at half-past 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and business was at once suspended for the day out of respect for him. He was an old and revered member of the Board, but had not traded very much for several years, having met with some losses. He was 60 years of age, 40 of which he had spent in Chicago. His death is attributed to heart disease, though it may have been hastened by the injuries he received during a jam in the oat crowd a few months ago.

There was no business of importance transacted in the committee rooms of the County Commissioners yesterday. The Committee on Jail and Jail Accounts having decided to recommend that the heating pipes in the Jail be covered with a material resembling to a certain extent cement, visited Bridgeport in the afternoon, where the material is manufactured, for the purpose of examining into its merits. They decided to recommend it to the Board at their next meeting. The Committees on Public Charities and Public Service were in session also, and audited several minor bills.

Though Kingsbury Hall, better known as the Grand Opera-House, has passed into the hands of Mr. McVicker, the German Dramatic Company, under the management of Wurster & Methua, still continue their most excellent representations Sunday evenings. To-night will be produced Hugo Mueller's renowned military drama, "Heart's Won," with excellent music by Bial, and songs and dances. The subject is taken from an episode of the Franco-Prussian war, and illustrates the hatred existing at that time between North and South Germany, and concludes with a reunited and harmonious Germany, and "Die Wacht am Rhein." The cast is a very strong one, Mesdames Scheller and Claussen, and Messrs. Julius Koch and Gottfried Brockman being assigned the principal parts.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cook County Board of Education was held yesterday at the office of Superintendent Plant, No. 173 Randolph street. There were present President W. H. Swett, in the chair, and Messrs. Burdick, Clarke, Lewis, and Plant. The first business in order was the settling of teachers' salaries, which resulted in the retaining of Mr. G. W. Murray for another year at $125 per month, of Miss Worthington at $116 per month, of Miss Rise at $100 per month, of Miss Curtis at $83 per month, Miss Beem at $85 per month, of Mr. Homer Bevans at $100 per month, and of Mr. George Muirhead, engineer and janitor, at $150 per month. A report was made by Mr. Wentworth, Principal of the Normal School, of a donation of valuable books, twenty-five volumes in all, by the Hon. B. G. Caulfield, and a vote of thanks was passed for the same. After the auditing of several bills the meeting adjourned.

THE BUTLER-STOREY CASE.

In the libel case of William T. Butler vs. Wilbur F. Storey, proprietor of the Times, where $50,000 damages were claimed for calling the plaintiff "shyster," the jury returned a verdict yesterday morning for $500. The usual motion for a new trial was made.

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO.

The Class of '76 delivered orations at the University-Place Baptist Church Friday evening. Heretofore the Junior exhibition has taken place in Commencement week, and prizes in oratory have been awarded. The change in time was made in order to give to the alumni, for banquet or other purpose, an evening of the closing week. The class voted to speak without prizes, the prize system here having been productive here of more harm than anything else. The entertainment was one of the best that have been given by the Junior classes of the University, and the audience has not been equaled in number at any college exercise for many years, if ever. The house was filled to its utmost capacity, extra seats being placed in the aisles.

Dr. Moss presided, and several members of the Faculty occupied seats on the platform. The programme was as follows:

Prayer by the Rev. Dr. Northrup, Theological Seminary.
Music—Quaker City Quartette.
Oration—"The Philosopher and the Poet" .... Albert Judson Fisher
Oration—"Edmund Spenser" .... Rinaldo Lawson Olds
Oration—"The Puritan Character" .... Herbert Lee Stetson
Oration—"The Decline of Pulpit Power" .... Benjamin Franklin Patt
Oration—"The Money Power" .... William Granger Hastings
Oration—"Charlemagne" ... Henry Increase Bosworth
Oration—"Demosthenes and Webster" .... Howard Benjamin Gross
Oration—"The Future of American Literature" .... John Edwin Rhodes

The orations were creditable to the class, both in the subject-matter and delivery. The best estimate of them is found, perhaps, in the fact that the interest of the audience did not flag to the close. The music was of the perfect character that those who had previously known of the Quaker City Quartette anticipated, and the encores were most enthusiastic, compelling attention after the closing piece, despite the negative of the presiding official. The selections were all appropriate, and of the kind that hold and arouse. Mock schemes, a weak imitation of those issued last year, and lacking wit or originality, were scattered throughout the audience, and possibly afforded some amusement to those who could find any point in them.

THE PRODUCE EXCHANGE.

The Produce Exchange assembled again yesterday afternoon to consider what should be done in reference to securing rooms for another year, and whether it was advisable and possible to maintain the organization, since so many of the members had failed to pay the annual assessment of $10 each. The attendance was small, and very little business was transacted.

A proposition was received to furnish the old Board of Trade rooms for the use of the Exchange, free of cost, but no action was taken.

Some discussion then ensued, bearing upon the general situation, in which some sectional or local feeling was developed as to the location of rooms.

Finally, on motion of Mr. Gooch, the following Committee was appointed, representing the several local interests, to collect the annual assessments, and report progress at the annual meeting of the Exchange for the election of officers, to be held Tuesday afternoon: Messrs. Gooch, Howell, Cyrus, Chase, Hanchett, Hewes, Knock, Weaver, and Brownell.

The meeting then adjourned until Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, sharp.

IN A BAD WAY.

The late failure of the Cook County National Bank involved a large number in its fall, and among others Postmaster John McArthur, who had obtained a large number of discounts at the bank. At the time of its suspension it had discounted about $16,000 of his paper, part of which was then held by the American Exchange National Bank, of New York, and another portion by the Cook County Bank itself. In March last the New York bank commenced a suit against McArthur on about $13,500 of his paper, which it claimed to hold in good faith for value received. This, however, is denied by Mr. McArthur, who alleges that all but one note for $2,500 was secretly transferred to the New York bank by the Cook County Bank after its suspension without any consideration. In addition to these transactions, McArthur, in his official capacity, and as he has since ascertained, in contravention of his duty to deposit daily with the United States Treasurer any surplus he might have, deposited with the Cook County Bank a large amount, and at the time of its failure had $40,644 in its vaults to the credit of the Government. McArthur has since received notice that the Government had been able by the sale of bonds of the bank given as security for its deposits to get back part of the amount he had placed there, but that he was still responsible for $21,404.95. McArthur therefore filed a bill setting out these facts, and asking that the amount due by the bank to the Government for which he was held responsible should be set off against the amount he owed the bank. The Receiver, A. H. Burley, refuses to look at the matter in this light, and the unfortunate Postmaster accordingly asks that the offset may be made, and that the American Exchange National Bank may be enjoined from further prosecuting its suit against him or disposing of his notes.

THE FOUNDLINGS' HOME.

The following extract from the last number of the Foundlings' Record will give those unfamiliar with this institution an idea of its needs, and in what way they are partially relieved:

Monday, April 5.—Fifteen dollars were received today, but this has only met the necessities of the day—nothing more. The Lord is faithful, however. He is mindful of us.

Wednesday, April 7.—A lady brought us $5—the gift of a Sunday-school class.

Thursday, April 8.—The Lord has sent us to-day $125. We are asking for large amounts to pay the laborers.

Thursday, April 15.—To-day was one of pressing need, but we were enabled to feed our large family without getting into debt. Money came in the afternoon to buy coal.

Friday, April 16.—A package of clothing from Milwaukee, with a beautiful quilt.

Monday, April 19.—The Lord is trying our faith day by day. He sends us now just enough for our most urgent necessities. Ten dollars came by mail from Brooklyn, which supplies us with the needful articles for to-day.

Thursday, April 22.—We commence to-day with 20 cents. At 10 o'clock a lady called who gave us $2.50, with which we were able to buy the meat for dinner. Afterward more money was given, which purchased the other necessaries for the day. A supply of eggs for breakfast was also given.

Monday, April 26.—A little girl 7 years old, living in Connecticut, sent us 50 cents that she had earned by not eating butter for a certain length of time. A noble act of self-denial, for which the Lord will reward her.

THE NEW CHARTER.

THE CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION.

The Executive Committee of the Citizens' Association held an important meeting yesterday afternoon, at which the questions of prosecuting the fraudulent judges in the late election and contesting the election were fully discussed, and, after a thorough interchange of opinions on the subject, it was decided that the judges should be prosecuted, and that a contest of the election should be had. It was decided that the services of Judge Lawrence should be retained to conduct all the legal business in connection with the work to be undertaken, and Messrs. MacVeagh and Fairbank were appointed a committee to wait upon the Judge and secure his services. The determination to contest the election was unanimous, Mr. Hesing declaring that he would subscribe $50 towards the expenses, even if he were forced to borrow the amount to settle his subscription, and all the members of the Executive Committee expressing equal readiness to supply the necessary sinews of war.

AT THE CITY-HALL.

Peace and harmony and plenty of blarney still hold sway around the City-Hall, and will probably continue to do so until the annual appropriations come fairly before the Committee on Finance and the Common Council. No action of any kind has yet been had looking towards an organization under the recent act, and probably none will be for several weeks. The Aldermen appreciate the responsible situation in which they are placed, looking forward to a bright future, and making good resolutions of their future conduct just as if each and every one of them was entering a new life.

The Mayor and that old political warhorse, Mark Sheridan, shook hands yesterday in a cold, clammy, peculiar manner, and amused themselves by repartees about the frauds in the last election. Sheridan was the aggressor, as he came around for the special purpose of interviewing the Mayor, but all that he got was a few taunting recriminations about things of the past.

Mayor Colvin evidently has the idea that he is the leader now in the city political field, and has been telling several persons what he proposes to do. One thing is the abolition of the Board of Police. The publication of his propositions has created a great deal of comment among certain Aldermen, and they are wondering what reforms are left to them when the Mayor proposes to take so many reforms upon himself. In regard to the Police and Fire Board, the majority of the Aldermen hope that Ald. Campbell will see fit to introduce his pet resolution, which he threatened to do at the last regular session, merely for the pleasure of seeing it placed, where it most certainly will be, on file. Sentiment is entirely opposed to any decided changes for the present, and the city cannot properly be said to be working under the act of 1872 until the ordinances are revised according to the limitations of the act. The present week will no doubt see some action taken in this direction.

THE ARMY REUNION.

A GENERAL MEETING.

A joint meeting of the Committees of the Soldiers' Reunion was held at the Sherman House last evening. The attendance was large. Mayor Colvin presided, and Capt. J. J. Healy acted as Secretary.

Gen. Chetlain made a statement of the financial necessities and prospects, and said that everything was working satisfactorily.

Gen. Sherman, the Chief Marshal of the day, stated that he had not yet issued his orders for the day, but what had been published was substantially correct. He had not completed the appointment of his aids, but expected to to-morrow, when the announcement would be made. If any persons wished a place upon his staff he would be glad to hear from them.

Col. Bicaby, from the Committee to procure blankets and other comforts for the soldiers in the way of lodging, reported that the army headquarters had been interviewed, but he had met with little success. He found it impossible to procure blankets, unless they were purchased outright.

Col. Baldwin replied that he believed the volunteer companies that would attend the reunion would bring their blankets with them. He thought the blanket question ought to be dropped, for blankets were a part of the soldier's outfit with which he believed all who would attend were provided.

After some further discussion the Committee was discharged, and on motion Gen. Stockton was appointed to procure such blankets as were needed, by purchase or otherwise.

An offer from the Grand Pacific Hotel to furnish the Mayor's Cadets, of Toledo, with supper, upon their arrival in the city, for $50, was received and accepted.

The question of finances then came up, when Mayor Colvin suggested that each member of the Reception Committee be taxed $5, which he thought would materially swell the treasury. A motion to that effect was subsequently made, and prevailed.

Mayor Colvin volunteered to furnish a man to collect the assessment.

On motion of Col. Baldwin, the Chair was requested to have the streets sprinkled and cleaned along the line of march on the morning of the 13th.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE CAVALRY.

A meeting of the ex-cavalrymen of the United States Army was held yesterday evening at the club-room of the Palmer House. After some discussion of the possibility of a creditable cavalry display at the reunion, it was resolved that, though it was too late to make anything like a regular display, yet the cavalrymen ought to take part on the occasion. An organization was then effected, with Col. Chamberlin as Chairman and Capt. H. J. Maher Secretary, and it was decided to hold a general meeting of ex-cavalrymen at the Palmer House at 8 o'clock to-morrow evening.

BATTERY "M."

The members of Battery M, of the First Regiment Illinois Artillery, met last night at Ogden's Building to complete their arrangements for a banquet to be given by them. It was decided that they would give the banquet Thursday evening at Wright's, when they would renew old associations, and have a general good time. A committee was appointed to perfect the details and provide all that was necessary for the occasion. The "boys" also decided to turn out as a company on the day of the grand parade of the military organizations who will participate this week in the reunion. They adjourned to meet again on the call of the Chairman, J. R. Nelson.

THE FIFTY-SEVENTH.

A meeting of the Fifty-seventh Illinois Infantry will be held at the Sherman House to-morrow evening, to complete arrangements for the reunion. All the members who desire to take part in the parade are requested to assemble at the Sherman House on the morning of the 13th inst., and at the North Side Turner-Hall the morning following, to effect a permanent organization.

BILL WRAY.

A NOTED CRIMINAL CAPTURED.

Bill Wray is in the toils, and he will probably get a term in the Penitentiary. He was caught yesterday morning at 5 o'clock, after engaging in an attempt to blow a safe. The credit of the arrest belongs to Officer Reid, of the Sixth Precinct (Madison street) Station, and to him only. It was daylight yesterday morning when Daniel O'Leary, a laborer living in rear of John R. Case's real estate office, No. 44 South Green street, between Madison and Washington, got up, and while eating his breakfast heard a noise in the little frame building in front of his. His daughter, a young girl, peeped out, and saw the door of Case's office standing open. O'Leary sent her at once for a policeman, while he cautiously examined the premises of Mr. Case. The girl returned with Officer Reid, one of the most vigilant and cool men on the force. She found him at the corner of Madison and Halsted streets, a block and a half from the scene of the attempted burglary. As he came into Green street, Reid saw two men walking rapidly northward, and they were then at Washington street. He took in the situation in a moment, and ran rapidly toward his game. They saw him when he had gone a short distance, and started on a run. One of the fellows separated from his companion as they neared Carroll avenue, but Reid is a good runner and caught up with the other man when he reached that street. He raised his club and ordered the fugitive to stop, which he did reluctantly, and he marched him back toward the station, with a vise-like grip on his arm which made him feel he was not in a child's hands. Reid did not know he had Wray in charge, and when he asked the prisoner his name he gave that of Green. When he was taken to the station, Sergts. Callahan and Johnson recognized him at once. The latter, with Officers Hickey and Barry, were also notified by O'Leary of the attempted burglary, and went at once to the scene. The robbers had bored two holes in Mr. Case's fire-proof safe, and made one attempt to blow it, which failed. There was no money in it, but a lot of valuable papers, which were of no use to any one but the owners. In Wray's possession was found a set of burglars' tools, consisting of a jimmy, braces and drills, keys, etc., and fifteen or twenty feet of fuse and a half pound of powder. The stuff was in a leather valise, which Wray carried. Entrance was obtained to the office by cutting out a hole in the floor, the operation being performed beneath the building. No weapon was found on Wray, but it is thought that he threw a revolver away. The name of his companion is not known.

It is thought that the early movements of O'Leary and the near approach of daylight scared the burglars off. They probably believed that the safe contained a large sum of money.

Wray was examined before Justice Scully yesterday morning, and held to bail in $5,000 to answer before the Criminal Court two charges,—larceny and having burglars' tools in his possession. He was sent to Jail in default of the bonds.

THE MYSTERIOUS BUNDLE.

MR. SMITH'S LAME EXPLANATION.

Policeman Treanor was filled with great delight and a feeling of the privileges of office, yesterday evening about 10 o'clock, when he saw a man lean over the railing of the Madison street bridge and drop a bundle into the stream below. It fell with the customary "dull thud," and "was lost to sight forever in the turbid waves." Then the man brought forth a great sigh of relief, like as if he had dodged a creditor, and turned to go. But the officer, with a fine eye to crime, and a righteous zeal to shine in the morning papers, fell upon this man, taxed him with throwing a baby into the river, and hurried him off to the station.

There the prisoner, who gave his name as Hank Smith, turned out, under the glare of the gas-lamp, to be a respectable-looking person of 40, with goggles, a heavy cane, a box of troches, and a silver snuff-box. The troches were at once investigated, and, since they had an unpleasant smell, they were safely locked up to be sent over to Dr. Siebel for analysis,—being probably poison of great might.

Mr. Smith seemed unable to account for the arrest, but when informed of the charge, laughed convulsively, and said the bundle contained old clothes. Then the Sergeant, who is a man skilled in the ways of criminals, and their subtle shifts to escape punishment, wagged his head, and the station-keeper wagged his, and there was a wagging of heads for the space of five minutes, after which they put him in a cell, and told him to think over his misdeeds, whereat he cursed and murmured some stuff about the absurdity of staying there, since he had to fix up a little Beecher.

Presently a reporter turned up, learned of the crime, and went in to interview H. S., being a young man with a yearning for miscellaneous information and for asking questions whereby to get it. Mr. S. told his story. The bundle contained simply some heavy flannel underclothing. It had grown old and ragged. It had been sewn by Mr. J. at those points where the physical structure of man necessitates the greatest strain. But, being sewn, the garments tore again. Yet the owner hung on to them, and they to him, hoping for warm weather, when he could discard them utterly. He could not send them to the laundry, since they would come back in fragments, and, as they charge by the piece, each shirt would be charged for as six. So he washed them in the wash-basin, and dried them at night on the bed-post.

Friday the warm weather came, and he felt it was time to shed them. He could not give them away, since no one would take them, so he threw them out in the yard; but his landlady's servant came in smiling, with a wholesome blush on her face, and saying "Mr. Smith, you lost your drawers," departed with great rapidity. He left them in the street that night, but the next morning they appeared on his door-knob. So yesterday, fearing that they might cling to him like the Old Man of the Sea, he did them up in a bundle, and adding thereto a brick, to give them due weight and a proper degree of the force of gravitation, he took the parcel and dumped it in the river.

Now, for the truth of this the reporter cannot vouch, for it does seem unreasonable on the face of it, but, influenced by Mr. Smith's entreaties, the police will to-day drag the river at Madison street bridge and verify or disprove his statements. In the meantime he may be found in Cell No. 4 at the left end of the bench.

LOCAL LETTERS.

GOGGIN REAPPEARS.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

158 NORTH FRANKLIN STREET, CHICAGO, May 8.—I see by the testimony of Mr. Storey in the McGrath case that only for the mysterious disappearance of the witness Goggin, Mr. Reed says perhaps Mr. McGrath would be convicted. Mr. Reed is terribly mistaken. I was in communication with Mr. Reed all the time. Mr. Reed knew that I was then living at No. 212 West Lake street. He knows that I did not disappear for a second. If Mr. Reed "let up" on Ald. McGrath for the purpose of saving other Aldermen, he must not blame me for it.

WILLIAM GOGGIN.

AURORA.

The Principal Events of the Week.

Special Correspondence of The Chicago Tribune.

AURORA, Ill., May 8.—There seems to have been a change from the general routine of the weather department, and the genial showers which ordinarily reach us in April were delayed for May. During the week we have had much rain, our streets have been dull and monotonous, and spring business cannot be said to have fairly opened as yet, though there are fair prospects for lively trade so soon as the weather shall have become settled. Farmers in this section will commence corn-planting Monday, and hope to have that portion of their labor completed by the 20th. They are offering little or no produce for sale—not sufficient, in fact, to establish a standard price for any article.

BUILDING PROSPECTS

for the season are good, and while no extensive business are meditated, the number of private residences erected during the summer will doubtless be equal to that of former seasons. Those now in progress, or soon to be commenced, are as follows: M. A. Higgins, Downer Place, $6,000; Henry Fickinsher, Fox street, $2,500; Peleg Young, North Lake street, $6,000; C. G. Metzner, Walnut street, $2,000; Mrs. Seamons, corner of New York and Root streets, $4,000; Patrick Clark, Fox street, $2,500; William Gardner, corner Lincoln avenue and Fox street, $2,500; Rufus Stolp, South Fourth street, $2,500; J. S. Rand, Clark street, two cottages, $4,000. It is rumored that Mr. John Reising will build a $10,000 residence at the corner of Fourth and Avon streets; Mr. F. B. Rice is preparing to erect a handsome cottage on Downer place, while scores of less pretentious structures are under way, and other improvements about the city are numerous and substantial.

SICKNESS AND DEATH.

The present spring has been remarkably unfavorable for invalids, aged people and consumptives especially, and the fatality has been unusually large. Monday the remains of Miss Nettie Miller, nearly 20 years of age, a daughter of Mr. James Miller, were followed to their last resting place. Miss Miller was an accomplished young lady of rare promise, and graduated with honor last June from the High School of the Fifth District, but about that time was attacked by consumption, and all efforts to save her were futile. The teachers and pupils of the High School were in attendance at her funeral, the pall-bearers being chosen from her sorrowing class-mates of last year. Another young lady of about the same age was buried on Tuesday, Miss Tinney, daughter of Mr. John Ellis, her remains being taken to Jericho, a few miles west of the city. Both ladies were highly esteemed by all who knew them. Measles, diphtheria, and bilious colic are carrying sadness and desolation to many homes—the latter disease proving fatal this morning in the case of Mrs. Thomas Hartigan, who had been sick but a short time.

DECORATION DAY

will be appropriately observed Saturday next by the soldiers and citizens of Aurora, and the question as to where the flowers are to come from is already being agitated. The prospect is that evergreen foliage will of necessity be substituted.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

At the last meeting of the Common Council a Board of Health was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Fred O. White, E. S. Day, and Joseph Denney. The same gentlemen served in that capacity last year. Many of our streets and alleys and back-yards certainly need their prompt attention before warm weather sets in, since during the long winter they have been made the general receptacle of the defunct cats and dogs, rubbish and filth of every description.

THE C. & N. W. R. R.

again make the proposition of running a branch line to this city, in competition with the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, providing our citizens will grant them the right. This is a consummation devoutly to be hoped for, but it is not quite certain that some of our old fogies—and we have our full share of them,—will not stand in their own light sufficiently to kill the project. As it is, without competition, we are compelled to pay heavier freight charges from Chicago to Aurora, a distance of 38 miles, than from New York to Chicago; and it is quite certain that, should this branch be opened, the bulk of Aurora freights would be transferred to the Northwestern Company.

TO EUROPE.

Monday a party of half a dozen or more of our German citizens depart for Europe to spend the summer. They will be followed Thursday by a party of Americans, consisting of H. C. Paddock (County Treasurer) and wife, and Mrs. J. R. Coulter and family, accompanied by a daughter of Judge Beckwith, and Miss Farnsworth, of Chicago.

The past week has been unusually dull and monotonous, but next week promises to be prolific of entertainments, sociables, and other pleasant gatherings.

BASE BALL.

CHICAGO AGAIN "SCOOPED" BY ST. LOUIS.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, May 8.—St. Louis to-day has tallied another game against the Chicago White Stockings, and the bird of victory which still perches on the banners of the Brown Legs crows more exultantly and lustily than ever. The population, which has been seized with the base ball mania, is intoxicated with the success of their professional experiment, and soars in the zenith of delight at the discomfiture of the unhappy lads from their rival city. Nothing could add to their satisfaction. Their jubilation, now that a second victory is achieved, is complete. There were not a few here who, looking upon their first success as one of those providential events illustrative of the deceptive uncertainty of base-ball, would not have been unprepared to see the White Stockings avenge themselves by a decided victory, but the game has been played,

ST. LOUIS HAS ACHIEVED ANOTHER SUCCESS, and the exultation over the first triumph, instead of being turned to mourning and bitterness of spirit, has been greatly increased by a second, and now is boundless. The boasted superiority of St. Louis muscle, if she has been charged with a deficiency of brains, has again been asserted, and a score of 4 to 3 in their favor gains the Brown Legs additional laurels and loud peans of praise from their admirers and backers. The White Stockings and their few Chicago friends went on the field to-day certain of victory. Each member of the nine was prepared to bat Bradley's pitching all over the grounds, but it was not on the cards. They have fallen victims again to this mainstay of the St. Louis nine, and were barely successful in saving themselves from another complete whitewash. For eight innings their score showed nothing but a ghastly array of goose eggs, and only in the ninth, by did they save themselves from another overwhelming defeat. With the experience of Bradley's pitching, gained in the game of Thursday, they batted him with scarcely any better success to-day. As cipher after cipher was scored against them, until but one inning remained, another skunk seemed inevitable.

A LUCKY STREAK OF GOOD BATTING,

The result of the first game greatly increased the interest, and the attendance was much greater than the day before. There were about 7,000 people present, among whom were many lady representatives of beauty and fashion. Grand avenue and other thoroughfares leading to the grounds were crowded with carriages, and the scene reminded a Chicagoan of the days when, five years ago, Chicago was seized with a similar fever, and

TURNED OUT EN MASSE TO DEXTER PARK.

On account of the absence of Mr. Wirth, who was expected to act again as umpire, the game was delayed some time before another could be secured. Mr. James Barron, of the Empires of this city, was finally selected, and at 4:20 the Chicagos went to bat. They were speedily retired without a run, Higham being taken on a foul by Miller; Hastings, who took first on called balls, being caught while trying to steal second, and Warren sat down on a fly to left field. The White Stockings when they went to the field showed several

CHANGES IN POSITIONS.

from their usual order. Devlin pitched, Hastings caught, Zettlein took first base, Glenn centre, and Higham right field. This disposition worked well. The Browns found Devlin's underhand throw a puzzler, and during the game but few single base hits were made on him, and none for three bases. They were easily blanked in the first two innings, the side going out on strikes, fouls, and easy in-field work. In the third inning they secured a run on who called foul on a fair ball struck to Warren, who stopped it neatly, and could have caught his man at first, which would have allowed the next out, Chapman, on three strikes, to retire the side with a blank. They added another to their score in the next inning. Chapman got first on a base hit past Peters. Hague hit to Peters, who played to Keerl and caught Chapman. Keerl overthrew badly to first for Hague, who thereon took second. A passed ball by Hastings gave him third, and Bradley's base hit brought him in. The other outs were Dehlman, foul to Hastings, and Miller from Peters to Zettlein. The Browns did the rest of their scoring in the next inning, making their total of four runs.

AN ERROR ON THE PART OF THE UMPIRE,

CUTHBERT PUT IN A BASE HIT, and took first, and then stole second. Pearce took first on called balls. Both took a base on a passed ball. Pike went out by Keerl to first, Cuthbert running in. Chapman out, third to first, Pearce scoring. The side was retired on Hague's liner, fielded by Peters to first. For the next four innings the Brown Legs were blanked almost in one, two, three order, but one man reaching a base, the fortunate individual being Miller, who made first on a fly which was allowed to fall to the ground through a misunderstanding between Higham and Keerl. Their hitting was about on a par with

THE WHITES' TREATMENT OF BRADLEY.

Several strikers were retired on strikes and fouls, and all of the work in this part of the game was confined to the infield, Warren, Keerl, Peters, and Devlin distinguishing themselves by very sharp and pretty play, Zettlein showing very effectively at first. In the meanwhile, up to the ninth inning, the Chicagos had done nothing. They faced the phenomenal pitcher only, with very few exceptions, to fall easy victims on fouls, a few flys, and easily cared-for grounders. Zet. distinguished himself by a base hit in the third inning, but it would not yield a run, and again in the sixth he put in another with the same result. They could not get the hang of Bradley's underhand throw, and, hit as viciously as they might, they were in never putting a ball in a safe spot. In the ninth inning, when they went to bat, it seemed like a forlorn hope. Hastings waited for a good one, and finally got sent to first on called balls. Warren hit to centre for a base. Devlin followed with a safe one between third and second. Hines' safe hit passed second, and brought in Hastings and Warren. Keerl out on a liner by second to first. Peters out by a hit to first, Devlin scoring. Glenn finished this magnificent flash of good batting by a hit to Hague. The Browns were soon disposed of in one, two, three order, and the game was ended.

The fielding on both sides was good. As has been said, Bradley does not need much support. The Browns' fielding was pretty and showy, but not of a very trying character. The Whites' errors in the field, especially Hasting's passed balls, which occurred at peculiarly unfortunate moments, were responsible for the runs of their opponents.

THE FEELING IN CHICAGO.

The interest in the city yesterday over the ball game in St. Louis was much greater than that manifested Thursday. The crowds in front of Foley's, Wood's, and other places where returns were received reminded one of the excitement which used to take place when the first White Stockings were "on earth." The betting here was mainly at evens, though the pool-box at Foley's showed 8 to 7 in favor of St. Louis. Up to the ninth inning the stanch friends of the Chicagos began to fear a repetition of Thursday's record, but the expression at the close was that it was a game which any club might have lost, and, though scoring on the wrong side, was still an improvement on Thursday.

A base-ball pilgrim who had gone down to see the first game returned yesterday morning entirely disgusted with the whole affair. He reports the St. Louis audiences as the worst in the country in point of behavior and courtesy to visitors.

Yesterday's ball-game in St. Louis and its unfortunate result caused some worthy members of the base-ball interest to express themselves rather strongly. After the result had been declared, the writer called on Mr. Hulbert, President of the club, and was about to ask him what he thought of the trip, when the obese head of the organization raised himself up to a height and shouted:

What tho' the field be lost?
All is not lost; th' unconquerable will,
And study of revenge, immortal hate,
And courage never to submit or yield,
That glory never shall their power or might,
Extort from me to bow and sue for grace
Who from the terror of our arms so late
Doubted their empire.
Since through experience of this great event
(In arms not worse, in foresight much advanced)
We may with more successful hope resolve
To wage by force or guile eternal war,
Irreconcilable, to our grand foe,
Who now triumphs, and in the excess of joy,
Sole reigning, holds the base-ball sway.

To talk blank verse at one is not the proper way to answer a civil question, and the disgusted seeker after information passed down to Sir M. McDonald's place of business and demanded to know his opinion. Resting his elbow carefully on the bar the apostle of chance said oratorically:

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feeling, not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs. He most lives
Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.

"In this view of the case," observed Sir Mike, "I judge the members of the White Stockings Club to be about 2 years old."

A little further down Clark street the wanderer came upon Alderman Foley standing on the steps of his place and declaiming to a crowd:

'Tis all men's office to speak patience
To those that wring under the load of sorrow;
But no man's virtue nor sufficiency,
To be so moral when he shall endure
The like himself.

"The base-ball interest is decidedly lunatic today," quoth the wanderer, and made his way to solitude.

The St. Louis Democrat, in commenting on the first game with the Chicagos, says:

Thousands of boys in this city will turn out more useful men, and better husbands and fathers, because of the Brown Stockings—good luck to them!

Let the St. Louis youth follow the shining example of Dickey Pearce, Lip Pike, and Chapman, and they will turn out all right—for St. Louis.

THE JUNIORS.

The Young America Club has organized for the present season, with the following field: M. Griggs, c. and Captain; O. R. Morse, p.; C. Osgood, s. s.; F. Tittsworth, 1 b.; R. Rea, 2 b.; J. N. Tolman, 3 b.; E. B. Tolman, l. f.; J. Baker, c. f.; B. King, r. f. The club have a tasty uniform, and they think they are a full match for any junior organization in the city. They invite challenges, which should be sent to Master Mason Griggs, No. 11 Groveland park.

THE ATHLETICS.

The Philadelphia Times thinks that the Athletics are hardly up to grade this year. The club are "awfully deficient in batting," and "in the field they were also lacking." Clapp, the catcher, "appears to have lost the excellent throwing that distinguished him last year, and bases are run on him now almost with impunity." This would have been cheerful news to the Whites if they had come home from St. Louis as they expected; but as it now is it don't make much difference anyhow.

CENTENNIALS—ATHLETICS.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—The second championship game between the Athletics and Centennials was played this afternoon here upon the former's ground, in the presence of about a thousand spectators. The Centennials had just returned home from an extended tour, and several of their men were crippled, but they batted magnificently throughout the game, and gained and overwhelming victory. The Athletics, who played Rocap in the absence of Eggler, batted in a feeble manner, making two unearned runs in the first innings on three clean hits and McGinley's muffing as catcher. They afterwards failed to score. The Centennials made an earned run in the third inning by a three-base hit of Craver's; errors of Sutton, Clapp, and Force at critical points giving them 8 more unearned runs, while two runs were made on called balls. The Centennials made 14 base hits to their opponents' 8. The betting was $100 to $20 on the Athletics. The score by innings is:

REDS VS. WESTERN.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

KEOKUK, Ia., May 8.—The second game of base ball between the St. Louis Reds and the Keokuks this afternoon resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 6 to 1. A very high wind prevailed, and it was with much difficulty that the game was played at all. The Keokuks, both in batting and fielding, fell far below their play of Thursday, while the Reds improved in every respect. The Keokuks presented a new player in the person of John Carbine, lately of the Franklin nine of Chicago, who played first base very creditably, being charged with only one error. Simmons goes into the right field, and Riley will act as substitute.

BOSTONS—MUTUALS.

BOSTON, Mass., May 8.—Base-Ball: Bostons 10; Mutuals 2.

PHILADELPHIAS—NEW HAVENS.

NEW HAVEN, May 8.—Base-Ball: Philadelphias 3; New Havens 2.

HARTFORDS—WASHINGTONS.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 8.—Base-Ball: Hartfords 16; Washingtons 0. Only eight innings were played, owing to a rain-storm.

THE TURF.

THE BOARD OF APPEALS CONCLUDES ITS LABORS.

The Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association closed their Chicago meeting at the Palmer House with the session of Friday evening. After the formal work had been ended, the Secretary reported to the Board that official action had been taken upon every case on the docket where the parties had perfected their evidence, or had so submitted matters as to justify action by the Board.

A number of cases which have heretofore been continued to the July meeting, and a few others similarly continued from this meeting to enable the parties to procure their evidence, are all the matters which remain on the docket at this time undecided.

The Committee composed of members of the Board appointed at the March meeting to investigate and report upon the facts involved in the cases pending, having performed the duties assigned them, was discharged with the thanks of the Board.

THE SECRETARY

announcing that all necessary business of the meeting had been disposed of, the Chairman arose and remarked: "Before we adjourn, I wish, on behalf of the members of the Board, by their authority, to express our acknowledgments to our Secretary for the assistance he has afforded us, and for the intelligent, thorough, and complete system he has adopted in the administration of his office and the readiness with which he has accommodated himself to the wants of the Board, whereby he has greatly facilitated our performance of the work devolving upon us, and for these services we severally and officially thank him, and we direct that this acknowledgment be spread upon the records."

The Secretary thanked the members for their recognition of his assistance, and expressed his gratification that by their attendance and diligent application they had been enabled to so nearly clear up the docket.

The Board then adjourned sine die.

The next regular meeting of the Board will be held in Saratoga July 10.

The session of the Board of Appeals has been the sensation of the week in turf circles, and the event has drawn to the city a considerable number of trotting men from the East, who had cases pending before the Board. The results which have been daily published in these columns have given general satisfaction, though it is noted that they have been of the strictest character, the Board evidently wishing to impress upon the drivers the necessity of being honest. In the cases of W. B. Wright and Callahan the decisions will be a blessing to the turf interests of the Middle and Eastern States.

ITEMS.

The managers of the South Bend Trotting Association offer $5,000 in premiums for a three days' meeting, June 16, 17, and 18. Two trots and a race are advertised for each day. Entries close June 7.

The "California wonder," Occident, is likely to have business on his hands. The first loud talk comes from William Losell, who wants to trot American Girl against him for $5,000 a side, race to come off during May.

A 10-mile trotting race, under the saddle, at Yorkshire, England, between Steel Gray and Peeping Tom, for $2,000, was recently won by Steel Gray in 27 minutes 56¼ seconds, beating Peeping Tom 100 yards. This is the fastest time on record. The best 10-mile time in harness is 28.08½, and to wagon 28.02½.

NASHVILLE RACES.

NASHVILLE, May 8.—On the fifth and last day of the spring meeting of the Nashville Blood Horse Association, the attendance was very large. The ladies' stand was well filled, and the track in fine condition.

First race, Association purse, $150, dash of one mile and an eighth:

Swigert's ch. f. Egypt	1
Harding's b. f. Planchette	2
Elliott's ch. f. Chatterton	3
Johnson's ch f. Vaultress	4

Time—2:01¼.

The pools averaged: Egypt, 100; Planchette, 70; Chatterbox, 40; Vaultress, 17.

THE TRIGGER.

THE AMERICAN RIFLE TEAM.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Col. Gildersleeve has been chosen Captain of the American team to shoot a rifle match at Dolly Mount, Ireland, with the Irish team, in June next. In answer to the challenge of the Ulster (Ireland) Rifle Association, it was resolved by the American riflemen that "It is the sense of this Committee that the team selected by the American people to meet the riflemen of Ireland have no right to accept a challenge from any other source, as a team." Gen. Hawley telegraphs that he will complete his score for a place on the American team.

THE SEASON FOR SHOOTING IN THIS SECTION

has hardly opened as yet. The main reason for this, as regards trap-shooting, is the scarcity of birds. Only a limited supply can be had in Wisconsin, and in New York State the flocks have not risen yet to come West. The two elder Chicago Clubs—the Kennicott and Prairie—have done absolutely nothing so far. Their younger brethren of the Chicago and Gun Clubs have had one meeting to each organization, and have opened the ball. It is not probable that the Prairies will do much until after their next meeting, which occurs Tuesday evening at 179 East Madison street. At this time officers will be chosen.

Capt. A. H. Bogardus will shoot a match with Paine in New York Saturday for a stake of $2,000. The match is for 100 birds each, from ground-traps. The Captain started for New York on Thursday last.

NOTES.

BILLIARDS.

Professional billiards in Chicago is quiescent, and there is not the faintest rumor of any important contest. Nothing further has come to the surface concerning the Burleigh-Slosson match. Hos, of New Orleans, and Honing, of Ohio, are still in the city, remaining from the tournament. The former will soon assume a position in a room, and the latter is presumably practicing for his contest with Carter for the Ohio championship.

Amateur billiards received a huge impetus from the tournament, and the rooms are all pretty well patronized just now. The City Clerk's register asserts that there were up to April 1, 444 tables in public rooms in the city,—at least that number paid city license. Assuming that this number is one-half of the whole number of tables in the city—and that brings the estimate certainly low enough—it may be noted that Chicago plays now just about one-third more billiards than before the fire. This is due in part to the better facilities for the game, and in part to the greatly reduced prices set by room-keepers upon the use of their tables. It may be noted also that those rooms which have the lowest prices have the most custom and pay the best profits. An example is a certain room where the price is 15 cents per game or 30 cents per hour. Such prices were undreamt-of before 1871, and it is fair to suppose that the lowering in price has produced the increase in playing and in profits.

HAND BALL.

A match-game of hand-ball will be played on Saturday, May 15, at the opening of Carmody & O'Malley's Court, corner of Chicago avenue and Franklin street. The contest will be $500 a side for the best three out of five games. The contestants are Ald. James O'Brien and John Hall against James Ferren and James Cuddihy.

Shortly afterward she became very ill, but no doctor was sent for until just before her death, which occurred at 9 o'clock last night. The case is a subject for the Coroner, and he should attend to it.

ALMOST INCREDIBLE.

The Papal Envoys Will Go to Milwaukee Before Coming to Chicago.

But They Will Favor Us with Their Presence About the 20th of May.

Who They Are; What They Look Like; Where They May Be Seen; and How They Will Be Entertained.

Just to think of it!

Milwaukee—of all places in the world!

It was hard enough that New York should be given the first Cardinal; but it was not so hard as if it had been St. Louis. Besides, McCloskey is a much older man, in years and in office, than Bishop Foley, who, while undoubtedly a Cardinal of the Future, is too young for one of the present, and the See of Chicago must wait its spiritual turn. It was only graceful, on the part of Chicago, to yield with high-bred courtesy that precedence to New York which gave her the first American "Prince of the Church," and spread before her dazzled eyes, snapping with delight, the gorgeous pageant of scarlet robes, archiepiscopal insignia, picturesque vesture, and, more than all,—the cynosure of all eyes,—the Papal Mercury, Count Marefoschi, whose wonderful stature, clanking sword, and blazing uniform, render his celestial vision something like the event of one's life-time. He is said to be "immense,"—much "sweeter" than Alexis.

It will scarcely be denied by any Chicagoan, whether Catholic or not, that, after making Archbishop McCloskey a Cardinal, and taking a ride on Fifth avenue, and leaving their cards at the White House, these gentlemen, the official representatives of the most august sovereign on earth, with the least real estate, but the greatest moral empire, should have come the second city of the New World. That they did not is simply incomprehensible. There must have been bad advice in the matter. Somebody blundered.

They went to Boston, to take a look at Bunker Hill, to listen to the minute men at Concord, and hear the exultant shouts echoing from Lexington. No—they went to make an Archbishop of Bishop Williams. But that was all right. We do not grumble at that, either. Since they had business in the Hub, it was quite proper they should go there. The Hub dined and "addressed" them on a half-dozen different occasions; drove them through the pretty suburbs; pointed out all the historic spots where Colonist whipped Britisher, and remarked that the blood of the patriots became the seed of liberty. The Romans were deeply impressed with Boston harbor, especially after being reminded that some geologist of the next age will be astounded to discover a stratum of tea underneath its bed of clay, and that science will argue therefrom that the whole earth at one time was covered with tea, the infinite changes of unlimited periods gradually "settling" the leaves under Boston harbor. Having completed their examination of the Cradle of Liberty, it was certain that the directly to Chicago. When the announcement was finally made that they were en route for the West, no doubt remained, and talk became a little brisker in local Catholic circles as to the manner of their reception and the quality and quantity of their entertainment. Now it is settled that they are on their way West—but where are they going?

PAPAL ENVOYS WOULD COME

To Milwaukee!

Bishop Henni is to be made an Archbishop Sunday, May 16, in his own Cathedral, in our lager-beer suburb, and thither go the Romans three, with a long retinue of prelates, priests, and pious laics to witness the conferring of the pallium. Bishop Foley, who greatly rejoices in the distinction bestowed upon his venerable neighbor, will attend the ceremony.

Immediately after the ninth Archbishop of the Catholic Church in the United States has been created, the work of the Papal Envoys north of Chicago is completed. They will then come to Chicago as the guests of Bishop Foley.

WHO THEY ARE.

Monsignor Roncetti, a prelate of the Pope's household, is the first in rank, and was ab-legate from Pius IX., to carry the red cap to Cardinal McCloskey. He is a handsome, polished Italian, of the pure ecclesiastical type, looking like a churchman, dressing in purple, like Bishop Foley, although, unlike the latter, he has no See, and only such ecclesiastical duties as are assigned him by the Pope. He is a fine scholar, speaking French, Latin, German, and Spanish, as well as Italian, and, since his advent to the United States, he has acquired sufficient readiness in English to make himself understood. He is a personal friend of Bishop Foley, and was a college companion in Rome of that Right Reverend gentleman's brother, the Rev. John Foley, of Baltimore, who was assigned a prominent part with Archbishop Bayley in the Red Hat ceremonial.

Monsignor Roncetti (pronounce as if written Ronchetty) is accompanied by Father Ubaldi, D. D., as Chaplain and Secretary. The reverend gentleman is a good English scholar, using our language with readiness and ease.

COUNT MAREFOSCHI

(pronounce Marryfosky) is an officer of the Pope's "Noble Guard," and is here in the capacity of a courier, being the bearer of the Papal dispatch for the elevation of Archbishop McCloskey to the Cardinalate. He is over 6 feet in height, and of corresponding breadth—a genuine Titan. His stature alone would command attention by its wonderful proportions and the impressiveness of his personal bearing,—but the noble Count is encased in a style of regimentals wholly new to American eyes, and as dazzling in color as they are novel in cut. He is privileged to wear his military apparel in church, and is, therefore, a much more conspicuous object in the sanctuary than either a Cardinal or a Bishop. His shining Roman helmet is tipped with a long waving plume. His jacket is adapted to the massiveness of his figure, and its scarlet ground is elaborately covered with gold-lace and bullion fringe in fantastic designs. He wears several glittering testimonies to his ardor as a soldier, and his virtues as a man. His top-boots reach his thighs, and his spurs are of the sort worn by Godfrey de Bouillon and Richard the lion-hearted when it was the ambition of chivalry to wrest the Holy Land from the paynim Saracen. His sword is covered by a magnificently chased scabbard, whose clanking against his spurs and the floor suggest the days when the fighting monarchs knelt long enough in their cathedrals to receive the Iron Crown from the hands of the pontiffs. The Count, moreover, is an accomplished and thoroughbred cavalier, whose smiles are as bewitching as his apparel is gorgeous, and it is impossible to surmise the number of broken hearts his majestic person will turn its noble back upon when the hour of departure from Chicago arrives.

HOW THEY WILL BE SEEN.

Bishop Foley being a man of unostentatious dispensation, and much fonder of quiet hospitality, which he well knows how to administer, than of public display, will not, it is said, accede to any request which includes a distasteful parade of the distinguished visitors. They wish to see the country, to be able to form a correct estimate of its commercial and manufacturing, as well as æsthetic, greatness; and, as their stay cannot be prolonged, the more privacy afforded them the better will they be able to enjoy themselves and to accomplish the objects of their visit. It is certain, however, that they will spend one Sunday in the city, and will participate in the Pontifical High Mass to be said on that day in St. Mary's Church, corner of Wabash avenue and Eldridge court. They will also visit the various Catholic religious institutions—the Jesuit College, the Convent of the Sacred Heart, the Convent of Mercy, the various hospitals, and several of the city officials will have the pleasure of showing them the Water-Works, the tunnels, and the crib. The various talk of a public reception, with parade, speeches, etc.; but it is believed that this will not be agreeable to the Romans, and, if this is true, the idea will be dropped.

CATHOLIC SOCIETIES

THE SPENCER INVESTIGATION.

MONTGOMERY, May 8.—The Spencer Investigating Committee is still in session, and it is understood astounding developments have been made, showing the corrupt use of money to buy up the Court-House Legislature.

CINCINNATI'S COMING FESTIVAL.

CINCINNATI, O., May 8.—Mr. Theodore Thomas was present at Exposition Hall last evening, with his orchestra, to test the efficiency of the chorus that is to take part in the official festival next week. About 700 choristers were present and arranged in a double pyramid on both sides of the orchestra inclosure. The Triumphlied, the Magnificat, and Lohengrin were executed with scarcely an error, and Mr. Thomas expresses himself well-pleased with the result of the labors of Mr. Singer in his drill of the chorus, during the past season. The most complete arrangements for decorating the city during festival week have been made. It is proposed that there shall be a general illumination of the city on Wednesday night.

THE INDIANS.

RAIDS ON THE KANSAS BOARDER.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 8.—The Indians continue to be troublesome along the Western frontier. The troops have had several light skirmishes with small parties of them during the past week. Arrangements are being made to send out force against them from Fort Hays that will pursue them until they surrender or are captured.

THE MURDEROUS CHEYENNES.

ST. LOUIS, May 8.—The Republican's Kansas City special says seventy Indian prisoners from Fort Sill passed through this afternoon for Fort Leavenworth in charge of two companies of troops under command of Lieut. Kyle. Medicine Water, who led the party that assisted in the Germaine massacre, is with them, also Lone Wolf, the celebrated Kiowa chief who has been the leader in the war for several years, and who was once captured by Gen. Sherman. White Horse, the murderer of the Keozier and Lee families; Hurrahner, murderer of Osborne at the Wichita Agency, Worn as Heart Heap, O'Birds, and many others equally notorious. The party is comprised of the principal chiefs who have caused all the trouble for the past five years, and their capture is considered as the finale of the Indian outrages. Kicking Bird, who delivered them to the troops, was poisoned by a squaw, and died at Fort Sill May 3. It is not known what the Government will do with them.

HINTS ON CARDIAC DISEASE—NO. 1.

THE VEINS are constructed, in general, like the arteries, but their coats are much thinner. Many of the larger veins, particularly in the limbs, have crescent-shaped valves, usually arranged in pairs and opposite each other. They are formed by the doublings of the lining membrane, strengthened with intervening fibro-elastic tissue. Behind each valve there is a dilation of the vein, forming a little pouch. The veins are arranged in two sets, the superficial and the deep-seated; the former lie immediately under the skin, possessing no corresponding arteries; the deep-seated veins directly attend the arteries, and usually take the same name. The largest arteries have one venous trunk; the medium-sized have two, called Venæ Comites. The walls of the arteries and veins are furnished with nutritive vessels and nerves. The analyses of Blood by different chemists give different results, due chiefly to the varying conditions of health, age, temperament, etc., of the person from which it is taken. The following from Lehman gives the composition of 1,000 parts, as calculated from the analysis of venous Blood by Lecanu: Corpuscles—Water, 344; Hæmatin, 8.35; Globulin, 14.111; Fat, 1.155; Extractive Matter, 1.3; Salts, 4.06; Fibrin, —; Albumen, Plasma—Water, 451.45; Fat, .86; Extractive Matter, 1.97; Salts, 4.275. According to this estimate, Blood contains about 80 per cent of water and 20 per cent of solid matter. Blood charged with gases—Oxygen, Nitrogen, and Carbonic Acid—has a saline taste and alkaline qualities. When Blood is exposed to the air the Fibrin contained in it coagulates, and carries down with it mechanically the corpuscle, which leaves an amber-colored fluid called Serum, in which the solid part or clot floats.

Dr. Newman, of London, regards the use of arsenic and other poisons in every-day medical practice as a common cause of the prevalence of heart-disease. These tend to diminish the pulse, and reduce the volume of blood in the heart, arteries, and veins. Prof. Parker, of New York, regards extreme medication as a prolific cause of heart-dropsy, with its attendant symptoms of general debility, shortness of breath, and sense of suffocation. Prof. Chapman, of Philadelphia, declares that any course of medication which reduces the volume of blood tends to cause heart-dropsy, which induces general dropsy and paralysis. Dr. Wood opposes the extreme use of caustic on the skin in eruptive diseases, because of their tendency to strike to the heart, and thus produce sudden death. Dr. M. Bichart, of Paris, reports nineteen cases of heart-disease resulting from the use of this and similar agents for the cure of abscesses, ulcers, cancers, scrofula, and the like, all of which disappeared from the surface, but so affected the heart that Pericarditis, Dropsy, and sudden death, resulted.

The prevalent forms of Cardiac complaints are enlargement, congestion, inflammation, and dropsy, and of these the most common symptoms are a rush of blood to the heart, cold feet, general weakness, shortness of breath, dizziness, and a sense of suffocation in the region of the heart. Many cases are on record where persons apparently free from disease have, after a full meal, or in a fit of anger, or in an attack of nightmare, died almost in an instant.

Water around the heart is a dangerous form of Cardiac disease, and arises from a variety of causes. In its earlier stages it yields to proper treatment, but I have never known an instance of cure after the heart has become entirely surrounded with the fluid. The tissues are so constructed that their vitality depends upon their activity, which in turn is dependent on the quantity of oxygen and nutritive matter supplied—the former being necessary to the healthy stimulus of the nervo-muscular system and to the chemical combinations without which there could be no renewal of tissue particles, and the latter to supply the waste caused by the chemical and vital activities. Hence the necessity of a pneumatic apparatus to provide a constant supply of oxygen, and a hydraulic apparatus to convey the prepared nutriment to every part of the body, and remove the worn-out particles. The former is provided by the lungs, and the latter by the heart and blood-vessels. The two agencies, harmoniously working by means of the double circulation, create the necessity of the double heart.

It often happens that disease attacks one side of the heart without involving the other. The right and left sides act alternately and independently. It has no rest, and works on from the day of birth until death, and hence none of the organs in the human economy require more skillful treatment when attacked by disease. Remedies should be chosen with great care and administered with skill and judgment by physicians of sagacity and experience. There appears, at the present day, a spirit of recklessness among physicians in the administration of powerful remedies by way of experimental practice, which should be discountenanced. It is unquestionably true that a large percentage of disease and consequent mortality results directly from this cause.

From the left ventricle the blood is forced into the aorta, to be thence diffused through the arteries to the capillaries in every part of the body. It is thence returned by the veins through the venæ cavæ to the right auricle, which delivers it to the right ventricle. This completes the systemic circulation. From the right ventricle it is thrown into the pulmonary artery, and, through its branches, to the pulmonary capillaries; thence returned by the pulmonary veins, which coalesce and finally enter the left auricle, which pours it into the left ventricle, thus completing the pulmonic circulation. The two constitute one complete circuit of the double circulation. Both are carried on simultaneously. The auricles contract and dilate, and this contraction and dilation is followed immediately by like action of the ventricles. By the latter pure blood is thrown into the body and impure into the lungs; and almost simultaneously the auricles receive impure blood from the body and pure from the lungs.

SKETCHES OF CORRESPONDENCE.

April 10, 1870.—Dr. Dodge: Sir—Your prescription is to hand. We commence its use at once, but we fear it is too late. Mrs. Mann is very low. Your articles on Cardiac or Heart Disease raised her hopes very high, but medical counsel agree that her heart is nearly covered with water. . . . April 19.—Mrs. Mann appears still on the verge of the grave. . . . April 27.—We have now faint hopes, as she is improving; her feet are warmer, the limbs not so lifeless, breathing not so short and worried; instructions closely followed. . . . May 5.—Dear Doctor, my wife is much better. That "all-gone" feeling, smothering and sinking away, is disappearing; the circulation of blood improves in the limbs and less blood rushes to the head. . . . May 12.—Dear Doctor, yours to hand. Mrs. Mann is decidedly better; her breath is now free and easy, and satisfies her, which it has not done for years before. There has been perceptible perspiration on the skin over the region of the heart, since which she has felt wonderfully relieved. . . . June 11.—Dear Doctor, all the friends have now great hopes that you may succeed in my wife's case; if you do we shall regard it as almost a miracle, after so many eminent medical gentlemen have failed. . . . June 30.—Dear Doctor, your fresh supply of remedies is to hand. We still have great hopes. The smothering, suffocation, sinking away, shortness of breath, weight and pressure about the heart, rush of blood to the head, cold feet and limbs, are all much better. . . . Aug. 1.—Dear Doctor, we consider Mrs. Mann about well; she has great strength and good health, for which we can never fully repay you. We shall ever praise and recommend you. (Several of our neighbors will write you this week.)

My wife was often troubled with Erysipelas eleven years since, which disappeared suddenly from the surface, and medical men said that it struck to her heart. She sank very low, and was given up to die at that time, and has been very low ever since, and no remedies gave permanent relief. We consulted you, and your remedies helped almost from the first. And, as soon as the Erysipelas broke out on the surface again, she rapidly recovered in every particular. You treated and removed the cause of disease, which was the Erysipelas. This we think the key to your success. A. G. MANN, Louisville, Ky.
